—JFK SIGNS MEASURE—

Rail Strike Threat Dies

Washington (AP) —There will be no railroad strike.

Congress passed and President Kennedy signed legislation Wednesday night requiring arbitration of the dispute that threatened to shut down the nation's rail lines at midnight.

Even as the measure was being hurried from the Capitol to the White House:

1. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz announced the railroads had withdrawn controversial new work rules.

Share Relief

2. The railroads issued a statement saying they share "the nation's relief over the lifting of the strike threat."

3. The unions described the compulsory arbitration measure as "a backward step" but said they would "cooperate fully with the intent of the law."

"Only time will tell whether Congress has changed the course of labor-management relations," the chiefs of the five unions said in a statement.

Lift Orders

The railroads lifted orders canceling trains which could not have reached their final destinations before the midnight strike deadline. Instead, regular schedules were maintained.

Kennedy signed the bill at 5:15 p.m. as thousands of civil rights marchers streamed out of the capital after a day-long rally.

The measure, ordering binding arbitration to settle two key disputes over railroad manpower, was adopted on a 286-66 standing House vote.

Less Than 8 Hours

With the strike deadline less than 8 hours away, the House accepted a version of the legislation approved by the Senate Tuesday night. The vote there was 90-2.

That meant that House passage completed congressional action, and the measure was sent to the White House for President Kennedy's signature.

Under the bill a panel of 7 arbitrators will be created to rule within 150 days on union-management disputes over firemen's jobs and the make-up of freight and yard crews.

Deadline

The railroads had set 12:01 a.m. Thursday as their deadline for imposing manpower-slashing work rules in those areas, and 5 unions said they would strike as soon as the changes went into effect.

With congressional action uncertain until virtually the last minute, both sides already had made preparations for a strike.

The board's findings will be binding for two years.

The measure leaves to negotiators settlement of 6 other work rules disputes. But it bars imposition of changes by management, or a strike by workers, for at least 30 days after the board makes its ruling on the two major controversies.

AFTER THE MARCH . . . some of the participants relax, cool their feet in reflecting pool.

Big March Is Orderly

. . . 200,000 IN CAPITAL

Washington (AP) — In a great, dramatic demonstration, more than 200,000 Negroes and white sympathizers massed before the Abraham Lincoln Memorial Wednesday and demanded across-the-board abolition of race discrimination.

Then, after the "March for Jobs and Freedom," President Kennedy asserted that "the cause of 20 million Negroes has been advanced" by the gigantic, orderly assemblage.

Kennedy conferred with 10 march leaders at the White House and issued a statement pledging a continued drive for civil rights legislation, for the removal of job barriers, for better education and full employment.

3 Arrests

By special train, plane, buses by the thousand, private automobiles—and even in some case on foot — the marchers poured into the capital. As they headed homeward Wednesday night, the small army of police and national guardsmen mustered to cope with feared disorder could report that only 3 arrests had been made — and not one of these by a demonstrator.

Though the temperature was a balmy 84 and a cool wind stirred, many marchers fainted by the wayside. More than 1,700 were treated at first aid tents or hospitals for ills such as ribs fractured in the crush, headaches and insect bites.

Gathering around the Washington Monument, the great sea of humanity moved toward the Lincoln Memorial which enshrines the marble statue of the man who freed the slaves 100 years ago.

Chanted

Softly, as they went, they chanted the familiar civil rights hymn:

"Deep in my heart I do believe . . . some day we shall overcome."

And a forest of placards moved with them. Some of these struck a religious note:

"God of wisdom, God of power, can America deny freedom in this hour?"

Down-to-Earth

Others were more down-to-earth and slangy:

"No U.S. dough to help Jim Crow!"

Of all the speeches at the memorial, the one that drew the strongest applause was made by the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Departing from his advance text, he said:

"I still have a dream, a dream deeply rooted in the American dream—one day this nation will rise up and live up to its creed, 'we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal'.

"I have a dream that one day in Alabama little black boys and little black girls will be able to go hand in hand together with little white boys and little white girls as brothers and sisters.

The Faith

"This is the faith that I will take down to the south—that out of this mountain of despair, I can find a soul of brotherhood.

"Let freedom ring from every hill and molehill in Mississippi, from every city and state in the country."

King, introduced as "moral leader of our nation," said the march will go down in history as "the greatest demonstration for freedom in the history of our nation." He called it an occasion in which Negroes had come to cash a promissory note of freedom guaranteed by the constitution but on which "America has given black men a bad check."

Peaceful

The movement out of the city Wednesday night was so peaceful that by 5.15 p.m., CST, at Union Station only 900 of the more than 20,000 who came by train were still awaiting departure.

There remained a massive cleanup job for the park service. What looked like a snowfall of paper cups, picnic lunch containers and napkins covered acres. Poles that had been attached to placards floated in the reflecting pool.

The estimate of more than 200,000 participants came from the Washington chief of police, Robert V. Murray. He made the assessment in mid-afternoon and added: "Up to now it's been a very orderly crowd, a very orderly gathering."

Holiday

A holiday atmosphere pervaded the city. Many government workers took the day off and many business offices closed. Stores in the downtown area were largely deserted.

William H. Press, executive vice president of the Washington Board of Trade, said that while he had no actual figures, "I imagine business is off 80 to 90% . . . there's nobody in the stores."

Congregating at the Lincoln Memorial, the vast audience stretched far back toward the east end of the magnificent reflecting pool—toward the spot where in a semi-circular, separate pool, water lilies bloomed.

Much More

At the memorial, they heard many speeches, many songs and spirituals. They heard speakers demand passage of President Kennedy's civil rights bill—and much more.

A. Philip Randolph, 74-year-old prime promoter of the march, struck at those who want to amend the program to exempt little establishments from the proposed anti-discrimination ban — places like "Mrs. Murphy's boarding house."

"We must destroy the notion," said Randolph, the president of the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, "that Mrs. Murphy's property rights include the right to humiliate me because of the color of my skin."

Great Cheer

A great cheer went up when Randolph announced that more than 150 members of Congress were in seats on the broad marble steps of the memorial.

Film star Burt Lancaster unrolled a scroll he had brought with him by plane from Americans in Paris. It expressed fervent hope that all Americans would be "liberated from the prison of their biases and fears."

What effect the march would have on Congress remained to be seen though Ralph Bunche, world-known American Negro official of the United Nations, told the throng:

"Anybody who cannot understand the significance of your participation here today is blind and deaf."

Members Polite

Despite advance predictions by critics of possible wholesale disorder, the marchers—who numbered black and white, Protestants, Catholics and Jews — were studiously polite to one and all as they assembled and then marched to the Lincoln Memorial on the bank of the Potomac.

As the meeting went on, police reported only two arrests had been made thus far — neither one of them demonstrators.

Unions Pick Sen. McGee As Speaker

"One of the most dynamic and talented speakers in the nation" will address the Lincoln Central Labor Union's annual labor relations banquet Sept. 12 at Pershing Auditorium, LCLU executive board member L. K. Emry said Wednesday.

McGee

The speaker is Democratic Sen. Gale W. McGee of Wyoming. He will discuss "The Dangers of the Extreme Right."

Emry said he anticipates an attendance of more than 430 at the 7 p.m. banquet. Tickets are $3.

The Lincoln labor official emphasized: "What we're concerned about is the dangers of the extreme right as well as the dangers of the extreme left."

Lincoln Native

McGee was born in Lincoln and was graduated from Norfolk High School in 1932. He got his B. A. degree from a Nebraska state teachers college in 1936, an M.A. from the University of Colorado in 1939 and his Ph.D. in 1947 from the University of Chicago.

Before his election to the Senate in 1958, he was professor of American history at the University of Wyoming and chairman of its Institute of International Affairs.

McGee serves on the Senate Appropriations and Commerce Committees.

March Aided Cause

. . . JFK SAYS

Washington (UPI) — President Kennedy said Wednesday that the massive civil rights demonstration in Washington has advanced "the cause of 20 million Negroes" and all mankind.

The President issued a statement after meeting for an hour and 15 minutes with 10 leaders of the civil rights demonstration by an estimated 200,000 people.

The President pledged that the federal government "will continue its efforts to obtain increased employment and to eliminate discrimination in employment practices, two of the prime goals of the march."

Keep Up Efforts

And he said the administration also will keep up efforts to have Congress enact not only a civil rights bill but also a number of measures to strengthen the economy and to make it possible for more people to work and to get better jobs.

He praised leaders of the march and all who participated in it "for the detailed preparations that made it possible and for the orderly manner in which it has been conducted."

"History has seen many demonstrations—of widely varying character and for a whole host of reasons," the President asserted. "As our thoughts travel to other demonstrations that have occurred in different parts of the world, this nation can properly be proud of the demonstration that has occurred here today."

Remarkable

The President said there had been remarkable progress this summer "in translating civil rights from principles into practices." But he added that "we have a very long way yet to travel."

"One cannot help but be impressed with the deep fervor and the quiet dignity that characterizes the thousands who have gathered in the nation's capital from across the country to demonstrate their faith and confidence in our democratic form of government," the President declared.

Intensified

Kennedy said that tens of thousands of Americans, Negro and white, had exercised their right today to "direct the widest possible attention to a great national issue."

"Efforts to secure equal treatment and equal opportunity for all without regard to race, color, creed or nationality are neither novel or difficult to understand. What is different today is the intensified and widespread public awareness of the need to move forward in achieving these objectives—which are older than this nation."

Bodies Of 8 Miners Uncovered In Utah

. . . TWO BROUGHT UP

Moab, Utah (AP)—Eight dead miners were found Wednesday night after two of seven known survivors were brought up safely from a mine where an explosion trapped 25 men more than 2,700 feet underground.

Two rescue teams, however, were unable to reach the five miners reported alive and barricaded behind debris about 2,100 feet into one of two tunnels which extend laterally and downward from the main shaft.

The five were reported alive by the two men rescued earlier Wednesday.

Frank Tippie, head of the potash division of the Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. mine, said "in covering the tunnel, the rescue workers observed eight bodies. We don't know what the situation is behind the barrier."

Forced Back

The rescue teams only probed the tunnel to the 1,500-foot mark, then were forced to turn back when they ran out of oxygen.

Asked how the situation looked, Tripple replied:

"Well, when you find eight bodies, it doesn't look good."

Tipple said the rescuers didn't have time to find out whether the men died in the blast, suffocated, or were poisoned by carbon monoxide or other gasses.

He also said the rescuers were not certain the five barricaded men were getting compressed air through pipes hooked up to their blockade.

Tipple reported water was rising in the main shaft, but was not backing up into the tunnels. Rescue operations were suspended for 90 minutes while electricians tried to start the first of two pumps to remove the water.

Tipple said the water presented no danger, but made rescue operations difficult.

"It's like working in a heavy rain," said another official. The rescuers returned from the shaft soaked.

15 Accounted For

The finding of the eight bodies, plus the two rescued men and the five reported behind the barricade, accounted for 15 of the trapped miners. The fate of the others remained a mystery.

The main shaft of the mine reaches to a depth of 2,712, but the trapped men are actually farther down than that, caught in two lateral tunnels that reach to 3,200 feet.

Diem Charges U. S. Off Base

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP) — President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime accused the U.S. government Wednesday of being off base in denouncing the military crackdown on his Buddhist opponents.

The American criticism was said to show "a profoundly unjust doubt in the government of (South) Viet Nam, based on totally erroneous information."

A Saigon note charged that a declaration that the State Department issued with President Kennedy's approval Aug. 21 was "prejudicial to the honor and prestige of Viet Nam, which has never broken its word to whomever it made promises."

Briskly

The little Asian ally of the United States in an anti-Communist war—assured of Continued U.S. military aid—responded briskly to American criticism of the raids last week on Buddhist pagodas and the arrest of more than 1,000 monks and nuns.

The State Department had accused the Saigon administration of using repressive measures to combat Buddhist leaders campaigning against Diem, a Roman Catholic, under the slogan "religious freedom and social justice."

"The action represents a direct violation by the Vietnamese government of assurances that it was pursuing a policy of reconciliation with the Buddhists," the State Department said.

"The United States deplores repressive actions of this nature."

Work Cut Out

The response by Diem's government indicated U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge has his work cut out for him in conveying Washington's viewpoints on the crisis to Diem and his subordinates.

"The government of Viet Nam reaffirms its determination to continue its policy of conciliation toward the Buddhists," the note said, "but it is also resolved to unmask all political saboteurs hiding under various disguises."

The note described monks who have led the Buddhist campaign as political saboteurs bent on subversion, "including stockpiling of arms and printing machinery for carrying on clandestine propaganda."

This note followed up a declaration by the joint military command in Saigon that army chiefs promoted the martial law invoked 8 days ago. A communique said they persuaded Diem to impose martial law.

'Stand Out Or Stand Still'—Publisher

By KAREN KENNEY
Star Staff Writer

"Stand out or stand still," was the challenge Wednesday from Arnold Gingrich, publisher of Esquire Magazine.

Speaking before an audience of American journalism educators, Gingrich predicted an end to the age of conformity:

"Today the urge is no longer to fit in, but to stand out.

"And, to stand out, for a man or a magazine, it is necessary to stand for something—otherwise you will stand still."

Forsake Conformity

His plea to forsake conformity was directed to some 400 delegates at the final banquet session of the national meeting of the Association of Education in Journalism and its coordinate societies meeting here at the Nebraska Center

The men's magazine publisher held out non-conformity as the key to success in any new venture, whether it be in the field of magazines or machinery.

And, true non-conformity can be achieved by taking a few dares, Gingrich went on:

—be the first to climb off any bandwagon identified solely with mass movements.

—don't be afraid to hate fashionable dirty books, nutty "pop" art and modernly sleazy buildings.

Learn From Past

—stop keeping up with the times, "but go behind them, for there are only a few people alive who can teach you as much as many who are dead."

His dares, Gingrich suggested, apply to people as well as to magazines which expect to succeed in the immediate future.

Magazine-making in the future will be harder, he forecast, with the odds for survival about one chance in 200.

Despite the influx of culture, prosperity, competition from television and paperbacks, there will remain a demand for magazines—but good ones and challenging ones, he said.

More Localizing

"Magazines will have to be increasingly local—the regional editions that now differ mainly in advertising will have to differ in editorial content as well," he predicted.

As the result of the "rapidly receding age of conformity," magazines he said, will have to be "increasingly topical . . . increasingly authoritative and increasingly intellectual."

"And above all, they will have to be increasingly daring—readers will be less and less willing to be merely contented. They will rather want to be challenged and stimulated."

Speaking before an audience of American journalism educators, Gingrich predicted an end to the age of conformity:

"Today the urge is no longer to fit in, but to stand out.

"And, to stand out, for a man or a magazine, it is necessary to stand for something—otherwise you will stand still."

Forsake Conformity

His plea to forsake conformity was directed to some 400 delegates at the final banquet session of the national meeting of the Association of Education in Journalism and its coordinate societies meeting here at the Nebraska Center.

The men's magazine publisher held out non-conformity as the key to success in any new venture, whether it be in the field of magazines or machinery.

And, true non-conformity can be achieved by taking a few dares, Gingrich went on:

—be the first to climb off any bandwagon identified solely with mass movements.

—don't be afraid to hate fashionable dirty books, nutty "pop" art and modernly sleazy buildings.

Learn From Past

—stop keeping up with the times, "but go behind them, for there are only a few people alive who can teach you as much as many who are dead."

His dares, Gingrich suggested, apply to people as well as to magazines which expect to succeed in the immediate future.

Magazine-making in the future will be harder, he forecast, with the odds for survival about one chance in 200.

Despite the influx of culture, prosperity, competition from television and paperbacks, there will remain a demand for magazines—but good ones and challenging ones, he said.

More Localizing

"Magazines will have to be increasingly local—the regional editions that now differ mainly in advertising will have to differ in editorial content as well," he predicted.

As the result of the "rapidly receding age of conformity," magazines he said, will have to be "increasingly topical . . . increasingly authoritative and increasingly intellectual."

"And above all, they will have to be increasingly daring—readers will be less and less willing to be merely contented. They will rather want to be challenged and stimulated."

President Supports 'Freedom Now' Cry

Washington (AP)—On the day of the massive march for Negroes' rights, President Kennedy declared "we must accelerate our efforts to achieve equal rights for all our citizens."

The President thus lent his support to the cry for "freedom now" expressed by speaker after speaker—Negro and white—in the shadow of the towering statue of Abraham Lincoln, who freed the slaves 100 years ago.

The vehicle for Kennedy's declaration was a bit unusual—a Labor Day statement made public 5 days ahead of that holiday. He said:

"These recent months, 100 years after the Emancipation Proclamation, have seen the decisive recognition by a major part of our society that all our citizens are entitled to full membership in the national community. The gains of 1963 will never be reversed."

Solid Foundation

The President's 1,000-word statement added that recent developments "lay a solid foundation for the progress we must continue to make in the months and years to come." Then Kennedy appealed for accelerating the drive for equal rights for all citizens—"in employment, in education, in voting, and in all sectors of our national activity."

Negroes and their white supporters who marched the mile from the Washington Monument to the Lincoln Memorial gathered around the reflecting pool to hear leaders of the 10 organizations sponsoring the rally explain their cause. There were pleas for divine help for the cause from the clergy—a Roman Catholic, a Jew, a Protestant.

The urgency keynote of the demonstration was stressed by John Lewis, chairman of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee, who told the gathering:

"To those who have said 'be patient and wait' we must say that, 'patience is a dirty and nasty word.' We cannot be patient, we do not want to be free gradually, we want our freedom now."

Skipped Attack

He skipped this sentence which was in his prepared text: "We cannot depend on any political party, for both the Democrats and the Republicans have betrayed the basic principles of the Declaration of Independence."

Lewis said "In good conscience, we support the administration's civil rights bill, but with reservations. There's not one thing in the bill that will protect our people from police brutality in its present form."

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, sounded a similar note, saying:

"The President's proposals represent so moderate an approach that if any one is weakened or eliminated, the remainder will be little more than sugar-water . . . the President should join us in fighting for something more than pap."

Incomprehensible

Wilkins said "It is incomprehensible to us here today and to millions of others far from here that the United States government, which can regulate the contents of a pill, apparently is powerless to prevent the physical abuse of citizens within its own borders."

Whitney M. Young Jr., executive director of the National Urban League, said "we must work together even more closely back home" and declared:

"That we meet here today, in common cause . . . is to the shame of those who have always blocked the progress of the brown American and those who would make deals, water down civil rights legislation, or take cowardly refuge in technical details around human rights . . ."

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, who is in a Donaldsonville, La., jail in connection with racial disturbances, sent a message saying:

"You have said to the world by your presence here . . . that in an age of thermonuclear bombs, violence is outmoded as a solution to the problems of men."

Adequate Action

Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union, AFL-CIO, said what is needed now is bold and adequate action "to square American democracy's performance with its promise of full citizenship rights and equal rights for all Americans." He said "the cause of freedom is on trial in America today and American democracy is on trial in the eyes of the world," and the struggle for freedom "cannot and should not wait for some distant tomorrow."

The religious aspect was introduced in the invocation by the most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Roman Catholic archbishop of Washington, whose prayer said:

"May the warmth of your love replace the coldness that springs from prejudice and bitterness . . . let us understand that simple justice demands that the rights of all be honored by every man . . . may we shun violence, knowing that the meek shall inherit the earth."

Rabbi Joachim Prinz, president of the American Jewish Congress, said in his speech "bigotry and hatred are not the most urgent problem. The most urgent, the most disgraceful problem is silence. A great people, who created a great civilization, has become a nation of silent on-lookers.

"America must not become a nation of on-lookers," Prinz said. "It must not remain silent."

Plea to Christians

The Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, vice chairman of the commission on religion and race of the National Council of Churches, said:

"If all the members and all the ministers of the constituency I represent here today were indeed ready to stand and march with you for jobs and freedom for the Negro people, together with all the Roman Catholic church and all the synagogues in America, the battle for full civil rights and dignity would already be won."

YOUTH'S SUNGLASSES . . . reflect symbols of march for freedom.

March Was: Carnival, Rally, Revival, Curious

By ARTHUR EDSON

Washington (AP) — Well, there has never been a crowd quite like the one that marched on Washington Wednesday.

For the atmosphere turned out to be part carnival, part political rally, part revival and part plain old curious.

In time one gets the feel of a crowd's mood: The angry crowd, anxious to be provoked so it can get out of hand; the excited crowd, a willing captive of the orator's magic.

Although this was labelled as a protest march, for better jobs, for housing, for freedom, Wednesday's gathering was surprisingly good humored and exuberant.

Curiously, it was so slow arriving that for a long time the most pressing question at the Washington Monument grounds was:

Where is everybody?

It was a delightful morning, cool and crisp, and strolling through the dew-dampened grass one was reminded of boyhood, and fetching the cows home from the pastures.

As late as 8:30 a.m., reporters probably outnumbered the marchers. The early birds acted like typical tourists. They stood in line, clutching their dimes, to take the elevator to the top of the Washton Monument.

"Best early morning crowd we've ever had here," a guard said. "Move right along, folks, so there won't be any gaps."

Slowly the crowds poured in.

It was easy to tell reporters from the marchers. Reporters, used to crowds, tended to press down for what would be a long, hot day; the marchers tended to dress up for a special occasion, a holiday.

Women marched down Constitution Avenue in chic dresses and high heeled shoes more appropriate for a party.

Oh, there were all types, of course. The beatniks, complete with beards and guitars, and the beatnikettes with the jeans and stringy hair. The old, seemingly a little baffled by it all. The weary, showing the results of an all night train ride.

At 10:28 the meeting became official. Roosevelt Johnson of East Orange, N.J., was requested to come around and pick up his lost son.

Although nearly every speaker reminded his audience of the seriousness of the cause, the singers seemed far more in tune with the general feeling. Josh White, Odetta, Peter, Paul and Mary sang songs that would cause an ogre to start clapping.

Home-Bound Buses Pelted

Baltimore (AP)—Three buses, homeward bound with demonstrators from the civil rights march on Washington Wednesday, were pelted with rocks just before they went through the Baltimore harbor tunnel.

Harbor tunnel police said that all the buses were from Connecticut.

One of the rocks crashed through the windshield of one bus and the other two buses were dented slightly, police said.

No one was injured in the incident, police said, and the buses continued on their way.

Harbor police said the buses did not carry freedom signs and doubted that the pelting had anything to do with the demonstrations.

Congressmen Reassuring

Washington (AP) — Leaders of the march on Washington called on the top men in in Congress Wednesday and got some reassuring words on prospects for passage of a strong civil rights bill this year.

The delegation spent two hours closeted with House and Senate leaders at three separate session. Lawmakers and marchers called their talks friendly and useful. But there was no sign that the demonstration had lessened southern opposition to such bills.

The giant demonstration a mile away appeared to quiet some of the normal buzz of activity around th capitol.

Many congressional offices were closed. Some congressmen gave their staffs a day off to avoid the jams of people downtown.

House attention focused on a resolution designed to avert a nationwide railroad walkout at midnight. Because of the deadline, the House went right to work on the measure and skipped the normal pre-business round of speechmaking.

A. Philip Randolph, the march director, led the delegation that met with congressional leaders.

The marchers conferred first with Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana. Mansfield said after that half-hour session no commitments were sought and none given.

Then they spent 40 minutes with Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and House GOP leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Their final—and longest—congressional visit: a 50-minute meeting with House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and House Democratic leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma.

McCormack told the delegation he thinks prospects are good for passage of a fair employment practices bill and a broadened provision authorizing government intervention in civil rights cases—if they are approved by the House Judiciary Committee.

The speaker said he told the marchers he would discuss those provisions with Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., of the judiciary committee and other congressional leaders.

"I told them that I was for an effective bill," he said.

As for the two provisions stressed by the marchers, McCormack said "if they were in the bill as reported by the House committee, I think they would pass the House."

Dirksen said he told the delegation he supports all President Kennedy's civil rights proposals except the measure which would ban discrimination in public accommodations.

"There was no pressure, no insistence," Dirksen said. "They expressed the hope that we could see the picture as they see it and help bring about enactment of the program."

Jefferson Fair Boasts Return Of Horse Show

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — "Some of us just felt kind of bad seeing the fair's old horse barn filled with hogs every year."

Then western-garbed Bill Lindsley nodded approval at the Jefferson County Fair's first horse show in years. As leader of the county's only 4-H horse club, he and assistant Ray Nispel had been the innovation's chief pushers.

"Sure, there are only 17 head to start with, but we're shooting for at least 30 or 40 next year," predicted Apaloosa-loving Lindsley. "We have five adult saddle clubs and not many years ago this county claimed more saddle horses than any in the state."

Limiting entries to youngsters nine to 18 whose horses are actual 4-H or FFA projects, fair officials like-wise were encouraged by the comeback start. Saddle veteran Alivin McCord, fair board member assigned to the horse entry, was among those recalling how the animals had once highlighted every fair.

"A 4-H'er has a lot more training responsibility with a horse than a calf, and compare the year-round pleasure of a riding horse with the cow kept in a feed lot."

A strong 150-head of junior fair cattle this year, however, seemingly defied Nispel's jesting predictions that "in time we'll even outdo the beef." County Agent Nell Dawes noted that entries were split 50-50 between beef and dairy.

Overall livestock made up "our biggest showing ever," according to veteran secretary S. M. Cressman. Frost and hail did cut into garden exhibits, somewhat.

Certainly none of the six market beef purple-ribbon winners found more pride in his calf than did Plymouth's John Nispel and Jerry Hacker in their grand champion mare and gelding. Top beef honors went to Terry Holz of Jansen, Robert Spilker of Powell, Dennis Grummert of Plymouth, and Fairburians Patricia Gill, Kathy Regnier and Lois Kugel.

A livestock parade Wednesday night wound up the three-day fair—and it wasn't the steers which led the way.

"Of course not," grinned Lindsley, "never saw a cow yet that could outrun a horse."

Rape Charges Filed Against Van Ness, 19

Omaha (AP) — A charge of forcible rape was filed Wednesday against Larry Van Ness, 19, Omaha, who already faces trial for motor vehicle homicide in connection with a double fatality accident.

Detectives said a 16-year-old girl accused Van Ness of raping her in a park. She said she met Van Ness a few days ago and he told her his name was Larry Williams. She said she had gone to a drive-in movie with Van Ness and several others Tuesday night and after the movie Van Ness dropped the others off, and drove to the park. He then told her his real name and discussed the accident Feb. 13 in which George Willinghan and his daughter, Sharon, were killed.

The girl said she asked Van Ness to take her home, but he refused and when she started to get out of the car he slapped her. He stopped her screams by putting his hand over her mouth. The assault took place in the car, she said and afterward Van Ness threatened to "get" her if she reported to police.

Search Continues For Furs Lost In Alliance Shop Theft

Alliance (AP)—Virtually without leads, officers continued their search Wednesday for the thieves who slipped out of an Alliance clothes shop with $2,700 worth of furs.

Sheriff Fred Marsh said "We have hardly anything to go on."

The 18 missing stoles were part of a display brought to Alliance by Lloyds of Denver. Charles Brewer, representative of Lloyds, said they disappeared Saturday evening from a wrapping room at the rear of Eleanor's shop between 4 and 5 p.m. while more expensive furs were being displayed at the front of the store.

The theft appeared to have taken place while the store owner, Mrs. Claud Pyle, was at a cafe eating dinner and Brewer had gone to the post office.

Police Chief Doug Thomas said it was presumed they were carried out of the rear of the store to a waiting car.

News of the theft caused considerable concern at Lakeside where almost a quarter million dollars worth of high fashion apparel including $190,000 in furs was being displayed in a special benefit style show. Guards were reinforced throughout the remainder of the showing and until the display was en route back to Bullocks Willshire of Los Angeles, which provided the display.

Two hunters spotted two of the big cats about 20 miles south of Valentine Tuesday.

The two men, Bobby Lord and Mark Mullen, were part of the group which had been combing the country south of Valentine since a girl spotted one cougar Sunday night.

Jefferson Fair Boasts Return Of Horse Show

She said she had gone to a drive-in movie with Van Ness and several others Tuesday night and after the movie Van Ness dropped the others off, and drove to the park. He then told her his real name and discussed the accident Feb. 13 in which George Willinghan and his daughter, Sharon, were killed.

The girl said she asked Van Ness to take her home, but he refused and when she started to get out of the car he slapped her. He stopped her screams by putting his hand over her mouth. The assault took place in the car, she said and afterward Van Ness threatened to "get" her if she reported to police.

Where We Go From Here

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Readers are aware of the fact that the power problems in Nebraska were not solved by the last Legislature. This bit of reality was shown this week at the meeting of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association (NREA). The rurals took two actions that point up both the current power problem in the state and one of long standing —the former demanding an early solution and the latter to be with us for some time.

First priority in our thought must be given the matter of additional generation of power for the state.

Far From Simple

This would seem to be a relatively simple thing but it is far from it. Both Consumers Public Power District and the Nebraska Public Power System (NPPS) could build another generation plant. It is possible that a fair amount of agreement could be reached on construction first by Consumers but this is not certain since rurals and the agencies that make up NPPS also have plans for additional power. The NREA injected another point when it urged Nebraska to give first consideration to the use of additional Bureau of Reclamation power.

This is where the situation stands now. The matter is an important one because the agency that develops its generation capacity at this time is further establishing itself as a permanent organization in the state's power system.

In this connection, eyes are focused on 1965 and the next meeting of the Legislature when the power setup in Nebraska might face another major revision. The issue occupied a great part of the time of the 1963 Legislature but the problem was not completely settled.

It is possible that existing agencies such as Consumers and NPPS might prefer to construct their own generation facilities before taking on additional bureau power. In so doing they would strengthen their position for any possible changes in 1965. This, however, would be a drastic and costly mistake. The rurals are correct in urging that the state obtain its needs first from the bureau, as power from this agency can be supplied at rates substantially lower than would be the case with our own construction of steam generation facilities or hydro-electric facilities. It will be a major responsibility of the state's Power Review Board to see to it that bureau power does not get shoved into the background for any political reasons.

It is not anticipated that the bureau can supply the state with all its needs for the immediate future. In addition to any allocation from the bureau, it is believed that we will need still more local generation of electricity. It would seem in this case that the Power Review Board would want to consider both current costs and the future structure of the state's generation and wholesale transmission setup. Fortunately, it may be possible to meet both of these requirements through one agency, Consumers Public Power District.

Consumers can effectively expand its power operations at Hallam and reportedly at a cost considerably less than any other agency might face in entering into a completely new generation facility. At the same time, Consumers is the logical vehicle to use in any future realignment of the state at the generation and transmission level of things. This envisions a merger at the wholesale power level, a step that should have been taken by the last Legislature.

This approach anticipates the return of agencies that make up the Nebraska Public Power System to a more limited operation. Rather than power distributors as they are through NPPS, the two agencies which constitute NPPS would become operators of the irrigation business from which their power is derived and sellers of that power at its point of origin.

Such an operation as this has proven to be most effective in the past by the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District, operating Kingsley Dam and Lake McConaughy on the North Platte River. This agency has been free of the turmoil that has enveloped other state power operations simply because it has not been thrown or thrown itself into useless competition with other groups. It simply sells its power product as a by-product of the flood control and irrigation program it operates and, therefore, finds itself at peace with the rest of the state.

Formula To Observe

The pattern is so clear that it is difficult to understand the myriad of proposals that are made for solving the state's power problems. It is hoped that the Power Review Board adopts a long-range objective toward this end and approves of those programs that further that objective. The last thing we should do is increase the competitive situation that already exists in too great a degree.

Broadly Based Responsibility

The series The Star has run in connection with the credit side of the state's economy gives evidence of the fact that we could be operating in Nebraska at a dangerous level. Bankruptcies have gone up sharply in the past 15 months and are costing merchants and other creditors more than $2 million a year in losses.

Added to this is the human side of the picture, family troubles coming from indebtedness and ending at times with the breakup of the marriage. The problem is not one that can be laid at the doorstep of any one group or institution. Rather, it is a matter that requires perhaps a greater sense of responsibility on the part of many people.

The merchant, small loan company, bank and the professional man cannot be the watchdog for everyone with whom they come in contact. They cannot make sure that each and every customer has the capacity to pay off in full the indebtedness he might want to take on.

But greater care in extending credit could well be in order. It is quite possible that throughout the nation we have made it far too easy and inviting for people to extend themselves beyond their means. It is not enough that we just shrug our shoulders and rely on everyone's taking care of himself.

The matter is important to the state because the state determines the maximum interest rates that will apply to the various forms of credit. The state should be concerned that it establish rates which are not so high as to permit credit operations in which great losses can be absorbed and poor credit risks thereby encouraged.

Old Age Health Plan Back

The House Ways and Means committee soon will open hearings on new versions of old age health insurance under social security. The event is less heralded this year though not less controversial.

The facts vary but little from those presented to Congress last session, but they do incline to support the social security approach.

The old, as before, are growing older and more numerous. The cost of healing is increasing. Alternative solutions have not proved themselves adequate. The effort by private insurance concerns to reduce premium costs by pooling risks produced some good, but could not get down to the level of Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Meantime, the effort of the Michigan Blue Cross to cover people over 65 at normal rates failed. The 1962 program covering 250,000 persons over 65 resulted in an $18 million loss. Higher rates had to be restored.

High hopes for the Kerr-Mills federal-state plan have been dimmed. The program is more costly than anticipated and the benefits from one state to another are not even. As the states find their costs onerous they are bringing more pressure on the medical service for lower fees. If the physicians dreaded federal intervention they are finding the states even more inclined to dictate to them.

There is this to the problem. Old age and medical needs are facts. They cannot be argued away according to the likes or dislikes of political or professional groups. As substitute plans are produced and fail the case for health insurance by social security becomes stronger. This is the substance of the progress report since Congress last dealt with the problem. Unless a more workable plan is devised opposition to social security measures will eliminate itself.

The Editorial Dilemma

A newspaper's right to suppress news was dealt with strongly but inconclusively by the professors of journalism during their annual convention here.

The question dealt mostly with the treatment of desegregation news. Many Southern editors ignored or greatly limited their coverage of local sit-ins and mass demonstrations, defending themselves by saying detailed coverage might have led to violence. They believed the public interest was best served by temporary suppression.

It is just as well that the professors failed to come up with a clear cut conclusion because there really isn't any.

Working editors know that the only criterion is to be found in the competence and conscience of the editor himself He has a general duty to present information as widely and truthfully as possible. But his vehicle is not expansive enough to publish all of it. What he omits he tends to suppress. What he determines to magnify does so at the expense of other news. It is the editorial dilemma which can never be neatly solved. In addition to this the editor carries a responsibility to serve the public interest. If minimizing a story avoids a fracture of that interest he is not wrong in using the blue pencil.

In the mid twenties in Nebraska the late Governor Adam McMullen, at the outset of his first day in office, was presented the record of more than 400 state banks which were either subject to closing or to drastic reorganization — a fact the public did not know. Gov. McMullen called in the state's pivotal publishers, gave them all the facts but reminded them that precipitous publication could start runs which might close all the banks in the state and bring on a deep economic crisis. The publishers forebore.

Who would say that either they or the governor did wrong, yet it was a case of suppression.

Bulgaria's Premier Follows Khrushchev

VARNA, BULGARIA— Communist leaders do not object to living in capitalistic surroundings, and Todor Zhivkov, secretary of the communist party of Bulgaria and premier of that country, has a summer place on the Black Sea which compares with Tito's private island in the Adriatic and Khrushchev's summer resting spot on the Black Sea.

All three, however, share these private estates with other communist leaders. Anyone high up in the party is welcome.

Tito's island is the resort of over a hundred wives, children, and top echelon of Yugoslavia, has an attractive swimming beach wired for sharks, and a series of beautiful macadam roads winding through lanes of olive trees and fields full of deer and pheasants.

Khrushchev's Black Sea resort has two guest houses for friends and is surrounded by pine trees. If anything, it is more rugged than Tito's island. Zhivkov of Bulgaria has taken over a palace, once occupied by the kings of Bulgaria, which stretches in beautiful lawns and well-kept terraces down to the Black Sea. Its sweep to the sea is reminiscent of the home with gold bathroom fixtures once occupied by Joseph P. Kennedy, father of the president, which swept down to the Potomac just outside Washington.

At the bottom of the rolling lawn are two bathing beaches, used by both the servants and party leaders who vacation at the one-time royal palace.

Zhivkov does not live in the palace himself, but in an apartment house to one side, apparently the one-time servants quarters for the Bulgarian royal family. Other vacationing officials live there too.

When I asked Premier Zhivlov what he had done before he got into politics, He replied: "For twelve years I was a printer. Then in 1938 I took up revolution as a profession. I was most unreliable and dangerous.

"I was imprisoned by the then prime minister, Georgiev, and severely tortured. Later, however, we became good friends and he came around to our way of thinking. In 1945 he even signed the order expropriating private property, including his own private property."

This and other questions, especially the problem of peace or war with Red China, the United States, and Russia were discussed quite frankly by the head of this energetic communist country, as will be set forth in a subsequent column.

Chickens Almost Fallout Proof—May Save People

NEW YORK — Couple of years ago, the nation's leading pessimists—or realists, depending on whose views you believe—erected fallout shelters in their backyards.

It is human nature to despise spending money on uncertain tragedy (would anyone buy life insurance if there were a 50-50 chance of mortal life everlasting?), so many shelter-owners made their defensive digs into multi-purpose structures.

"Until the bomb comes," an owner announced, his fallout shelter would be a hobby shop for the children. Others made their underground hideways the scene of cool parties in the summertime. I remember fondly the height of hedonism in shelters—the California model which was half a sealed escape from total destruction, and half a luxurious swimming pool. There was a window between. This meant that the fearful could cringe on one side, watching the fearless do the crawl on the other.

The all-out against fallout seems to have slowed down somewhat, although perhaps I have just not been looking at the right architectural magazines. In its place, we may have a new craze—much less expensive—for the people who think they can beat the bomb. It is chicken-raising.

☆ ☆ ☆

According to tests made by the nuclear medicine section, University of Chicago, chickens have been found to be highly resistant to radiation fallout. In atomic bomb tests, hens especially have been discovered to eliminate ission products more quickly than mammals—thus making themselves safely edible shortly after exposure to fallout.

It seems that radioactive strontium follows the pathway of calcium in the body. Thus, a hen can expel it through her eggshells.'

I forget. Was it hennypenny or chicken-licken who feared the sky was falling?

If they'd been able to read the scientific journals, they mightn't have been so panicked.

Speaking of animals and science, dog-lovers may be interested to know that canines have allergies, just as humans do.

During the season coming up shortly, some dogs will experience the same bleary red eyes, kerchoos, asthmatic wheeze and hay fever reactions that many Americans feel. More than that, they can develop skin rashes that itch pitifully.

So if your dog scratches furiously, he does not necessarily have fleas.

If he pants heavily, he is not necessarily in love.

If he has red eyes, he has not necessarily been boozing.

If he doesn't wag, he is not necessarily a social drag.

He's just human.

All too.

A report from scientists at the Cape Haze Marine Laboratory in Sarasota, Fla., who are experimenting to discover how sensitive sharks are to colors:

There is evidence that certain bright colors, used frequently on rafts and life jackets to aid rescuers in finding people floundering in the water, are appealing to sharks.

Many skin divers are so convinced that one particular vivid shade attracts sharks that they have dubbed it "um-yum yellow."

That's exactly the color of my snorkel mask and flippers

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: How do I get rid of corns on each small toe? a chiropodist gives me temporary relief, but sometimes only for a week. This condition has gone on for more than 25 years. Now it seems I should go to the hospital, and after surgery on my toes must not walk for three weeks. Having to work, I couldn't possibly do it. Any suggestions? —Y.H.

The most helpful advice I can give is to insist that you face facts and stop looking for some substitute for proper treatment of corns.

Dr. Molner

Corns are caused by pressure. Pressure comes from wearing the wrong shoes. You can remove the corns, but unless you remove that pressure, more will grow.

Now then, what to do? Tell your employer that your doctor says you must go to the hospital. Once you have had your feet repaired, find out what kind of shoes to wear, and get them.

Shoes that are too short or too narrow or both are the cause of corns. High heels force the feet downward into the shoes, and it is quite unusual to find a woman without at least some corn formation.

Faulty foot mechanics — a weak arch, flat feet, hammer toe, etc., add to the trouble.

Sometimes metatarsal pads, by changing the position of the feet, help a great deal, but it is wishful thinking to expect relief without wearing larger and different shaped shoes — with emphasis on lower heels.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 22 and have been plagued with cold sores ever since I was knee high. I have tried just about everything, but nothing helps. Have you any suggestions? —S.A.

It is fairly well established that cold sores are caused by a virus but why some people get them and others don't is another matter. Certain virology laboratories are studying the problem.

The best solution (aside from using a camphor lotion to dry up a cold sore after it appears) is to have a smallpox vaccination. Cold sores and smallpox both are virus diseases. Why a vaccination for one helps prevent the other I do not know. Sometimes it helps, sometimes it doesn't. But it's an easy remedy, and if it works, count yourself fortunate.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes dehydration of the body?—M.A.B.

Loss of water, but the causes are many. A man out in the sun, with no water to drink, would soon be dehydrated, of course. In the shade, it would take longer.

In ordinary life, continued high fever is the commonest cause. We "dehydrate" by exercise in hot weather but we promptly correct it by getting thirsty and drinking water. Other causes can be diabetic acidosis, malnutrition, diarrhea and vomiting. "Drying out" the body for a few hours isn't serious because thirst makes us correct it. But if some medical problem exists, it can be serious.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother underwent gall bladder surgery. Stones were removed and adhesions corrected. She is now under a strict diet to prevent indigestion and heartburn. I thought surgery relieved these symptoms and a person could eat normally. Is this correct? —E.B.

The gall bladder is a reservoir for an extra supply of bile (which the liver keeps producing). With the gall bladder removed, this extra supply is not available. Therefore (depending on original eating habits) a patient may have to be careful not to eat too much, and especially not too much fat, but that's about all.

Habitually heavy eaters have to change their habits after such surgery. Light or moderate eaters usually continue to eat the same way. Your mother may have trouble in the stomach proper which was not corrected by the gall bladder surgery. I refer to ulcer, spasm, hyperacidity or possibly hiatal hernia.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been arguing with my mother about the best way for her to quit smoking. I say she should stop completely, once and for all. She says she should reduce gradually until she's down to one, and then stop. Which way is best? —L.H.

I quit "cold turkey." It worked for me. I know people who have reduced their smoking, although I don't recall any who have succeeded in cutting down to one and then stopping. The latter usually decide, somewhere along the line, that they have cut down enough.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 20 and have a rather large and protruding Adam's apple. It makes me self-conscious. Can anything be done to correct or lessen this "affliction?" —D.G.

"I'm afraid not. The Adam's apple is a structure made of cartilage over the windpipe. It is much more prominent in men than in women, and especially in lean men. At 20, you may be due to put on some weight, I'd just try to forget about it, otherwise.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that cola drinks are bad for the liver? I know they contain caffein. —H.W.

Overindulgence can have the same effect as too much coffee — edginess, wakefulness. But they can't hurt the liver.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Opposes Widening

Lincoln, Neb.

The matter of a 26-foot versus a 44-foot width for R Street from 48th to 56th has again been introduced to the City Council. We fail to see why this change is necessary.

A 44-foot street is a width normally used in locations zoned for business and for arterial streets. The traffic in the area can be adequately carried by O and Vine Streets, especially after the improvements currently planned for these arterials are completed.

The 1980 Comprehensive Plan, which was designed to provide orderly development of the city, shows R in this area as a 26-foot residential street. This street from 54th to 56th was paved only two years ago and in accordance with the Comprehensive Plan is 26 feet wide.

The mayor, the city planning director, the city traffic engineer, the superintendent of schools and Culler PTA have joined residents of the area in opposing this change. How can the council members who voted for a wide R Street justify their position against these people and for the few businessmen who would like to have R Street widened for their personal gain?

The presidential hopes and plans of some

Go down the drain each Leap Year,

Their busts, identified by name, should

This galaxy, when on display, in orderly

Should soon become a popular attraction,
Where visitors could while away an afternoon each rainy day,
Reviving vain regrets—or satisfaction!

Equal Rights

Bennet, Neb.

It took 100 years for some of us so-called 100 per cent Americans to realize that we are not one hundred percenters by a long shot.

Had Lincoln lived, no doubt he would have informed us what he meant by freeing the slaves. The sad part is that a lack of compassion is found among so many who should know better. That Negroes must not be denied their rights because of their color seems to me not only just but logical. I cannot understand how anyone can think that Negroes, who are asked to die for their country and who pay taxes the same as any of us, should be denied any rights available to others.

I am not unaware that there are sociological differences between many Negroes and whites, that there is much the Negro community needs to do to raise moral and educational levels among their own people. But I'm aware that many of these failures of the Negro community have been derived from the injustices I believe must be eradicated.

I certainly do not approve of violence in demonstrations, whether it is initiated among whites or colored. I do not believe demonstrations that take away from the rights of others are justified.

But basically I believe that we must not in any way penalize men because the pigmentation of their skin is different from our own.

The pattern is so clear that it is difficult to understand the myriad of proposals that are made for solving the state's power problems. It is hoped that the Power Review Board adopts a long-range objective toward this end and approves of those programs that further that objective. The last thing we should do is increase the competitive situation that already exists in too great a degree.

Broadly Based Responsibility

The series The Star has run in connection with the credit side of the state's economy gives evidence of the fact that we could be operating in Nebraska at a dangerous level. Bankruptcies have gone up sharply in the past 15 months and are costing merchants and other creditors more than $2 million a year in losses.

Added to this is the human side of the picture, family troubles coming from indebtedness and ending at times with the breakup of the marriage. The problem is not one that can be laid at the doorstep of any one group or institution. Rather, it is a matter that requires perhaps a greater sense of responsibility on the part of many people.

The merchant, small loan company, bank and the professional man cannot be the watchdog for everyone with whom they come in contact. They cannot make sure that each and every customer has the capacity to pay off in full the indebtedness he might want to take on.

But greater care in extending credit could well be in order. It is quite possible that throughout the nation we have made it far too easy and inviting for people to extend themselves beyond their means. It is not enough that we just shrug our shoulders and rely on everyone's taking care of himself.

The matter is important to the state because the state determines the maximum interest rates that will apply to the various forms of credit. The state should be concerned that it establish rates which are not so high as to permit credit operations in which great losses can be absorbed and poor credit risks thereby encouraged.

Old Age Health Plan Back

The House Ways and Means committee soon will open hearings on new versions of old age health insurance under social security. The event is less heralded this year though not less controversial.

The facts vary but little from those presented to Congress last session, but they do incline to support the social security approach.

The old, as before, are growing older and more numerous. The cost of healing is increasing. Alternative solutions have not proved themselves adequate. The effort by private insurance concerns to reduce premium costs by pooling risks produced some good, but could not get down to the level of Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Meantime, the effort of the Michigan Blue Cross to cover people over 65 at normal rates failed. The 1962 program covering 250,000 persons over 65 resulted in an $18 million loss. Higher rates had to be restored.

High hopes for the Kerr-Mills federal-state plan have been dimmed. The program is more costly than anticipated and the benefits from one state to another are not even. As the states find their costs onerous they are bringing more pressure on the medical service for lower fees. If the physicians dreaded federal intervention they are finding the states even more inclined to dictate to them.

There is this to the problem. Old age and medical needs are facts. They cannot be argued away according to the likes or dislikes of political or professional groups. As substitute plans are produced and fail the case for health insurance by social security becomes stronger. This is the substance of the progress report since Congress last dealt with the problem. Unless a more workable plan is devised opposition to social security measures will eliminate itself.

The Editorial Dilemma

A newspaper's right to suppress news was dealt with strongly but inconclusively by the professors of journalism during their annual convention here.

The question dealt mostly with the treatment of desegregation news. Many Southern editors ignored or greatly limited their coverage of local sit-ins and mass demonstrations, defending themselves by saying detailed coverage might have led to violence. They believed the public interest was best served by temporary suppression.

It is just as well that the professors failed to come up with a clear cut conclusion because there really isn't any.

Working editors know that the only criterion is to be found in the competence and conscience of the editor himself. He has a general duty to present information as widely and truthfully as possible. But his vehicle is not expansive enough to publish all of it. What he omits he tends to suppress. What he determines to magnify does so at the expense of other news. It is the editorial dilemma which can never be neatly solved. In addition to this the editor carries a responsibility to serve the public interest. If minimizing a story avoids a fracture of that interest he is not wrong in using the blue pencil.

In the mid twenties in Nebraska the late Governor Adam McMullen, at the outset of his first day in office, was presented the record of more than 400 state banks which were either subject to closing or to drastic reorganization — a fact the public did not know. Gov. McMullen called in the state's pivotal publishers, gave them all the facts but reminded them that precipitous publication could start runs which might close all the banks in the state and bring on a deep economic crisis. The publishers forebore.

Who would say that either they or the governor did wrong, yet it was a case of suppression.

Bulgaria's Premier Follows Khrushchev

VARNA, BULGARIA— Communist leaders do not object to living in capitalistic surroundings, and Todor Zhivkov, secretary of the communist party of Bulgaria and premier of that country, has a summer place on the Black Sea which compares with Tito's private island in the Adriatic and Khrushchev's summer resting spot on the Black Sea.

All three, however, share these private estates with other communist leaders. Anyone high up in the party is welcome.

Tito's island is the resort of over a hundred wives, children, and top echelon of Yugoslavia, has an attractive swimming beach wired for sharks, and a series of beautiful macadam roads winding through lanes of olive trees and fields full of deer and pheasants.

Khrushchev's Black Sea resort has two guest houses for friends and is surrounded by pine trees. If anything, it is more rugged than Tito's island. Zhivkov of Bulgaria has taken over a palace, once occupied by the kings of Bulgaria, which stretches in beautiful lawns and well-kept terraces down to the Black Sea. Its sweep to the sea is reminiscent of the home with gold bathroom fixtures once occupied by Joseph P. Kennedy, father of the president, which swept down to the Potomac just outside Washington.

At the bottom of the rolling lawn are two bathing beaches, used by both the servants and party leaders who vacation at the one-time royal palace.

Zhivkov does not live in the palace himself, but in an apartment house to one side, apparently the one-time servants quarters for the Bulgarian royal family. Other vacationing officials live there too.

When I asked Premier Zhivlov what he had done before he got into politics, He replied: "For twelve years I was a printer. Then in 1938 I took up revolution as a profession. I was most unreliable and dangerous.

"I was imprisoned by the then prime minister, Georgiev, and severely tortured. Later, however, we became good friends and he came around to our way of thinking. In 1945 he even signed the order expropriating private property, including his own private property."

This and other questions, especially the problem of peace or war with Red China, the United States, and Russia were discussed quite frankly by the head of this energetic communist country, as will be set forth in a subsequent column.

Chickens Almost Fallout Proof—May Save People

NEW YORK — Couple of years ago, the nation's leading pessimists—or realists, depending on whose views you believe—erected fallout shelters in their backyards.

It is human nature to despise spending money on uncertain tragedy (would anyone buy life insurance if there were a 50-50 chance of mortal life everlasting?), so many shelter-owners made their defensive digs into multi-purpose structures.

"Until the bomb comes," an owner announced, his fallout shelter would be a hobby shop for the children. Others made their underground hideways the scene of cool parties in the summertime. I remember fondly the height of hedonism in shelters—the California model which was half a sealed escape from total destruction, and half a luxurious swimming pool. There was a window between. This meant that the fearful could cringe on one side, watching the fearless do the crawl on the other.

The all-out against fallout seems to have slowed down somewhat, although perhaps I have just not been looking at the right architectural magazines. In its place, we may have a new craze—much less expensive—for the people who think they can beat the bomb. It is chicken-raising.

☆ ☆ ☆

According to tests made by the nuclear medicine section, University of Chicago, chickens have been found to be highly resistant to radiation fallout. In atomic bomb tests, hens especially have been discovered to eliminate ission products more quickly than mammals—thus making themselves safely edible shortly after exposure to fallout.

It seems that radioactive strontium follows the pathway of calcium in the body. Thus, a hen can expel it through her eggshells.

I forget. Was it henny-penny or chicken-licken who feared the sky was falling?

If they'd been able to read the scientific journals, they mightn't have been so panicked.

Speaking of animals and science, dog-lovers may be interested to know that canines have allergies, just as humans do.

During the season coming up shortly, some dogs will experience the same bleary red eyes, kerchoos, asthmatic wheeze and hay fever reactions that many Americans feel. More than that, they can develop skin rashes that itch pitifully.

So if your dog scratches furiously, he does not necessarily have fleas.

If he pants heavily, he is not necessarily in love.

If he has red eyes, he has not necessarily been boozing.

If he doesn't wag, he is not necessarily a social drag.

He's just human.

All too.

A report from scientists at the Cape Haze Marine Laboratory in Sarasota, Fla., who are experimenting to discover how sensitive sharks are to colors:

There is evidence that certain bright colors, used frequently on rafts and life jackets to aid rescuers in finding people floundering in the water, are appealing to sharks.

Many skin divers are so convinced that one particular vivid shade attracts sharks that they have dubbed it "um-yum yellow."

That's exactly the color of my snorkel mask and flippers.

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M. D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Mohner: How do I get rid of corns on each small toe? a chiropodist gives me temporary relief, but sometimes only for a week. This condition has gone on for more than 25 years. Now it seems I should go to the hospital, and after surgery on my toes must not walk for three weeks. Having to work, I couldn't possibly do it. Any suggestions? —Y.H.

The most helpful advice I can give is to insist that you face facts and stop looking for some substitute for proper treatment of corns.

Dr. Molner

Corns are caused by pressure. Pressure comes from wearing the wrong shoes. You can remove the corns, but unless you remove that pressure, more will grow.

Now then, what to do? Tell your employer that your doctor says you must go to the hospital. Once you have had your feet repaired, find out what kind of shoes to wear, and get them.

Shoes that are too short or too narrow or both are the cause of corns. High heels force the feet downward into the shoes, and it is quite unusual to find a woman without at least some corn formation.

Faulty foot mechanics — a weak arch, flat feet, hammer toe, etc., add to the trouble.

Sometimes metatarsal pads, by changing the position of the feet, help a great deal, but it is wishful thinking to expect relief without wearing larger and different shaped shoes — with emphasis on lower heels.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 22 and have been plagued with cold sores ever since I was knee high. I have tried just about everything, but nothing helps. Have you any suggestions? —S.A.

It is fairly well established that cold sores are caused by a virus but why some people get them and others don't is another matter. Certain virology laboratories are studying the problem.

The best solution (aside from using a camphor lotion to dry up a cold sore after it appears) is to have a smallpox vaccination. Cold sores and smallpox both are virus diseases. Why a vaccination for one helps prevent the other I do not know. Sometimes it helps, sometimes it doesn't. But it's an easy remedy, and if it works, count yourself fortunate.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes dehydration of the body?—M.A.B.

Loss of water, but the causes are many. A man out in the sun, with no water to drink, would soon be dehydrated, of course. In the shade, it would take longer.

In ordinary life, continued high fever is the commonest cause. We "dehydrate" by exercise in hot weather but we promptly correct it by getting thirsty and drinking water. Other causes can be diabetic acidosis, malnutrition, diarrhea and vomiting. "Drying out" the body for a few hours isn't serious because thirst makes us correct it. But if some medical problem exists, it can be serious.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother underwent gall bladder surgery. Stones were removed and adhesions corrected. She is now under a strict diet to prevent indigestion and heartburn. I thought surgery relieved these symptoms and a person could eat normally. Is this correct? —E.B.

The gall bladder is a reservoir for an extra supply of bile (which the liver keeps producing). With the gall bladder removed, this extra supply is not available. Therefore (depending on original eating habits) a patient may have to be careful not to eat too much, and especially not too much fat, but that's about all.

Habitually heavy eaters have to change their habits after such surgery. Light or moderate eaters usually continue to eat the same way. Your mother may have trouble in the stomach proper which was not corrected by the gall bladder surgery. I refer to ulcer, spasm, hyperacidity or possibly hiatal hernia.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been arguing with my mother about the best way for her to quit smoking. I say she should stop completely, once and for all. She says she should reduce gradually until she's down to one, and then stop. Which way is best? —L.H.

I quit "cold turkey." It worked for me. I know people who have reduced their smoking, although I don't recall any who have succeeded in cutting down to one and then stopping. The latter usually decide, somewhere along the line, that they have cut down enough.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 20 and have a rather large and protruding Adam's apple. It makes me self-conscious. Can anything be done to correct or lessen this "affliction?" —D.G.

"I'm afraid not. The Adam's apple is a structure made of cartilage over the windpipe. It is much more prominent in men than in women, and especially in lean men. At 20, you may be due to put on some weight, I'd just try to forget about it, otherwise.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that cola drinks are bad for the liver? I know they contain caffein. —H.W.

Overindulgence can have the same effect as too much coffee — edginess, wakefulness. But they can't hurt the liver.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Opposes Widening

Lincoln, Neb.

The matter of a 26-foot versus a 44-foot width for R Street from 48th to 56th has again been introduced to the City Council. We fail to see why this change is necessary.

A 44-foot street is a width normally used in locations zoned for business and for arterial streets. The traffic in the area can be adequately carried by O and Vine Streets, especially after the improvements currently planned for these arterials are completed.

The 1980 Comprehensive Plan, which was designed to provide orderly development of the city, shows R in this area as a 26-foot residential street. This street from 54th to 56th was paved only two years ago and in accordance with the Comprehensive Plan is 26 feet wide.

The mayor, the city planning director, the city traffic engineer, the superintendent of schools and Culler PTA have joined residents of the area in opposing this change. How can the council members who voted for a wide R Street justify their position against these people and for the few businessmen who would like to have R Street widened for their personal gain?

The Record

Lincoln, Neb.

Known to all is the Soviets' 30-year record of double-dealing and Khrushchev's boast that he will destroy us. Yet ardent liberal W. T. Davis urges us to sign the test bomb treaty because "Khrushchev has been acting pretty decent of late."

Let us pray that this naive type of thinking is not taken seriously in Congress.

The Traps

Ansley, Neb.

I had to wait years to see the real version of "The Spider and the Fly." The lines went something like this: "Will you walk into my parlor, said the spider to the fly. 'Tis the prettiest little parlor that ever you did spy."

In real life, many nations as well as individuals are trapped unexpectedly in the same way. So when I saw the spider closing in on the fly in the web, I knew that "seeing was believing," even if we do see in time.

Lest We Forget

Lincoln, Neb.

The presidential hopes and plans of soon-forgotten also-rans
Go down the drain each Leap Year, in November.
Their busts, identified by name, should occupy a Hall of Fame
To honor those whose names we can't remember.

This galaxy, when on display, in orderly and proud array,
Should soon become a popular attraction,
Where visitors could while away an afternoon each rainy day,
Reviving vain regrets—or satisfaction!

In William Jennings Bryan's day (to tie the score of Henry Clay),
He lost three times before he waived his claim.
Tom Dewey made his second try—then on his heels came Adlai,
Who duplicated Dewey's claim to fame.

Most also-rans we soon forget, but Eisenhower's one-time pet
Has plans he would be wiser to abandon.
In '64 the Comeback Kid must duplicate what Dewey did
Or sink into obscurity—like Landon!

Equal Rights

Bennet, Neb.

It took 100 years for some of us so-called 100 per cent Americans to realize that we are not one hundred percenters by a long shot.

Had Lincoln lived, no doubt he would have informed us what he meant by freeing the slaves. The sad part is that a lack of compassion is found among so many who should know better. That Negroes must not be denied their rights because of their color seems to me not only just but logical. I cannot understand how anyone can think that Negroes, who are asked to die for their country and who pay taxes the same as any of us, should be denied any rights available to others.

I am not unaware that there are sociological differences between many Negroes and whites, that there is much the Negro community needs to do to raise moral and educational levels among their own people. But I'm aware that many of these failures of the Negro community have been derived from the injustices I believe must be eradicated.

I certainly do not approve of violence in demonstrations, whether it is initiated among whites or colored. I do not believe demonstrations that take away from the rights of others are justified.

But basically I believe that we must not in any way penalize men because the pigmentation of their skin is different from our own.

Incentive, Not Creative Ability, Wanes With Advancing Years

By ROBERT PETERSON

What is man's most creative period? Various studies show that the greatest contributions in such fields as chemistry, physics, medicine, industry, and art have been made by men and women between the ages of 35 and 45.

But wait a minute. Don't interpret this to mean that creativity per se declines with age. What happens is simply a diminution of incentive after a reasonable measure of fame has been achieved.

I've interviewed many distinguished elders who made their marks in early years. When I've asked if they noted a decline in creative ability, they've hastened to say in effect, "Not at all, but there's less incentive and motivation when you've won a certain amount of recognition."

In talking with playwright Noel Coward, 63, I noted that his best plays and musicals were written when he was a mere lad in his 20's and 30's. Were his creative powers waning?

"Not at all," he replied firmly, "in fact, I could do much better today. But I don't feel the old incentive. I've achieved the things I wanted and there's no reason now to push so hard."

So let's not assume that folks past 60 lack the goods for noteworthy achievements. If an individual hasn't yet achieved recognition he should be encouraged to ply his talents confident that his creative powers may, in fact, be enriched by maturity.

A few weeks ago this column commented on those who seem determined to grow old disgracefully. A woman writes, "If we want to grow old disagreeably, why not? I have just passed my 74th birthday and for the first time in my life have shrugged off all effectation and false pretenses. Oh, what a relief to drop the humbug and dress as Iplease and say what I think on a string of controversial topics from birth control to Kennedy's clan.

"Don't worry, I'm no menace to society or neighbors. In fact, I may turn out to be an asset for there's so much hypocrisy floating around we need to be steered back to truth and reality. At any rate I'm enjoying myself, and rumor has it I'm the first authentic eccentric this town has had since the turn of the century."

Profitable hobby tip: Egon Gerstl, 65, a retired import-export executive in Palm Beach, Fla., loves beachcombing. Two years ago he became fascinated with the rocks he would occasionally find which had been eroded by the surf into free-form shapes suggestive of human forms ranging from Madonnas to truck drivers.

It occurred to him that by adding just a few touches of paint and mounting them on a pedestal he could transform these rocks into striking bits of sculpture.

This has now become his chief retirement activity, and his talent for turning a surf-washed stone into sculpture is such that he has already been accorded two one-man shows. And he's not shy about pricing. The least expensive Gerstl sculpture will cost you $100.

Nik Nixes U.S. Trip Possibility

Brioni, Yugoslavia (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev Wednesday squelched speculation that he plans a trip to the United States this year.

He said he will go to Cuba "whenever I feel like it."

Khrushchev lost his temper frequently with Western newsmen in a news conference and refused to answer some of their questions.

Western observers had said Khrushchev, who is holding talks with President Tito on this Adriatic island, had been considering a trip to New York to attend the United Nations General Assembly next month, and possibly a trip to Italy.

'No Plans'

Khrushchev, in a joint news conference with Tito, did not mention Italy but said he has "no plans to go to the United Nations General Assembly this year." His last U.N. visit, which caused an uproar and an unprecedented security problem for New York police, was in 1960.

As to Cuba, which Khrushchev never has visited, he said: "I will go with pleasure whenever I feel like it."

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro spent several weeks in the Soviet Union last spring and re-extended an invitation to Khrushchev to come to the island.

Tito May Attend

Tito told the conference he may attend the General Assembly after a Latin American tour beginning next month. But his guest dominated the proceedings.

Khrushchev showed his anger several times when newsmen asked him touchy questions.

Asked by a British correspondent if he found Yugoslav workers lived better than Soviet workers, Khrushchev snapped back: "Who are you?" and used vulgar language in refusing to answer.

When a Greek newsman asked Khrushchev if he had discussed the Balkans with Tito, Khrushchev replied: "Why are you poking your nose in our business?"

Are We Chinese?

Asked if they discussed the Sino-Soviet split, Khrushchev said: "Are we Chinese? Go to China and find out for yourselves."

He told a questioner that Yugoslav-Soviet relations were "our own business."

An American newsman asked him whether it was true he had said he would bury capitalist newsmen.

"I never said I would bury you, because after capitalism is buried, you will all serve communism," was Khrushchev's angry reply.

Tito broke in to say that "burial" should not be taken literally.

Talked About Travel

Khrushchev spoke at length about travel.

He said "I am a constant wanderer" when asked about a possible trip to Hungary.

He said it would be a pleasure to visit Fidel Castro's island, which has had a heavy influx of high Soviet officials.

"America is a free country," Khrushchev said. "But it does not give permission for newspapermen to go to Cuba. But you can go from the Soviet Union — provided the Cubans will let you in."

The Soviet premier also said he may visit Egypt but set no date. Observers had based their predictions on a Khrushchev U.N. visit on the possibility of a large gathering of world leaders there when the General Assembly convenes next month.

Southern Farmer Gets 6 Months For Fatally Caning Negro Woman

Hagerstown, Md. (UPI) — William Zantzinger, 24-year-old southern aristocrat tobacco farmer, Wednesday was sentenced to six months in prison for fatally caning a Negro barmaid.

The sentence is not to begin until September 15, to allow Zantzinger to finish gathering his tobacco crop.

Zantzinger, also received a total of $625 in fines. He was convicted of manslaughter late in June by a three-judge panel meeting here.

Strikes Bellboy

The incident occurred at a charity ball given in Baltimore Feb. 9. He and his wife arrived at the ball late in the evening and, according to testimony, Zantzinger proceeded to strike a bellboy with a toy cane he had bought a few weeks earlier at an agricultural show.

Then, after the Zantzingers took seats at the affair, he struck a waitress, Ethel Hill, with his cane and said to her, "Hey, black girl, bring me a drink."

Next, he demanded a drink from Mrs. Hatti Carroll, 51, also a barmaid. She replied, "Just a minute, sir."

He then said, "When I order a drink, I want it now, you —— ——." Mrs. Carroll replied, "I'm hurrying as fast as I can."

Strikes Mrs. Carroll

Zantzinger then said, "I don't have to take that kind of stuff off a nigger," and struck Mrs. Carroll with his toy cane. The woman had a medical history of heart trouble, and she died eight hours later.

The case was heard here on a change of venue from Baltimore. The state originally sought a murder conviction but the charge was later reduced to manslaughter.

For the assault on Ethel Hill Zantzinger was fined $100; for the assault on the bellhop George Gessel $25. Besides the six-months sentence, the manslaughter conviction carries a fine of $500.

Zantzinger's attorneys have 30 days to appeal the verdict. If they do, he will be held in $200 bond.

City Planners OK A&H Industry Park

The City-County Planning Commission gave unanimous approval to its entire eight-item agenda Wednesday, including a preliminary plat of the A & H Industrial Park.

Herbert Heumann, appearing for the A & H proposals, noted that a 120-foot right-of-way running through the tract would be deeded to the city for future use of the proposed Northeast Radial Highway. The tract is located between 44th and 48th, Hartley and Benton.

Commissioners also voiced approval of vacation of a portion of Avery Ave. west of 14th and plans to relocate it north of the University of Nebraska's power plant.

Cooling Move

Changing the street's location, a university official said, would allow the future construction of "cooling towers" to the south of the plant for air-conditioning of the Twin Towers dormitory, the Capitol building and other university structures.

Commission members approved the change, but required the university to dedicate a 40-foot right-of-way for the new street rather than the 30-foot right-of-way offered by the university.

Also approved:

—Special permit for an off-street parking lot on the northeast corner of Cotner and N to M W. Taylor, allowing access to the lot from N against the recommendation of the planning director.

—Special permit for a parking lot for King Dollar near 27th and Vine, allowing access on 26th against recommendations of the planning director.

—Special permit for a parking lot at the southwest corner of 44th and Vine to the Stuart Investment Co.

—Vacation of an alley between 17th and St. Mary's Ave., south of South St. to allow construction of hospital facilities.

—Vacation of portions of Garfield and an alley in vicinity of 4th and A. Objection of property owners because of construction of a cement plant in the area, was voiced by attorney Max Kier.

—Vacation of portions of 71st and 72nd located in the preliminary plat of Keenan's Addition near 70th and Colby.

Slashed Bodies Of 2 Young Women Found

New York (AP)—The slashed and partially clothed bodies of two young women, bound hand and foot, were found Wednesday night in their ransacked four-room apartment on East 88th Street.

The victims were Janice Wylie, 21, and Emily Hoffert, 23.

The bodies were discovered by Miss Wylie's father, Max Wylie, an author and a brother of author Phillip Wylie. He entered the apartment with the girls' roommate, Patricia Tolles, who had just arrived home from work.

Detective Capt. Robert Poetig attributed the slayings to burglars —"and pretty sadistic ones."

Miss Tolles, 21, told detectives that when she left for work this morning the other two girls still were dressing.

Miss Wylie's father went to the apartment near Madison Avenue when he was unable to raise his daughter by telephone at her office. He and Miss Tolles arrived simultaneously.

The bodies, in a bedroom, were bound on the wrists and ankles with strips ripped from a bedsheet. Detectives said the bedroom had been "almost torn apart."

The rest of the third floor apartment also had been searched.

Land Value Up

Washington (UPI)—Farm and non-farm demand for rural property is pushing up the price of land. Agriculture department experts predict that the average value of farm land will rise to $135 an acre by next March 1, from $130 a year earlier.

Youth Confab Registrations Run 'Heavy'

Registrations for the forthcoming third Nebraska Conference of Youth are running so heavy "our problem now is to accommodate all of them," Miss Susanne Plum, conference chairman, reported Wednesday.

The conference will be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln Sept. 18-19.

Kenneth E. Shibata, executive director for the Nebraska Council of Youth and the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth, the sponsoring organizations, said arrangements have been made also to use the Warren Methodist church auditorium.

Education First

More than 500 Nebraska high school and college youth have registered for the conference. More than 70% of the registrants have listed "education" as their first choice of discussion topics.

Miss Plum said conference study will cover three areas—recreation, education and economic opportunities.

Some 100 adult sponsors, school representatives, state senators, educators, businessmen and other specialists are expected to participate.

Irvingdale Shelter Site Of Humidity Heat Experiment

For the third time in recent months, Lincoln has been selected by the federal government as the site for experimentation in humidity and temperature conditions.

According to Lincoln Lancaster County Civil Defense Director R. A. Vestecka, staff members of the University of Florida engineering department will begin experiments at Irvingdale Shelter at 18th and Van Dorn Thursday.

The experiments are related to heat and humidity generated by large groups of shelter occupants and ventilation requirements.

The final purpose of the program is to determine the minimum amount of mechanical equipment necessary for ventilation in fallout shelters.

The shelter will be closed to tours until conclusion of the testing expected by Sept. 19, Vestecka said.

City Planners OK A&H Industry Park

The City-County Planning Commission gave unanimous approval to its entire eight-item agenda Wednesday, including a preliminary plat of the A & H Industrial Park.

Herbert Heumann, appearing for the A & H proposals, noted that a 120-foot right-of-way running through the tract would be deeded to the city for future use of the proposed Northeast Radial Highway. The tract is located between 44th and 48th, Hartley and Benton.

Commissioners also voiced approval of vacation of a portion of Avery Ave. west of 14th and plans to relocate it north of the University of Nebraska's power plant.

Cooling Move

Changing the street's location, a university official said, would allow the future construction of "cooling towers" to the south of the plant for air-conditioning of the Twin Towers dormitory, the Capitol building and other university structures.

Commission members approved the change, but required the university to dedicate a 40-foot right-of-way for the new street rather than the 30-foot right-of-way offered by the university.

Also approved:

—Special permit for an off-street parking lot on the northeast corner of Cotner and N to M.W. Taylor, allowing access to the lot from N against the recommendation of the planning director.

—Special permit for a parking lot for King Dollar near 27th and Vine, allowing access on 26th against recommendation of the planning director.

—Special permit for a parking lot at the southwest corner of 46th and Vine to the Stuart Investment Co.

—Vacation of an alley between 17th and St. Mary's Ave., south of South St. to allow construction of hospital facilities.

—Vacation of portions of Garfield and an alley in vicinity of 4th and A. Objection of property owners because of construction of a cement plant in the area, was voiced by attorney Max Kier.

—Vacation of portions of 71st and 72nd located in the preliminary plat of Keenan's Addition near 70th and Colby.

Slashed Bodies Of 2 Young Women Found

New York (AP)—The slashed and partially clothed bodies of two young women, bound hand and foot, were found Wednesday night in their ransacked four-room apartment on East 88th Street.

The victims were Janice Wylie, 21, and Emily Hoffert, 23.

The bodies were discovered by Miss Wylie's father, Max Wylie, an author and a brother of author Phillip Wylie. He entered the apartment with the girls' roommate, Patricia Tolles, who had just arrived home from work.

Detective Capt. Robert Poetig attributed the slayings to burglars —"and pretty sadistic ones."

Miss Tolles, 21, told detectives that when she left for work this morning the other two girls still were dressing.

Miss Wylie's father went to the apartment near Madison Avenue when he was unable to raise his daughter by telephone at her office. He and Miss Tolles arrived simultaneously.

The bodies, in a bedroom, were bound on the wrists and ankles with strips ripped from a bedsheet. Detectives said the bedroom had been "almost torn apart."

The rest of the third floor apartment also had been searched.

Youth Confab Registrations Run 'Heavy'

Registrations for the forthcoming third Nebraska Conference of Youth are running so heavy "our problem now is to accommodate all of them," Miss Susanne Plum, conference chairman, reported Wednesday.

The conference will be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln Sept. 18-19.

AEJ Picks Barrett Its President-Elect

Edward W. Barrett, dean of the Columbia University Pulitzer Graduate School of Journalism, was named president-elect of the Association for Education in Journalism Wednesday.

During the coming year the association will be headed by William Porter of the University of Michigan. Porter was selected a year ago. He succeeds retiring President Theodore Peterson of the University of Illinois.

Barrett was named during the fourth day of the group's five-day national convention at the Nebraska Center.

Allied Groups

Coordinate groups also meeting are the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism and the American Society of Journalism School Administrators.

The 1963 Citation of Merit of the latter group was awarded Wednesday to the Kerrville (Tex.) Daily Times.

The award, received by the Times' editor and publisher, Max Thomas, is determined by a vote of the society on some journalistic media rendering outstanding performance and community service.

In accepting the award, Thomas said that the explosion of technology since Sputnik "puts us face to face with the challenge of education and the training of journalists to meet the greatest period of change the world has ever known."

Must Be Bold

Thomas said that unless journalism schools are bold in developing their curriculums to serve a new era and successful in getting effective staff replacements, journalism faces a serious threat.

He termed the present over-all six-out-of-10 dropout rate in U.S. colleges "a national disgrace," and added, "we can no longer afford part-time education that uses only half the days of the year and half the capacity of the young people."

University of Nebraska Journalism School Director William E. Hall was named one of five recipients of the Alumni of Columbia University Pulitzer Graduate School of Journalism 50th anniversary medallion for outstanding achievement.

Chairman

Hall is chairman of this year's AEJ convention committee.

Also honored by the Columbia University group were John H. Hulteng of the University of Oregon, Burton W. Marvin of the Univeristy of Kansas, John E. Stempel of the University of Indiana, Kenneth N. Stewart of the University of California, and A. Gayle Waldrop of the University of Colorado.

New ASJSA officers announced Wednesday are: Charles L. Allen of Oklahoma State University, president; Jacob H. Jaffe of Long Island University, vice president; Simon L. Hochberger of the University of Miami, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Robert L. Jones, director of the University of Minnesota's School of Journalism, was re-elected president of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism.

Other AASDJ officers named to assist incoming President Porter in the group's 1963-1964 activities are:

Curtis MacDougall, Northwestern University, second vice president.

Elmer F. Beth, University of Kansas, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Lady Envoy Named

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (AP)—Communist Yugoslavia appointed its first lady ambassador, naming 42-year-old Stana Tomasevic as new envoy to Norway. Miss Tomasevic, who fought with Tito's partisans against the Nazis in World War II, has served as minister plenipotentiary in the Foreign Ministry.

100-Sided Decagon Suggested

Frank Latenser, chairman of the Nebraska State Centennial Commission's permanent structures committee, announced Wednesday that the committee is considering plans for a 1,000-foot decagon to be built in Omaha.

The decagon is one of 12 projects being discussed by the committee and the Centennial Commission, Latenser said.

The Omaha architect, named Monday as secretary of the commission, emphasized that any permanent structure constructed for the Nebraska centennial "will be independently funded and not constructed or supported with tax money."

10 Sides, 10 Tiers

The concrete decagon, a 10-sided structure, would consist of 10 tiers, each one 100 feet high. The unique structure would have 100 sides under this plan, one side for each year of Nebraska's statehood.

Latenser has prepared structural plans for the tower, which is expected to cost about $4 million. It would contain a labyrinth of rooms on the ground level for a historical display and lookout windows at the various levels.

"It would have a spectacular view from the top of the tower," Latenser said.

Near Old Capitol

No site for the tower has been chosen, but Latenser suggested the area near Central High School, the site of the Nebraska territorial capitol.

The structure would be the tallest building in Nebraska, Latenser said. In addition to its significance as a centennial museum and utility as a beacon, the decagon could be used for a transmission point for educational television, Latenser said.

Private financing of the structure is being sought, he said.

Dobson Bros., Chambers Low On Sewer, Water

Chambers Construction Co. and Dobson Bros. Construction Co. were the two apparent low bidders on city sewer and water projects at bid opening Wednesday.

Chambers bid $8,312 on the Sewer District 752 project (56th, alley north of Lowell to Pioneers; 58th, north line of Lowrey Heights to Pioneers). Other bids on the project were Dobson Bros., $8,560, and H. R. Bookstrom Construction Co., $8,733.

Dobson submitted a $6,995 bid for Water District 614 (State, Q to S; S, State to Capitol Beach Blvd.). Other bids were Chambers, $7,175, and Bookstrom, $7,343.

ETV Training Nearing Close

By DICK STUCKEY
Star Staff Writer

Thirty-four members of the Peace Corps Colombian educational television project will complete a month of intensive training this week at the University of Nebraska.

The trainees then head for Colombia where under the Peace Corps banner they will help set up an educational television network.

Ron Hull, KOLN-TV program manager and coordinator of the training project, described the group as "the kind of class that every teacher dreams about.

Most Motivated

"And the reason they're so successful is that they're more highly motivated than any group I've ever worked with."

The trainees include 18 American volunteers and 16 Colombian counterparts.

Instructors training the Americans and the "Colombianos" expressed "amazement" at the month's results, Hull said. Some said many of their college charges do not learn as much television technique in two years as did the Peace Corps personnel in one month.

"And what's more," Hull emphasized, "the Americans are doing this all in Spanish."

All training, conversation, programming and production is carried on in Spanish. Americans have been taking three hours of classroom instruction each day except Sunday.

Optimism

Peace Corps official Dr. John Winnie of the University of Iowa, who will head Colombian operations, expressed a great optimism for the success of the project.

The hope of officials and trainees is that the cultural and educational level of Colombia will be upgraded through the implanted ETV facilities.

Few of the team members had practical experience in broadcasting before the training started Aug. 5, Hull said.

But as of this week, the group is producing two live closed-circuit shows a day and handling all actual station operation each afternoon —and all in Spanish.

Do It Themselves

The trainees write spots and breaks, produce the shows themselves, run lighting, taping, filming, directing and all other technical aspects. And when they get to Colombia, after this month's training, they'll work alongside Colombians in preparation for full-scale network production next February.

Still to be faced by trainees is a tough selection board screening Thursday. Tension is at a high peak for the anxious volunteers. No quota exists for the project, but any trainee not meeting Peace Corps technical, psychological and personality standards will not make the trip.

Hull predicted that the project would "contribute measurably" to Colombian culture.

Hall Of Fame Group Names Local Woman

Mrs. Eleanor Anderson of Lincoln has been elected chairman of the Nebraska Hall of Fame Commission for the next two years.

Chosen vice chairman was Dr. J. L. Sellers of Lincoln and treasurer, Henry Ley of Wayne.

The commission approved placing bronze placques on bases of busts to identify them to the public. Inscriptions are being readied for installation in the near future.

Under consideration is naming of a third member to the Hall of Fame. The commission will meet in October "for the purpose of considering this selection.

Names mentioned include William Jennings Bryan, William H. (Buffalo Bill) Cody, Edward Creighton, Father Edward J. Flanagan, Robert Furnas, J. Sterling Morton, Frank North, Gen. John J. Pershing and two Indian leaders, Big Elk and Red Cloud.

Suggestions to the public may be sent to Marvin F. Kivett, director, Nebraska State Historical Society, 1500 R, Lincoln, Neb. 68508.

Holiday Road Toll Estimate At Over 430

Chicago (AP) — The National Safety Council estimated Wednesday that between 430 and 520 Americans may be killed in traffic accidents during the long Labor Day weekend.

It also figured that between 17,000 and 21,000 others may suffer injuries that would disable them beyond the day of the accident.

The three-day holiday period will begin at 6 p.m. Friday (local time) and end at midnight Monday.

The labor day weekend last year set a record for that holiday with 501 fatalities.

The council said the toll could be held down if motorists don't mix drinking and driving, don't drive too fast for conditions, don't drive left of center and yield the right of way where indicated.

It reckoned that at least 60 lives would be saved if every motor traveler wore a seat belt.

Consumers Sales Show 5.4% Hike

Columbus (AP)—Sales of electricity in Consumers Public Power District's Eastern system for the last 12 months were up 5.4% over the corresponding 12-month period a year ago, an analysis of operations showed Wednesday.

This is an increase of 53 million kilowatt hours. However, sales in the western system were down 12.9 million kilowatt hours due to decreased sales to the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

The 12-month report showed revenues up 3.7% and expenses up one per cent for the comparable period of last year.

BIGGEST UNION BEING SUED BY THE SMALLEST

London (AP) — Britain's biggest union was sued Wednesday by its smallest, which consists of Sidney Senior, 40, a lock-keeper at the Tilbury docks.

Senior seeks a court declaration that he does not have to join the huge Transport and General Workers Union.

At the moment Senior is secretary and sole member of the Union of Portworkers, which was formed 18 months ago.

The Transport and General Workers served notice that they would boycott jobs employing the rebels. The Port of London Authority then warned members of the portworkers union that they would be dismissed if they persisted in belonging to the rival organization.

Everybody but Senior gave up and joined the larger union.

Navy Will Stay In Omaha, Says Adm. Smedberg

Omaha (AP) — Vice-admiral William R. Smedberg 3rd, chief of naval personnel and deputy chief of naval operations, said he believes the Navy will stay in Omaha.

This was his comment on recurring reports that the Navy may move the headquarters of the Naval Reserve Training Command from Fort Omaha.

Admiral Smedberg arrived by plane for an informal inspection of Fort Omaha and a briefing by Rear Admiral F. Julian Becton, commander of the Naval Reserve Training Command.

"I know I consider this a very important place for the Navy and unless something is sneaking up on us, we'll stay here," Adm. Smedberg said.

Gering Valley Gets Power Line Nod

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Power Review Board Wednesday granted Gering Valley Rural Public Power District authority to serve a pumping station south of Gering after Consumers Public Power District withdrew its application to serve the same customer.

In a letter to the board, CPPD General Manager Ray Schacht of Columbus stated that information disclosed at a board hearing last week convinced Consumers that it would be best that Gering Valley serve the customer.

The hearing was the first of its kind to be aired by the newly-created board.

However, Schacht requested the board to issue an opinion advising power agencies what factors it will consider in settling future retail customer disputes.

Chairman Clair Callan of Odell said the board will "comply with the request" within two weeks.

However, member Walter Witthoff of Fremont opposed such action: "The game is over. We might issue an opinion that we later would regret."

Witthoff suggested that the facts in each individual case will govern.

William Norton of Osceola disagreed, noting that the board might well repeat its earlier position that it will "attempt to do away with duplication, and intrusions into a potential service area."

Norton pointed out that in the Gering Valley-CPPD case, Consumers sought to "extend a finger" into Gering Valley's potential service area.

The customer, a Rock Island Oil and Refining Co. pumping station two miles south of Gering, is encompassed by other Gering Valley customers, according to testimony taken at the hearing.

Power agencies, Norton explained, are "looking for a rule or a policy" which they might follow in seeking to serve new customers.

Consumers had based its case on the fact that it could supply service through a shorter line extension than that required by Gering Valley.

However, Schacht noted, extraordinary circumstances involved in the case tended to show that the length of line was not the sole factor worthy of consideration.

In other action, the board:

—decided to ask Omaha Public Power District to keep it informed on developments concerning the newly-formed Mid-Continent Area Power Planners pooling arrangement.

—set Sept. 10 as the date for a pre trial conference on the rate dispute between the Nebraska Public Power System and CPPD. The hearing will be held Sept. 23.

Morrison Pleads For 4 Minnesotans

A Minnesota family of four unexpectedly found itself starring with Gov. Frank Morrison Wednesday in a traffic safety film presentation.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Meyers and their two young sons of Red Wing, Minn., played the role of condemned motorists in a courtroom sketch in which Gov. Morrison pleaded with the family's fellow motorists to spare them their lives.

The sketch was filmed for television presentation by several stations Thursday night.

The brief stage play was arranged by Traffic Safety Coordinator Tom Ryan to dramatize the fact that an average of four persons have been killed in traffic accidents in Nebraska over the past 25 Labor Day weekends. Last year, eight were killed and 178 injured.

Capitol Chance

Meyers and his family, vacationing in Lincoln, chanced to be at the Capitol Wednesday afternoon when a call went out for four persons to play the part of the four anonymous motorists sentenced by past statistics to die on the state's highways during the coming weekend.

Meyers volunteered for himself, his wife, Elizabeth, and sons, David, 8, and Dennis, 5. Their faces were masked for purposes of the sketch.

District salesman for a petroleum company, Meyers told newsmen afterwards he himself drives about 35,000 miles a year in Minnesota and Wisconsin and has been made most safety conscious by having the subject preached to him by his family and his company.

He said his own best suggestion for highway safety is to "keep speeds down."

Speedy Pointing

When the speedometer climbs into the 70s and 80s, "I find I'm not driving the car any more—I'm pointing it," he said.

In Lincoln, the Meyers family was visiting Meyers' brother, Daniel of 1441 So. 11th.

Ryan, cast in the role of the sentencing judge in the sketch, said that if weather permits, traffic is expected to be exceedingly heavy in Nebraska as families take advantage of the last extended holiday before school.

"The holiday traffic plus the State Fair traffic creates one of the greatest accident-potential periods of the year for Nebraska motorists," he said.

Protest 'Brain Drain'

Aberdeen, Scotland (AP)—The British Association for the Advancement of Science, which has been protesting against a "brain drain" of British scientists to the United States, elected a new president at its annual meeting here. He is a noted physician, and his name is Lord Brain.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller, wife of the governor of New York shows off a present for one of her children—an Alice in Wonderland doll—that was presented to her while visiting a booth at the Women's Building at the Syracuse State Fair Wednesday.

Biologists Urge More Research On Tropics

Amherst, Mass. (AP) — A panel of top biologists Wednesday urged expanded research on the plants and soil of the American tropics which "well may be a bread basket for the world one of these days," if certain problems are overcome.

They also declared at a scientific meeting such research is urgently needed now because:

1. Expanding populations, tourist motivated industries, bulldozing roadbuilding, and misguided, hop-scotching local argiculture in the tropics are all threatening to destroy a wealth of still unstudied plants which might yield valuable new medicines for the world as well as the other important scientific information.

2. Studies of tropical plants could well yield keys to the great riddle of plant evolution, since all the world's flowering plants originated in the tropics.

3. Research on the genetics of exotic tropical plants might well lead to improvements in ordinary vegetable crops in other parts of the world, such as tomatoes and potatoes, which "really originated in the tropics."

As for the potential "world bread-basket" angle, the scientists said that at present, while native plants grow profusely in the tropics, a given area of soil remains fertile for only a year or so when tilled for regular agricultural crops. Thus, farmers work an area for a while, then move to another.

Therefore, the scientists declared research is urgently needed so that modern agriculture "can learn how to use the land — and thus take advantage of the climatic and rapidity-of-growth conditions that prevail in the tropics.

The scientists spoke at a news conference prior to participating in a symposium on the subject at the annual meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences (AIDS) at the University of Massachusetts.

They are, Dr. Mildred Mathias of the University of California, Los Angeles; Dr. Herbert Baker, University of California at Berkeley; and Dr. Richard Cowan of the Smithsonian Institution.

Twice The Area

Asserting that the tropics have twice as much land area as the temperate and polar zones — with some five and one quarter million square miles in the American tropics alone — the researchers said it is estimated that at least 100,000 different species of plants exist there. Of these, some 35,000 never have been collected, but are believed to exist.

"And yet, despite this tremendous diversity," said Baker, "man is doing his best to reduce this diversity by various means. For example, in the Carribean, large areas have been torn up and made into subdivisions for winter homes for tourists."

And Dr. Mathias said that in Latin America, with expanded road construction under way, "great big bull-dozers," have been clearing land containing plants which might well yield new medicines—in the same way that great drugs like quinine, cortisone, and cocaine were derived.

Exploring Plants

She said various other American scientists already are exploring hallucination-producing plants used in native witchcraft, as possible sources of drugs that might be used in treating certain mental diseases.

The scientists said that a group of American and Latin American universities had organized to try to stimulate greater interest among biologists to do research in the tropics—and to try to get the governmental and private financial support that will be required for an expanded effort, including transportation costs for scientists.

"There is an urgency about getting there," said Dr. Baker.

Air Patrol Helps Check Accidents—Col. Casey

By WILLIAM B. KETTER
United Press International

Col. Dan J. Casey said Wednesday he firmly believes the Safety Patrol's nine-year-old air surveillance program is helping to hold down traffic accidents in the state.

The patrol chief said developments in the "all-out war" against the increasing highway fatality toll over the years will prove his contention.

The Air Patrol program is aimed primarily at checking speeders, Casey said. But other violations such as improper passing, reckless driving, failure to observe stop signs and following too close to the vehicle ahead are also checked from the air.

The essential parts of the aerial speed check are simple: a plane, a pilot, stopwatch, radio, highway markers and a patrol cruiser to do the work.

A speeding motorist is spotted by a light patrol plane on highway U.S. 30.

"Ten forty two (the number of the cruiser on the ground). Hot one coming up. Red car about half way between Grand Island and Central City."

Then a stopwatch is started and the vehicle timed between two painted strips on the highway located at a measured distance.

Two more clocks are thrown on the car and each indicate speeds over the limit. A running report of the vehicle is radioed to the ground cruiser.

"Red car passing truck now about 10 miles northeast of Grand Island. Coming to your intersection."

As the red car passes the intersection, the patrol car takes off in hot pursuit and pulls the driver to the side of the road. A summons is issued.

All the time the plane hovers over the stopped car and through return radio receives the license, name, car make, and address. Then the hunt starts again.

Casey said the ground markers used to clock speeding cars are not on all highways in the state, but on portions of roads throughout the state.

In 1959, he noted, signs placed atop posts and tilted skyward were used to clock speeders from the air. These, however, proved impractical, he said.

"We switched to painted strips located near the edge of the pavement because of their practicality," he said. Casey added the strips are painted each year.

About 20 patrolmen are licensed pilots and available for Air Patrol duty, Casey said. But he said most of the work is performed by four patrolmen, one each out of Lincoln, Omaha, North Platte and Fremont.

In summary, there's only one conclusion to reach for the guy who likes to speed but thinks the only thing stopping him is a cruiser driving along the highway.

It isn't.

Killer Of N. J. Officers Dies With Curse On Lips

New York (AP)—The tattooed killer of two New Jersey policemen was cornered in a midtown Manhattan hotel room Wednesday, and shot to death after a furious, furniture-smashing, hand-to-hand struggle. He died with a curse on his lips.

Hours later, Thomas (Rabbi Tom) Tarantino, sought with Falco in the slaying of two policemen, surrendered at a police precinct.

The victim, Frank Falco, 25, was wanted also in New York for a third slaying, in which the body of a teen-age youth was dumped into the East River.

Asleep and unarmed, Falco was awakened with a police lieutenant's pistol at his throat. He sprang from the bed—"like a tiger," in the words of his captors—and fought the raiding party until their bullets brought him down amid the hotel room's smashed and overturned furniture.

Indicted

Falco was indicted Tuesday in Hackensack, N.J., with Thomas (Rabbi Tom) Trantino, 27, both of New York, in the Monday night slaying of Sgt. Peter Voto, 40, father of three, and Gary Tedesco, 23, a police rookie.

The two policemen were forced to undress and then shot to death in the Angel Lounge, a Lodi, N.J., tavern. They had arrived to investigate a disturbance, while Falco, Trantino and a third thug were celebrating a $2,000 holdup they had pulled earlier in Brooklyn.

New York police were tipped that Falco registered about 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Hotel Manhattan, at Eighth Avenue and 43rd Street, a block off Times Square. He was assigned room 2503.

FRANK FALCO

Lt. Thomas Quinn led a team of eight New York and New Jersey detectives to the 25th floor room and entered with a special key about 4 a.m.

The raiders found Falco sprawled asleep on the bed in his underwear, the lights on. Four empty beer bottles were in the room.

Putting his pistol to Falco's throat, Quinn ordered:

"Wake up. This is the police. You're under arrest."

Quinn said later:

"He came off the bed like a tiger. He made a grab at me and yanked at my shield. Then he grabbed for my gun. The first shot went off unintentionally. I don't know if it hit him or not."

The cornered fugitive, shouting curses, hurled a 240-pound sergeant to the floor, and slugged Quinn with a beer bottle. The lieutenant added:

"I staggered backwards by the TV set. He still had his hand on the gun. He kept coming and I kept pulling the trigger—all six shots."

Detective Cornelius Carroll also fired three shots at Falco and the killer slumped dying to the floor with seven bullets in his body. He continued to curse until his last breath.

Falco, who had a panther tattooed on one arm and an eagle on his chest, originally was sought in the July 11 slaying of 19-year-old Robert Munoz of Manhattan.

Dumped In River

The youth was shot after he got into an argument with Falco and Anthony Cassarino, 24, in a bar on lower Second Avenue. The victim's body was dumped into the East River.

Falco and Cassarino fled New York and hid out in Lodi, where, police said, they were joined by Trantino. The trio made periodic forays to stage holdups and burglaries. All three were ex-convicts, with larceny records.

They went 20 miles afield from Lodi for their final holdup, which netted them $2,000 in Brooklyn. They then returned to the Angel Lounge where a celebration was interrupted by officers Voto and Tedesco.

Dura Flash BULBS

Press No. 5 $1.09 Seller 99c 99c M-2 89c

This is the season of love and half prices in the sun-drenched Caribbean. You can hardly afford to stay single.

A tropical shower splashed on the Virgin Island of St. John last night. And when I walked home, a honeymooner's moon broke overhead, laying a path of silver across the water where St. Thomas's hills rise dark against the sky.

"Honey?" said a voice in the cottage I was passing.

"Darling!" said the lady.

"Spray some of that repellent on my back, will you?" he said.

That's one reason to get married. How can you spray insect goop on your own back? Impossible.

☆ ☆ ☆

This is the bargain time in the Caribbean. (Ah, love, at cut-rates!) During summer, the Caribbean resorts reduce rooms to half or two-thirds of the fashionable winter costs.

The word has gone around, however. And Caribbean hideaways that were empty a few summers ago, now get about 70% occupancy. As any hotel man will tell you, that's not bad.

☆ ☆ ☆

"Then," said a man from St. Thomas, "we are a port of call for practically every cruise ship. The shopping, you know."

The Virgin Islands have a curious status in America—it is all free port. No duty.

The entire main street of Charlotte Amalie, the old Danish town of sugar cane and rum days, is now filled with gift shops. Duty-free Swiss watches. German cameras, Japanese transistors. Danish silver. And every kind of liquor in the world. Scotch goes at about $2.50 a bottle.

"The trouble is," he said, "the cruise ship people never see the islands.

"They get off the ship — 800 to 1000 at a time. They head down the main street like a flock of sheep. 'Did you see that watch for $50!' they say. 'How about the low price on the Rollei?' they say.

"They wind up at night back on the ship and they say: 'I saved $2 on that bottle of gin!'

"Never mind that it cost them $2000 to get here."

☆ ☆ ☆

The islands were taken over by Denmark in 1666. They imported African slaves which give them their predominantly black native. They brought in English and Scotch overseers — which give the islands English as a native speech.

They had a nice assortment of built-in killers — yellow fever, malaria and elephantiasis. (All cleaned up now. I'm glad that isn't what's biting me.)

They raised sugar cane and tobacco. There were 177 going plantations.

Today on the island of St. John, the jeey taxi driver will show you wild cane and wild tobacco still growing. There are stone ruins of sugar mills and houses — they cut blocks of coral and stuck them together with a cement made of molasses. (It's a SWEET island.)

"Today," said the taxi driver, "everybody wuk in de tourist business. No time to raise cane."

Peace Corps Training To Help In Colombia

A broad, basic training program tailored to help 44 Peace Corps volunteers carry out their assignments in Colombia will begin this weekend at the University of Nebraska.

Between Sept. 1 and Nov. 16, the trainees will receive specialized training in the Spanish language, the history and customs of Colombia and special skills such as boating, recreation, and vegetable production, said Deon Axthelm, director of the training program at the NU Hall of Youth.

NU staff members and various consultants will provide specialized training in extension work, home economics, credit and cooperation, and surveying.

"Every effort is being made to provide the trainees with a close look at Colombia," said Axthelm, who just returned from a survey trip to the country.

"Arrangements have been made for copies of Colombia newspapers and magazines to be sent here each week during the training session, in addition, many pictures are available as well as an eight-hour recording of programs emanating from a Colombia radio station.

Trainees will have a chance to view the type of terrain common in Colombia on a trip to Wanbonsie Park.

There will be special sessions on operating small and heavy equipment and health and sanitation. Those taking part in the surveying course will travel the Missouri River, since boating is the primary mode of transportation where they will be working.

This is the season of love and half prices in the sun-drenched Caribbean. You can hardly afford to stay single.

A tropical shower splashed on the Virgin Island of St. John last night. And when I walked home, a honeymooner's moon broke overhead, laying a path of silver across the water where St. Thomas's hills rise dark against the sky.

"Honey?" said a voice in the cottage I was passing.

"Darling!" said the lady.

"Spray some of that repellent on my back, will you?" he said.

That's one reason to get married. How can you spray insect goop on your own back? Impossible.

☆ ☆ ☆

This is the bargain time in the Caribbean. (Ah, love, at cut-rates!) During summer, the Caribbean resorts reduce rooms to half or two-thirds of the fashionable winter costs.

The word has gone around, however. And Caribbean hideaways that were empty a few summers ago, now get about 70% occupancy. As any hotel man will tell you, that's not bad.

☆ ☆ ☆

"Then," said a man from St. Thomas, "we are a port of call for practically every cruise ship. The shopping, you know."

The Virgin Islands have a curious status in America—it is all free port. No duty.

The entire main street of Charlotte Amalie, the old Danish town of sugar cane and rum days, is now filled with gift shops. Duty-free Swiss watches. German cameras, Japanese transistors. Danish silver. And every kind of liquor in the world. Scotch goes at about $2.50 a bottle.

"The trouble is," he said, "the cruise ship people never see the islands.

"They get off the ship — 800 to 1000 at a time. They head down the main street like a flock of sheep. 'Did you see that watch for $50!' they say. 'How about the low price on the Rollei?' they say.

"They wind up at night back on the ship and they say: 'I saved $2 on that bottle of gin!'

"Never mind that it cost them $2000 to get here."

☆ ☆ ☆

The islands were taken over by Denmark in 1666. They imported African slaves which give them their predominantly black native. They brought in English and Scotch overseers — which give the islands English as a native speech.

They had a nice assortment of built-in killers — yellow fever, malaria and elephantiasis. (All cleaned up now. I'm glad that isn't what's biting me.)

They raised sugar cane and tobacco. There were 177 going plantations.

Today on the island of St. John, the jeey taxi driver will show you wild cane and wild tobacco still growing. There are stone ruins of sugar mills and houses — they cut blocks of coral and stuck them together with a cement made of molasses. (It's a SWEET island.)

"Today," said the taxi driver, "everybody wuk in de tourist business. No time to raise cane."

Trapped Miner Reports 'Hallucinations' Were Real

EDITOR'S NOTE—For 14 days until they were rescued early Tuesday morning David Fellin and Henry Throne were entombed in a Pennsylvania mine. Throne said that during their ordeal they saw lights, figures of people and a door. Fellin also says the strange incidents happened; his mind was clear and "we saw what we saw." In an exclusive article, Fellin tells of a life underground few men have shared.

Copyright, 1963, by The Associated Press

By DAVID FELLIN

Hazelton, Pa. (AP) — Now they're trying to tell me those things are hallucinations, that we imagined it all.

We didn't. Our minds weren't playing tricks on us. I've been a practical, hard-headed coal miner all my life. My mind was clear down there in the mine. It's still clear.

We saw what we saw. These things happened. I can't explain them. I'm almost afraid to think what might be the explanation.

Saw Door

For example, on the fourth or fifth day, we saw this door although we had no light from above or from our helmets. The door was covered in bright blue light. It was very clear, better than sunlight.

Two men, ordinary looking men, not miners, opened the door. We could see beautiful marble steps on the other side. We saw this for some time and then we didn't see it.

One thing I was always sure of. I knew in all those 14 days that we'd get out. After four or five days when there was no sign of anybody coming down from above I got mad. But I was convinced we'd get out even if I had to dig us out myself.

A funny thing occurred on that very first day, Aug. 13. We—Henry Throne and Louis Bova—hadn't been down in the mine five minutes that morning when my stomach started feeling a little out of whack.

I said, "Let's go out for an hour or so."

Persuaded

But the boys persuaded me to stay and get some work done first. If I hadn't listened to them, if we'd have gone up then, would that cave-in have happened anyway? Would we have been trapped another time?

So we stayed, down at the tunnel's bottom, more than 300 feet down. Louis was on one side and me and Hank on the other. I'd walk back and forth directing their work.

Louis reached up to press the buzzer for the buggy (a small wagon which carries coal on tracks up to the surface). I was watching him. He pressed the buzzer and stepped back. Then it happened.

Coming Down

Suddenly everything was coming down—timber, coal, rocks. We could see it because the power line was still working. The stuff was rushing down between us and Louis. Then it was quiet for maybe half a minute. Then the rush started again. It went on like this, starting and stopping for some time.

I was trying as hard as I could to concentrate, to listen, to judge how much of the shaft was being filled by the cave-in. I figured it filled up about 75 feet from the bottom.

In the first couple of minutes, the light from the power line went off. My heart jumped into my mouth. I kept thinking, did they shut the power off up top? Otherwise it could short and the wire might burn and fire would kill us in three minutes down there.

But it didn't burn. We stayed that way, sitting there, listening as hard as we could for more rushes in the dark. We sat there against the wall that way 14 to 16 hours in a place about 6 feet long, 5 feet wide and about 3 feet high.

We didn't talk much. Hank was a new man and I only knew him maybe two months. We didn't have much to talk about.

Got Thirsty

We got thirsty. We heard water in the drainage holes about 10 feet down in the floor of the tunnel. We tried to dig for it about three hours and got nowhere.

"Hank," I said, "let's sit down and talk this over and see what we can do."

Hank said, "Let's do something! Let's get out of here."

We found a hatchet with a broken handle and a crowbar and a saw that wouldn't saw. We found an old rasp and I used it to file the saw and sharpen the hatchet. Now we were back in business. We had some tools to probe around looking for a way out, but we never found one.

Plastic Jug

We found a plastic jug with some good water in it. But I knew it wouldn't be enough. I knew it'd be a few days before we could get out. I took a four-foot pipe lying there, plugged up one end with electrical tape I had in my pocket and shoved a piece of cable through it tying it at the other end. Then I jammed some rags into that end. Then I dropped the pipe into the drainage hole and when I pulled it up we had a four-foot pipe of water.

Sure, it was sulphur water, but it was water that would keep us alive. The first time we tried it we spit it out. The second time it stayed down. I told Hank we'd drink only about a quarter swallow at a time. We had to ration it.

The worst physical thing those first days was the cold. It must have been around 38 above. I was wearing overalls and on top two pairs of thermal undershirts. I had nothing over those undershirts.

Numbed

The cold went deep into our bones. It even numbed you so you couldn't think right. Because of the cold I slept very little. Also I wanted to keep listening for any noise, any sign of movement of a drill coming down. So, in all those two weeks I don't think I slept more than a total of two hours.

To keep warm, Hank sat between my legs and I'd blow warm breath down his neck and we'd rock back and forth for about an hour. Then we'd switch.

I rapped the hatchet on the rails—two long, three short. This is kind of miner's SOS known to everybody in the business. I did this on the third and fourth days, but nothing happened. I gave up rapping.

I got mad but I didn't lose my temper. I said to myself, we'd get out even if I had to dig us out.

Dug Up Debris

On the fourth or fifth day we were trying to find a way out. We dug up through the pile of debris in the shaft about 40 feet. We dug and worked with our hands and that one hatchet and it was crawling all the way, inch by inch.

As the chunks of stuff fell, Hank would take a big lump down below. It would take him an hour to get one lump down. We worked this way for about a day and a half.

About this time we heard what sounded like rain water running down the drainage pipes. This was one of the worst moments. It could've flooded the mine. But it lasted only about 20 minutes.

Now, you asked me about the strange things Hank saw. I actually saw more of them than he did. But I find it hard to talk about that.

Positive

I'm positive we saw what we saw. We weren't imagining them. Even before we heard from the men on the top, we had some light now and then. How else can you explain all the work we did down there? We couldn't have done it entirely in darkness.

The only time I was really scared was when we saw two men dressed like power linemen. Don't ask me what men like that were doing down in the bottom. But I saw them.

Hank asked me two or three times to ask the men for some light. This idea scared me down to my toes. I can't say why. I had the feeling this was something outside of our reach, that we shouldn't talk or do anything.

But Hank did it. Hank said to the men, "Hey, buddy, how about showing us some light?"

They didn't answer. And after a while we didn't see them anymore.

Get it Straight

Now let's get this straight about that door. I saw the door with the blue light on it and the two men beside it and the white marble steps behind them. I saw it and I wasn't imagining it.

We saw many other things like that that you couldn't explain. But I'm not going to tell you about them because I feel too deeply about all this. I wouldn't have mentioned any of these things but Hank has already talked about some of them. So I did.

On the sixth day I suddenly heard Louis' voice shouting, "Hey Dave, hey, Hank! I've come to take you home."

We nearly died. It came right out of the darkness after five days when we heard nothing. But I didn't hear Louis again. Very soon after I heard another voice yelling, "Look for the light!"

I started digging like mad toward the sound. After about two hours, we found the light about six feet away. It was hanging on a cord from a six-inch hole along with a microphone. At last they reached us.

Then they lowered water and food.

When we got to the light, we decided to set up housekeeping there. We made us a nice bedroom, about 4 feet wide, 5 feet long, 5 feet high. We could almost stand, bent over. We stored our supplies there and slept there.

We stayed there about two days. One morning I suddenly heard something move. I grabbed Hank and got him out of there just in time. Our roof caved in there so we moved to another spot. We had lost just about all our supplies, but the hole and the light were still intact.

Made Another

We made another bedroom about 10 feet below the other one. This was a little larger but we still couldn't stand. We never could stand.

I started to direct the drilling of the second hole, our escape route. I had in mind it should go through more solid ground so it wouldn't cave in on us.

But this 12-inch hole missed us. They sent down a compass but that didn't help establish our position. Then they dropped cobalt into that hole and sent us a Geiger counter. This established which direction we were from the second hole.

Then we heard that big drill going down again. When it was about 200 feet down, they pulled it out for a time, and the noise sounded like a huge roar and wild whistles, like a thousand devils.

The hole came down between us as we were lying there watching.

Begin To Figure

Now I could begin to figure when we'd get out. I knew it would still be four or five days. We had a lot of work to do reinforcing props, that's the timbers on the side walls and over us. They were holding back thousands of tons of coal. As we shored it up with more timber, the ceiling came lower until it was only 18 inches over our heads.

With the ceiling that low, I couldn't get up on my elbows or get an upward motion. So I'd stiffen myself and Hank would push on my boots and give me some upward movement.

By now, of course, we were eating well with the stuff they were sending down. But the funny thing about those first five and a half days when we had no food, we weren't very conscious of being hungry. We ate some bark now and then. It didn't bother us.

Awfully Sleepy

They sent down that cocoon, that sleeping bag, and Hank spent most of his time there. He's a great guy but he was awfully sleepy. Somebody had to stay awake and listen for anything going wrong. Since I was the experienced man, I did that. That's why you heard me speaking most of the time on the mike.

For the same reason I decided Hank would be the first to be hauled up. I couldn't go first. My friends and every other miner would crucify me if I did. And I'd crucify any guy who went ahead of an inexperienced man.

We kept on working until the reamer came down widening the hole to 18 inches. They sent down the coveralls and the harnesses and we greased each other.

Did I have any special thoughts? No, I was too busy thinking about that harness because I had never worked one like that before.

Going up, I was concentrating on working the lines right so they wouldn't foul and spin me around the way they did Hank.

How's Wife

When I finally got up, I kept thinking about my wife, Anna, and where she was and how she was bearing up and was she getting any sleep.

When I was up the lights were blinding me. The first person I saw was my brother, Joe. He came over and we shook hands and he said a little, not much.

I hope to work in coal mines again. I need to make a living and that's all I know. I'm still not afraid of mining any more than going to a beer garden. In fact, a beer garden can be more dangerous if you have a few too many.

In the future, when I think about our 14 days down in that mine, I'll be thinking very hard about the strange things we saw there.

For as long as I live, I'll be trying to find an answer. Maybe I never will. But I'll always be trying.

Today, Smirnoff outsells every brand of scotch and gin

Every drop of Smirnoff is filtered and refined through 7 tons of activated charcoal. That's 14,000 lbs! Literally a "mountain" of charcoal. Far more charcoal filtration than other vodkas use. This "black magic" removes most of the congeners. No wonder Smirnoff is the world's finest liquor. Smirnoff has no "bite."

It leaves you breathless!

Smirnoff blends perfectly with the flavor of fruit juices or soft drinks. Smirnoff leaves you breathless!

Today breathless Smirnoff outsells every brand of scotch and gin. Try it yourself, on the rocks or in a Martini, and find out why.

Red Cloud — After Saturday the grave of Alice Blue Cloud should have fewer skeptics.

The teenage Sioux princess will step from legend to life through the first annual pageant of the newly-organized "white Indians." More than memorializing Chief Red Cloud's daughter, they hope to dispel decades of controversy about the great high hill south of town.

Is its marker right in naming this the final resting place of Blue Cloud, still spoken of by her people as "age 18 and with much beauty" or did the dreaded smallpox truly claim, as some say, an Otoe Indian maid not even of the town namesake's tribe?

"We're convinced it's the one true story that our high schoolers will be enacting," insisted Norman A. Peirce, chairman and well known devotee of Indian lore. "There is no other city in the world named after the famous Chief Red Cloud, so why shouldn't we make the most of his several visits here?"

As reconstructed by the 22-member cast, it was an 1873 buffalo hunt which lured the Sioux for the last time from their own lands to the Republican Valley. There it was that Blue Cloud—Alice had been added as a Christian name—was suddenly attacked by an evil spirit which sped terror through every teepee.

"Uncle Lew (Hummel) used to put me on his lap and describe over and over the wailing of the braves and chanting of the medicine man," recalled the still-impressed grocer. "He had hidden himself in a tree and personally witnessed by moonlight the princess' death and immediate burial."

Eight visits to the Oglala Sioux in the Black Hills have since bolstered other testimony taken by Peirce from Webster County oldtimers. Perhaps most impressive of all, however, was confirmation relayed from the late Jim Cloud that his grandfather had indeed lost the princess in that vicinity.

The one-hour pageant will dramatize how Blue Cloud's favorite pony was strangled and buried in upright position ready for her ride to the happy hunting grounds.

Peirce has records of one woman who as a youngster had viewed the girl's skeleton after the grave had been partially opened by the curious.

"She was sitting up with long loose black hair over her face," the late Mrs. Frisbie had stated. "Her lovely saddle was in the grave and some pans and kettles were about."

Climax of the three-day annual fall festival, the presentation is cited by sponsors as evidence of an awakening appreciation of town heritage. Teamed with tours of "Willa Cather country" and other local attractions, the pageant will have Gov. Frank Morrison in its audience.

Authentic Indian costumes, music and dramatic lighting are expected to add to the outdoor stage's effectiveness. Narration of the 8 p.m. pantomime performance will be shared by Peirce and co-chairman Mrs. Charles Blackstone.

"This is just a modest beginning, but we believe some such annual review has unlimited potential here," said Mrs. Blackstone. "And starting with a name like Red Cloud, who knows how far we might go?"

Trapped Miner Reports 'Hallucinations' Were Real

EDITOR'S NOTE—For 14 days until they were rescued early Tuesday morning David Fellin and Henry Throne were entombed in a Pennsylvania mine. Throne told that during their ordeal they saw lights, figures of people and a door. Fellin also says the strange incidents happened; his mind was clear and "we saw what we saw." In an exclusive article, Fellin tells of a life underground few men have shared.

Copyright, 1963, by The Associated Press

By DAVID FELLIN

Hazelton, Pa. (AP) — Now they're trying to tell me those things are hallucinations, that we imagined it all.

We didn't. Our minds weren't playing tricks on us. I've been a practical, hard-headed coal miner all my life. My mind was clear down there in the mine. It's still clear.

We saw what we saw. These things happened. I can't explain them. I'm almost afraid to think what might be the explanation.

Saw Door

For example, on the fourth or fifth day, we saw this door although we had no light from above or from our helmets. The door was covered in bright blue light. It was very clear, better than sunlight.

Two men, ordinary looking men, not miners, opened the door. We could see beautiful marble steps on the other side. We saw this for some time and then we didn't see it.

One thing I was always sure of. I knew in all those 14 days that we'd get out. After four or five days when there was no sign of anybody coming down from above I got mad. But I was convinced we'd get out even if I had to dig us out myself.

A funny thing occurred on that very first day, Aug. 13. We—Henry Throne and Louis Bova—hadn't been down in the mine five minutes that morning when my stomach started feeling a little out of whack.

I said, "Let's go out for an hour or so."

Persuaded

But the boys persuaded me to stay and get some work done first. If I hadn't listened to them, if we'd have gone up then, would that cave-in have happened anyway? Would we have been trapped another time?

So we stayed, down at the tunnel's bottom, more than 300 feet down. Louis was on one side and me and Hank on the other. I'd walk back and forth directing their work.

Louis reached up to press the buzzer for the buggy (a small wagon which carries coal on tracks up to the surface). I was watching him. He pressed the buzzer and stepped back. Then it happened.

Coming Down

Suddenly everything was coming down—timber, coal, rocks. We could see it because the power line was still working. The stuff was rushing down between us and Louis. Then it was quiet for maybe half a minute. Then the rush started again. It went on like this, starting and stopping for some time.

I was trying as hard as I could to concentrate, to listen, to judge how much of the shaft was being filled by the cave-in. I figured it filled up about 75 feet from the bottom.

In the first couple of minutes, the light from the power line went off. My heart jumped into my mouth. I kept thinking, did they shut the power off up top? Otherwise it could short and the wire might burn and fire would kill us in three minutes down there.

But it didn't burn. We stayed that way, sitting there, listening as hard as we could for more rushes in the dark. We sat there against the wall that way 14 to 16 hours in a place about 6 feet long, 5 feet wide and about 3 feet high.

We didn't talk much. Hank was a new man and I only knew him maybe two months. We didn't have much to talk about.

Got Thirsty

We got thirsty. We heard water in the drainage holes about 10 feet down in the floor of the tunnel. We tried to dig for it about three hours and got nowhere.

"Hank," I said, "let's sit down and talk this over and see what we can do."

Hank said, "Let's do something! Let's get out of here."

We found a hatchet with a broken handle and a crowbar and a saw that wouldn't saw. We found an old rasp and I used it to file the saw and sharpen the hatchet. Now we were back in business. We had some tools to probe around looking for a way out, but we never found one.

Plastic Jug

We found a plastic jug with some good water in it. But I knew it wouldn't be enough. I knew it'd be a few days before we could get out. I took a four-foot pipe lying there, plugged up one end with electrical tape I had in my pocket and shoved a piece of cable through it tying it at the other end. Then I jammed some rags into that end. Then I dropped the pipe into the drainage hole and when I pulled it up we had a four-foot pipe of water.

Sure, it was sulphur water, but it was water that would keep us alive. The first time we tried it we spit it out. The second time it stayed down. I told Hank we'd drink only about a quarter swallow at a time. We had to ration it.

The worst physical thing those first days was the cold. It must have been around 38 above. I was wearing overalls and on top two pairs of thermal undershirts. I had nothing over those undershirts.

Numbed

The cold went deep into our bones. It even numbed you so you couldn't think right. Because of the cold I slept very little. Also I wanted to keep listening for any noise, any sign of movement of a drill coming down. So, in all those two weeks I don't think I slept more than a total of two hours.

To keep warm, Hank sat between my legs and I'd blow warm breath down his neck and we'd rock back and forth for about an hour. Then we'd switch.

I rapped the hatchet on the rails—two long, three short. This is kind of miner's SOS known to everybody in the business. I did this on the third and fourth days, but nothing happened. I gave up rapping.

I got mad but I didn't lose my temper. I said to myself, we'd get out even if I had to dig us out.

Dug Up Debris

On the fourth or fifth day we were trying to find a way out. We dug up through the pile of debris in the shaft about 40 feet. We dug and worked with our hands and that one hatchet and it was crawling all the way, inch by inch.

As the chunks of stuff fell, Hank would take a big lump down below. It would take him an hour to get one lump down. We worked this way for about a day and a half.

About this time we heard what sounded like rain water running down the drainage pipes. This was one of the worst moments. It could've flooded the mine. But it lasted only about 20 minutes.

Now, you asked me about the strange things Hank saw. I actually saw more of them than he did. But I find it hard to talk about that.

Positive

I'm positive we saw what we saw. We weren't imagining them. Even before we heard from the men on the top, we had some light now and then. How else can you explain all the work we did down there? We couldn't have done it entirely in darkness.

The only time I was really scared was when we saw two men dressed like power linemen. Don't ask me what men like that were doing down in the bottom. But I saw them.

Hank asked me two or three times to ask the men for some light. This idea scared me down to my toes. I can't say why. I had the feeling this was something outside of our reach, that we shouldn't talk or do anything.

But Hank did it. Hank said to the men, "Hey, buddy, how about showing us some light?"

They didn't answer. And after a while we didn't see them anymore.

Get it Straight

Now let's get this straight about that door. I saw the door with the blue light on it and the two men beside it and the white marble steps behind them. I saw it and I wasn't imagining it.

We saw many other things like that that you couldn't explain. But I'm not going to tell you about them because I feel too deeply about all this. I wouldn't have mentioned any of these things but Hank has already talked about some of them. So I did.

On the sixth day I suddenly heard Louis' voice shouting, "Hey Dave, hey, Hank! I've come to take you home."

We nearly died. It came right out of the darkness after five days when we heard nothing. But I didn't hear Louis again. Very soon after I heard another voice yelling, "Look for the light!"

I started digging like mad toward the sound. After about two hours, we found the light about six feet away. It was hanging on a cord from a six-inch hole along with a microphone. At last they reached us.

Then they lowered water and food.

When we got to the light, we decided to set up housekeeping there. We made us a nice bedroom, about 4 feet wide, 5 feet long, 5 feet high. We could almost stand, bent over. We stored our supplies there and slept there.

We stayed there about two days. One morning I suddenly heard something move. I grabbed Hank and got him out of there just in time. Our roof caved in there so we moved to another spot. We had lost just about all our supplies, but the hole and the light were still intact.

Made Another

We made another bedroom about 10 feet below the other one. This was a little larger but we still couldn't stand. We never could stand.

I started to direct the drilling of the second hole, our escape route. I had in mind it should go through more solid ground so it wouldn't cave in on us.

But this 12-inch hole missed us. They sent down a compass but that didn't help establish our position. Then they dropped cobalt into that hole and sent us a Geiger counter. This established which direction we were from the second hole.

Then we heard that big drill going down again. When it was about 200 feet down, they pulled it out for a time, and the noise sounded like a huge roar and wild whistles, like a thousand devils.

The hole came down between us as we were lying there watching.

Begin To Figure

Now I could begin to figure when we'd get out. I knew it would still be four or five days. We had a lot of work to do reinforcing props, that's the timbers on the side walls and over us. They were holding back thousands of tons of coal. As we shored it up with more timber, the ceiling came lower until it was only 18 inches over our heads.

With the ceiling that low, I couldn't get up on my elbows or get an upward motion. So I'd stiffen myself and Hank would push on my boots and give me some upward movement.

By now, of course, we were eating well with the stuff they were sending down. But the funny thing about those first five and a half days when we had no food, we weren't very conscious of being hungry. We ate some bark now and then. It didn't bother us.

Awfully Sleepy

They sent down that cocoon, that sleeping bag, and Hank spent most of his time there. He's a great guy but he was awfully sleepy. Somebody had to stay awake and listen for anything going wrong. Since I was the experienced man, I did that. That's why you heard me speaking most of the time on the mike.

For the same reason I decided Hank would be the first to be hauled up. I couldn't go first. My friends and every other miner would crucify me if I did. And I'd crucify any guy who went ahead of an inexperienced man.

We kept on working until the reamer came down widening the hole to 18 inches. They sent down the coveralls and the harnesses and we greased each other.

Did I have any special thoughts? No, I was too busy thinking about that harness because I had never worked one like that before.

Going up, I was concentrating on working the lines right so they wouldn't foul and spin me around the way they did Hank.

How's Wife

When I finally got up, I kept thinking about my wife, Anna, and where she was and how she was bearing up and was she getting any sleep.

When I was up the lights were blinding me. The first person I saw was my brother, Joe. He came over and we shook hands and he said a little, not much.

I hope to work in coal mines again. I need to make a living and that's all I know. I'm still not afraid of mining any more than going to a beer garden. In fact, a beer garden can be more dangerous if you have a few too many.

In the future, when I think about our 14 days down in that mine, I'll be thinking very hard about the strange things we saw there.

For as long as I live, I'll be trying to find an answer. Maybe I never will. But I'll always be trying.

Suburban Days Always Busy Ones

COTNER TERRACE

Here we are, almost to the end of another busy week and a very busy month. Soon the days will be getting shorter, the nights longer, and the activity more plentiful — if that is possible.

Although our autumn weather seems to have disappeared temorarily, there are still several things which are not missing in the area this week — and those are, guests, vacation returnees and birthday celebrants.

And since we mentioned vacation returnees we'll tell you that Gloria Sumption, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lavon Sumption will be returning home on Saturday from Walker, Minn.

Accompanying Gloria on her trip homeward will be her grandmother, Mrs. James Katzmark of Minneapolis.

This is not all the activity that will take place at the Sumption home on Saturday, for Robin Sumption will be celebrating her fourth anniversary.

Robin's guests for the afternoon party will be eight neighborhood pre-schoolers.

Planning a trip for the Labor Day weekend will be Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tetherow and their son Tom.

The destination point will be Valentine where they will be the guests of Mr. Tetherow's mother, Mrs. P. N. Tetherow.

Mr. and Mrs. Tetherow and Tom will be returning home on Sunday.

Out-of-town guests who will be arriving tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Heiliger and their children, Mark and Lee Ann, will be Mr. and Mrs. Bill Soelberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Soelberg, who reside in Sioux City, Iowa, will be the house-guests of the Heiliger family during the Labor Day weekend.

Motoring to Beatrice last weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Don Hubbard who were the guests of Mr. Hubbard's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Trauble.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard left Lincoln on Friday and returned home Sunday evening.

A special guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hudzicki last weekend was Mrs. Hudzicki's father, Will Faulstick of Norfolk.

Mr. Faulstick also visited with his other son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Myhre, during his short stay in Lincoln.

CASINO HEIGHTS

A birthday celebrant in the Casino Heights area — and a very special one, was Mrs. Otto R. Benner who was eighty-nine years young last Sunday.

Evening Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Martha Carol Bliss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Earl Bliss, to Ernest Eugene McPeek, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. McPeek of Euclid, Ohio, was solemnized Wednesday evening, Aug. 28, at the First Evangelical United Brethren Church. The Rev. Richard A. Heim read the lines of the 8 o'clock service, and Miss Connie Hodson, organist, played the wedding music. The vocal soloist was Roy F. Frohardt.

Wearing daytime frocks of textured cotton in aqua and carrying bouquets of white Fuji chrysanthemums were Mrs. Burneil Lindquist, as the matron of honor, and the bridesmatron, Mrs. James Remington.

Oran Breeze of Bluford, Ill., served as best man, and the ushers were Raleigh Gordon of Oakharbor, Ohio; Charles Duncan, Denver; and James Remington.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of white peau de soie. The sculptured bodice, which was fashioned with long sleeves and a portrait neckline, was appliqued with re-embroidered lace and pearls, and the bouffant skirt continued into a chapel train. Her illusion veil was held by a pearl crown, and she carried white feathered carnations and gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. McPeek will make their home in Denver. The bride is a former student at the University of Nebraska and is a member of Beta Sigma Phi business women's sorority.

The News Around Town

There is a news flash from Champaign, Ill., this morning and it has to do with a brand new member of Champaign's nursery set. Thomas Raysor Hancock arrived on Monday, Aug. 26. The baby's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hancock, and his mother is the former Cecily Raysor, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Thomas Raysor of Lincoln. Young Thomas' paternal grandmother, Mrs. E. W. Hancock, left on Tuesday evening to extend her personal greetings to the newest member of the Hancock family.

Mr. Hancock is a member of the University of Illinois department of philosophy faculty. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago, and received his doctorate at Yale University.

* * *

Here at home we find there are guests to mention —Miss Linda Girard of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for instance.

Miss Girard is the house guest of Miss Patricia Ager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ager, who was her roommate at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., last year.

Neither Miss Ager nor her guest will return to Lindenwood, however. Miss Ager will attend the University of Nebraska, and Miss Girard will be a student at the University of Wisconsin.

* * *

We are by no means putting Mrs. Ruth Stuart in the same category as 'The Man Who Came to Dinner' — There is a slight similarity, but there also is a vastly different angle.

Mrs. Staart came from Minneapolis to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Fibiger, and has been prevailed upon to remain in Lincoln. As a matter of fact she was urged to go down on the dotted line as chaperon for the Pi Beta Phi chapter on the University of Nebraska campus.

Complimenting Mrs. Stuart with a coffee this morning will be Mrs. Robert Eyth who will have the alumnae officers of Pi Beta Phi as her guests.

* * *

Fern Hubbard Orme was off and away to Lake Geneva, Wis., on Wednesday, and the purpose of the trip was the wedding of Mrs Orme's only niece, Ann Hubbard, and Warren Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hosea Freeman of Mansfield, Mo., which will take place on Saturday morning at the Emanuel Evangelical Church in Lake Geneva.

The bride-elect, who attended grade school in Lincoln. and also the University of Nebraska, is the fourth generation of Hubbards to have resided in Lincoln. Her parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Hubbard, now of Lake Geneva, resided here as did her grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hubbard— and her great-grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Hubbard.

Miss Hubbard was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, and Mr. Freeman from Southeast Missouri State College. He now is a special agent in the Office of the Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

On Friday evening Mrs. Orme will preside at dinner at the Ronde Manor, Lake Geneva, in prenuptial courtesy to her niece and Mr. Freeman.

Back home again after a 50-day tour of Europe—and after missing the famed London train robbery by just two days, are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Paulson, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Trowbridge, Dr. and Mrs. George Corfield, Dr. and Mrs. Carl Rosenquist, Mrs. B. F. Schwartz, Mrs. Lawrence Lindgren, Mrs. Susan Holland, Mrs. Edna Perrin, Miss Mildred Shannon, Mrs. Charlotte Ralston, Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart, Mrs. Mary Holding, and George Mann.

The travelers were members of a tour sponsored by Nebraska Wesleyan University, and visited Scotland, England, Norway, Sweden, France, Germany, Switzerland, Austria and Holland.

Former Coed, Bride

The marriage of Miss Patricia Neff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Neff of Lexington, to Larry Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevenson of Orleans, was solemnized Sunday evening, Aug. 25, at the Methodist Church in Lexington. The Rev. James Erwin read the lines of the 7 o'clock service.

Wearing daytime frocks of blue cotton faille were Miss Judy Millington, Lincoln, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaid, Miss Carol Bieck, Lexington. Each carried a single white glamelia.

Keith Christensen of North Bend served as Mr. Stevensen as best man, and the ushers were Gary Neff of Lincoln, brother of the bride; Robert Martin, Lexington; and Ronald Dyer, Franklin.

The bride appeared in a gown of white peau de soie and Alencon lace. A circlet of organza petals held her illusion veil, and she carried a cascade of white glamelias.

The couple will reside in Bayard where the bridegroom, a June graduate of the University of Nebraska, will be a member of the high school faculty. Mrs. Stevenson is a former student at the university.

A Trio Of Guests

Actually Mrs. Charles Battey and her two sons, Charles, Jr. (left) and David are not just a guest trio— they comprise three-fourths of a guest foursome.

Mr. and Mrs. Battey and the two young Batteys arrived a few days ago from Northbrook, Ill., to spend two weeks as the house guests of Mr. Battey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton Battey.

From Omaha on Tuesday came Mrs. Harold Andersen and her young son, David, who spent the day with her brother and sister-in-law and their family, at the home of her parents.

To Entertain

Mrs. Edward Bohlman will be hostess on Friday at her home, 1525 So. 11th, to the members of the Friendship Club. Following a 1 o'clock luncheon, the group will spend the afternoon hours informally.

Pageant To Memorialize Teenage Sioux Princess

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Red Cloud — After Saturday, the grave of Alice Blue Cloud should have fewer skeptics.

The teenage Sioux princess will step from legend to life through the first annual pageant of the newly-organized "white Indians." More than memorializing Chief Red Cloud's daughter, they hope to dispel decades of controversy about the great high hill south of town.

Is its marker right in naming this the final resting place of Blue Cloud, still spoken of by her people as "age 18 and with much beauty" or did the dreaded smallpox truly claim, as some say, an Otoe Indian maid not even of the town namesake's tribe?

"We're convinced it's the one true story that our high schoolers will be enacting," insisted Norman A. Peirce, chairman and well known devotee of Indian lore. "There is no other city in the world named after the famous Chief Red Cloud, so why shouldn't we make the most of his several visits here?"

As reconstructed by the 22-member cast, it was an 1873 buffalo hunt which lured the Sioux for the last time from their own lands to the Republican Valley. There it was that Blue Cloud—Alice had been added as a Christian name—was suddenly attacked by an evil spirit which sped terror through every teepee.

"Uncle Lew (Hummel) used to put me on his lap and describe over and over the wailing of the braves and chanting of the medicine man," recalled the still-impressed grocer. "He had hidden himself in a tree and personally witnessed by moonlight the princess' death and immediate burial."

Eight visits to the Oglala Sioux in the Black Hills have since bolstered other testimony taken by Peirce from Webster County oldtimers. Perhaps most impressive of all, however, was confirmation relayed from the late Jim Cloud that his grandfather had indeed lost the princess in that vicinity.

The one-hour pageant will dramatize how Blue Cloud's favorite pony was strangled and buried in upright position ready for her ride to the happy hunting grounds.

Peirce has records of one woman who as a youngster had viewed the girl's skeleton after the grave had been partially opened by the curious.

"She was sitting up with long loose black hair over her face," the late Mrs. Frisbie had stated. "Her lovely saddle was in the grave and some pans and kettles were about."

Climax of the three-day annual fall festival, the presentation is cited by sponsors as evidence of an awakening appreciation of town heritage. Teamed with tours of "Willa Cather country" and other local attractions, the pageant will have Gov. Frank Morrison in its audience.

Authentic Indian costumes, music and dramatic lighting are expected to add to the outdoor stage's effectiveness. Narration of the 8 p.m. pantomime performance will be shared by Peirce and co-chairman Mrs. Charles Blackstone.

"This is just a modest beginning, but we believe some such annual review has unlimited potential here," said Mrs. Blackstone. "And starting with a name like Red Cloud, who knows how far we might go?"

Questions And Answers

Patricia Scott

Remodeling ready-to-wear garments has many limitations. You can successfully change some styles, but you must have matching fabric to do so.

Q. I took out the sleeves of a ready-to-wear dress and the armholes are much too large. How can I fill them in to make a sleeveless dress? — Mrs. H. D. C.

A. You can't fill in armholes that are too large. Only a pattern can be altered to make a dress with sleeves suitable for a sleeveless version.

Q. I have ruined a couple of dresses I made before gaining weight. The fabric has actually pulled apart on each side of the bodice from the armhole seam right down to the waistline. I have matching fabric. Can I patch them up in any way to get a little more wear out of them? — Mrs. J. M.

A. Your dresses can be salvaged. To make a panel patch, cut out the underarm section of the bodice from the sleeve down to the waist. Using this section as a pattern, cut, match and seam in a new piece as in figure A. However, remember when you cut the patch that you must leave double seam allowance on the patch edge to be seamed to the bodice to make up for the seam allowance that is taken out of the bodice. The patch will blend in nicely on the right side of the dress (figure B).

Q. I have various sized table cloths but with no napkins to match. I would like to make linen napkins as coordinates. What are the conventional sizes of napkins? Can I handroll the edges and in some cases make very narrow hems with the machine? — MRS. T. B.

A. The edges can be finished either way. Here are sizes: Cocktail, 5 by 7 inches; luncheon, 12 by 12 to 18 by 18 inches; tea, 11 by 11 to 14 by 14 inches; dinner, 20 by 20, 24 by 24, or 28 by 28 inches.

Dear Abby

Prove It To Dad

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when your father gets out a bar of soap and tries to wash off eye make-up you don't have on? Abby, this happens at least once a week. Sometimes I have to go to church with bloodshot eyes, and when my friends ask me what's wrong it's hard to think up something different every week. I am almost 15 and I don't think my father realizes that I am beginning to look like my mother, who is very beautiful. I promise to take your advice.

GIDGET

DEAR GIDGET: Enlist the help of your beautiful mother to convince your skeptical father that you are real. Tell father to skip the soap—and YOU skip the lie.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: I haven't slept in two nights because of my problem. I took $75 of my husband's and my joint savings account and I don't have any way of putting it back because I don't work. I've spent it all. I would like to know what you would do if you were in my shoes. I have to know real soon.

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: I'd tell my husband about it and quit punishing myself for something that has already been done.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: When should a girl stop taking a stuffed animal to bed with her? My daughter is almost 16 and she still sleeps with a ratty stuffed teddy bear she's had since she was 3. All the years she went to summer camp she dragged that shabby-looking teddy bear along. I've been after her to throw it away, but she won't do it. Should I "accidentally" throw it out while cleaning house? I am afraid that her refusal to give up babyish toys might retard her emotional growth.

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR WORRIED: Don't worry. And don't "accidentally" throw out the teddy bear. It apparently provides your daughter with the feeling of security she needs. If she shows other signs of "emotional retardation," talk to your doctor about it. Your nagging could do her more harm than sleeping with the teddy bear.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: My dear father-in-law died six months ago. Had he lived a little longer, my mother-in-law and he would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary next month. My sister-in-law wants to give a big anniversary party, complete with guests and gifts anyway. She argues that the "family" has looked forward to this golden wedding anniversary for so long it is only "fair" to give Mother the party. My husband I believe such a celebration would be improper. What is your opinion?

JUST WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Your husband and you are right. Since your father-in-law is not living, such a celebration would be out of order. Give your mother-in-law a corsage and invite her to a quiet family dinner.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

The most aggravating part of bridge is that it's so easy to make a mistake. You plug along, hand after hand, trying hard to avoid error, and then, all of a sudden, you goof and the roof comes tumbling down. Most of the mistakes could easily have been avoided, but something went wrong with the think machinery and the engine somehow conked out.

For example, look at this hand where South played in four hearts and West led the queen of clubs. Declarer took the club with the ace and played a low heart. West won with the ace and returned the jack of clubs, covered by the king and ruffed by East. Declarer later lost a diamond and a club and went down one as a result.

Of course, South should have made the hand. He slipped at trick one. It may not have seemed important at the time whether he won the opening lead in dummy with the king or in his own hand with the ace, but later events proved that it would have been wiser to take the first trick in dummy.

If South had done this he would have made the contract. He would lead a heart at trick two and get the club return just the same, but the outcome would have been vastly different. If East ruffed, South would naturally follow low, while if East discarded, South would win the ace. In either case, he would lose only three tricks — a heart, a diamond and a club.

Considering that West had bid two clubs, South should have made allowance for the possibility that he had overcalled with a six-card suit, and should have protected against that danger by playing the king from dummy.

These plays you run into that appear to make no difference should always be viewed with suspicion. If you ignore them, or treat them with disrespect, they have a way of coming back to haunt you — especially if they affect your bank account!

Plan Early Autumn Weddings

Miss Barbara Jo Kehm, who will become the bride of Bob Lebo on Sunday, Sept. 8, has been honored at a series of prenuptial courtesies recently preceding her approaching wedding.

The bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. Orval Irons, was hostess at her home recently when the guests presented a miscellaneous shower to Miss Kehm.

Also entertaining at a bridal party for Miss Kehm recently was Mrs. Bill Whitmer who was hostess to a group of friends at her home.

Honoring a soon-to-be bride on Wednesday evening was Mrs. J. L. Dvorak who was hostess at her home in courtesy to Miss Sandy Gross, whose marriage to Mrs. Dvorak's nephew, Larry Dvorak, will be an event of Sunday, Sept. 1.

The guests, who included feminine members of Miss Gross' and Mr. Dvorak's families, presented a miscellaneous shower to the honoree. An out-of-town guest at the party was Mr. Dvorak's cousin, Miss Penny Lemon of Yakima, Wash.

The wedding of Miss Gross and Mr. Dvorak will take place at 3:30 o'clock at the United Lutheran Church. The service will be solemnized in the presence of members of the immediate families.

Kindergarten Is A Very New World

Can you remember your first day of school? The butterflies that fluttered as your mother nervously administered a good, hot breakfast; the final look at yourself in the hall mirror—a small, pale stranger in clothes that were unfamiliar from the skin out?

Remembering the trauma of it all can help us make our own youngsters' first day of school a bit more comfortable, says Jean Kinkead, who is a women's consultant for an insurance company.

Speaking as the mother of five children, she offers a few suggestions. "These are only suggestions," Miss Kinkead stresses. "They aren't rules. And your own good judgment about your own youngster is your very best guide."

1. Remember that your own inner attitude will somehow communicate itself to your child, no matter how good an actress you think you are. Cut the apron-strings as cheerfully and courageously as you can in the weeks before school opens. Your child will actually feel your courage.

2. Be sure he's had several good looks at the school he'll be attending, and, if possible, at his own schoolroom. Find out his teacher's name, and bring her into pre-school conversations frequently.

3. Get him to bed as serenely as possible the night before "the big day," making sure that he knows just what he's going to wear in the morning. (Something he's at home in, of course!) Check his clothes for loose buttons, zipper trouble, etc. to avoid morning panic. If he tells you that he's worried, let him know that this is perfectly natural. Tell him frankly, "We have to expect that feeling. Everyone has it about doing new things."

4. If necessary, set two alarm clocks so that you get up with time to spare in the morning. Don't force unwanted food on a fluttery tummy, and don't talk too much. This is a major event, and the whole family feels it. You'll all handle it better if you don't chatter. Let the home-coming lunch be gala and party-ish, but keep breakfast quiet and light.

5. Explain to him once more about the bus, or whatever method of transportation he'll be using. (You'll probably have done this a dozen times before.) Most schools like you to have his name and address pinned on him. If your school does not, write this information on a card, and let him keep it in his pocket for comfort.

6. When you've seen him off with a misty smile, scoot back into the house for a nice cup of coffee. Then, relax and enjoy it.

COTNER TERRACE

Here we are, almost to the end of another busy week and a very busy month. Soon the days will be getting shorter, the nights longer, and the activity more plentiful — if that is possible.

Although our autumn weather seems to have disappeared temorarily, there are still several things which are not missing in the area this week — and those are, guests, vacation returnees and birthday celebrants.

And since we mentioned vacation returnees we'll tell you that Gloria Sumption, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lavon Sumption will be returning home on Saturday from Walker, Minn.

Accompanying Gloria on her trip homeward will be her grandmother, Mrs. James Katzmark of Minneapolis.

This is not all the activity that will take place at the Sumption home on Saturday, for Robin Sumption will be celebrating her fourth anniversary.

Robin's guests for the afternoon party will be eight neighborhood pre-schoolers.

Planning a trip for the Labor Day weekend will be Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tetherow and their son Tom.

The destination point will be Valentine where they will be the guests of Mr. Tetherow's mother, Mrs. P. N. Tetherow.

Mr. and Mrs. Tetherow and Tom will be returning home on Sunday.

Out-of-town guests who will be arriving tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Helliger and their children, Mark and Lee Ann, will be Mr. and Mrs. Bill Soelberg.

Mr. and Mrs. Soelberg, who reside in Sioux City, Iowa, will be the house-guests of the Helliger family during the Labor Day weekend.

Motoring to Beatrice last weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Don Hubbard who were the guests of Mr. Hubbard's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Trauble.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard left Lincoln on Friday and returned home Sunday evening.

A special guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hudzicki last weekend was Mrs. Hudzicki's father, Will Faulstick of Norfolk.

Mr. Faulstick also visited with his other son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Myhre, during his short stay in Lincoln.

CASINO HEIGHTS

A birthday celebrant in the Casino Heights area — and a very special one, was Mrs. Otto R. Benner who was eighty-nine years young last Sunday.

A Trio Of Guests

Actually Mrs. Charles Battey and her two sons, Charles, Jr. (left) and David are not just a guest trio—they comprise three-fourths of a guest foursome.

Mr. and Mrs. Battey and the two young Batteys arrived a few days ago from Northbrook, Ill., to spend two weeks as the house guests of Mr. Battey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wheaton Battey.

From Omaha on Tuesday came Mrs. Harold Andersen and her young son, David, who spent the day with her brother and sister-in-law and their family, at the home of her parents.

To Entertain

Mrs. Edward Bohlman will be hostess on Friday at her home, 1525 So. 11th, to the members of the Friendship Club. Following a 1 o'clock luncheon, the group will spend the afternoon hours informally.

Evening Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Martha Carol Bliss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Earl Bliss, to Ernest Eugene McPeek, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. McPeek of Euclid, Ohio, was solemnized Wednesday evening, Aug. 28, at the First Evangelical United Brethren Church. The Rev. Richard A. Heim read the lines of the 8 o'clock service, and Miss Connie Hodson, organist, played the wedding music. The vocal soloist was Roy F. Frohardt.

Wearing daytime frocks of textured cotton in aqua and carrying bouquets of white Fuji chrysanthemums were Mrs. Burneil Lindquist, as the matron of honor, and the bridesmatron, Mrs. James Remington.

Oran Breeze of Bluford, Ill., served as best man, and the ushers were Raleigh Gordon of Oakharbor, Ohio; Charles Duncan, Denver; and James Remington.

For her wedding, the bride chose a gown of white peau de soie. The sculptured bodice, which was fashioned with long sleeves and a portrait neckline, was appliqued with re-embroidered lace and pearls, and the bouffant skirt continued into a chapel train. Her illusion veil was held by a pearl crown, and she carried white feathered carnations and gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. McPeek will make their home in Denver. The bride is a former student at the University of Nebraska and is a member of Beta Sigma Phi business women's sorority.

The News Around Town

There is a news flash from Champaign, Ill., this morning and it has to do with a brand new member of Champaign's nursery set. Thomas Raysor Hancock arrived on Monday, Aug. 26. The baby's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hancock, and his mother is the former Cecily Raysor, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. Thomas Raysor of Lincoln. Young Thomas' paternal grandmother, Mrs. E. W. Hancock, left on Tuesday evening to extend her personal greetings to the newest member of the Hancock family.

Mr. Hancock is a member of the University of Illinois department of philosophy faculty. He is a graduate of the University of Chicago, and received his doctorate at Yale University.

* * *

Here at home we find there are guests to mention —Miss Linda Girard of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for instance.

Miss Girard is the house guest of Miss Patricia Ager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ager, who was her roommate at Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Mo., last year.

Neither Miss Ager nor her guest will return to Lindenwood, however. Miss Ager will attend the University of Nebraska, and Miss Girard will be a student at the University of Wisconsin.

* * *

We are by no means putting Mrs. Ruth Stuart in the same category as 'The Man Who Came to Dinner' — There is a slight similarity, but there also is a vastly different angle.

Mrs. Staart came from Minneapolis to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Fibiger, and has been prevailed upon to remain in Lincoln. As a matter of fact she was urged to go down on the dotted line as chaperon for the Pi Beta Phi chapter on the University of Nebraska campus.

Complimenting Mrs. Stuart with a coffee this morning will be Mrs. Robert Eyth who will have the alumnae officers of Pi Beta Phi as her guests.

* * *

Fern Hubbard Orme was off and away to Lake Geneva, Wis., on Wednesday, and the purpose of the trip was the wedding of Mrs Orme's only niece, Ann Hubbard, and Warren Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hosea Freeman of Mansfield, Mo., which will take place on Saturday morning at the Emanuel Evangelical Church in Lake Geneva.

The bride-elect, who attended grade school in Lincoln, and also the University of Nebraska, is the fourth generation of Hubbards to have resided in Lincoln. Her parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Hubbard, now of Lake Geneva, resided here as did her grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hubbard—and her great-grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Hubbard.

Miss Hubbard was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, and Mr. Freeman from Southeast Missouri State College. He now is a special agent in the Office of the Inspector General of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

On Friday evening Mrs. Orme will preside at dinner at the Ronde Manor, Lake Geneva, in prenuptial courtesy to her niece and Mr. Freeman.

Back home again after a 50-day tour of Europe—and after missing the famed London train robbery by just two days, are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Paulson, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Trowbridge, Dr. and Mrs. George Corfield, Dr. and Mrs. Carl Rosenquist, Mrs. B. F. Schwartz, Mrs. Lawrence Lindgren, Mrs. Susan Holland, Mrs. Edna Perrin, Miss Mildred Shannon, Mrs. Charlotte Ralston, Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart, Mrs. Mary Holding, and George Mann.

The travelers were members of a tour sponsored by Nebraska Wesleyan University, and visited Scotland, England, Norway, Sweden, France, Germany, Switzerland, Austria and Holland.

Former Coed, Bride

The marriage of Miss Patricia Neff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Neff of Lexington, to Larry Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stevenson of Orleans, was solemnized Sunday evening, Aug. 25, at the Methodist Church in Lexington. The Rev. James Erwin read the lines of the 7 o'clock service.

Wearing daytime frocks of blue cotton faille were Miss Judy Millington, Lincoln, the maid of honor, and the bridesmaid, Miss Carol Bieck, Lexington. Each carried a single white glamelia.

Keith Christensen of North Bend served as Mr. Stevenson as best man, and the ushers were Gary Neff of Lincoln, brother of the bride; Robert Martin, Lexington; and Ronald Dyer, Franklin.

The bride appeared in a gown of white peau de soie and Alencon lace. A circlet of organza petals held her illusion veil, and she carried a cascade of white glamelias.

The couple will reside in Bayard where the bridegroom, a June graduate of the University of Nebraska, will be a member of the high school faculty. Mrs. Stevenson is a former student at the university.

Stromer Outlines 3 Education Goals

The chairman of the Legislature's Interim Study Committee on Higer Education Wednesday outlined three broad goals his group will work towards.

Sen. Marvin E. Stromer of Lincoln said they are:

—Advisibility of establishing a single board to govern all Nebraska's institutions of higher learning.

—Advisibility of a single executive authority for the public colleges and universities.

—And a better working relationship between the University of Omaha and other tax-supported institutions of higher education.

Stromer said he arrived at the goals after conferring recently with Joseph R. Smiley, president of the University of Colorado, and Colorado Gov. John A. Love.

"The knowledge I gleaned from both Smiley and Love will be very useful to the committee," he said. "Smiley in particular had several excellent ideas."

Stromer said the purpose of his Colorado visit was to extract information to be used as foundation material for the Nebraska study.

He also disclosed he has had offers from the University of California and University of North Carolina education complexes to study their facilities.

The Lincoln lawmaker, himself a college professor, said he will discuss the invitations with the committee when it meets for the first time Sept. 20 at 2 p.m. in Lincoln.

Stromer said it is his hope the committee can gather as much information as possible about progress and problems other states in the field of higher education "so we will have some guidelines to use for proposed legislation."

Omaha (AP)—The Army Engineers district office said that Harry F. Berggren and Sons, Inc., Scottsbluff, had made the apparent low bid of $121,943 for stage three work on the Gering Valley flood protection project.

The government estimate for the work was $124,456.

The work will be three miles south of Gering and consist of the west Gering and the Yensen drain. Both are tributaries to the main Gering drain.

There were six bids with the second apparent low being $132,018 by the Joe Dougherty Construction Co., Lincoln.

It Seams To Me

Questions And Answers

Patricia Scott

Remodeling ready-to-wear garments has many limitations. You can successfully change some styles, but you must have matching fabric to do so.

Q. I took out the sleeves of a ready-to-wear dress and the armholes are much too large. How can I fill them in to make a sleeveless dress? — Mrs. H. D. C.

A. You can't fill in armholes that are too large. Only a pattern can be altered to make a dress with sleeves suitable for a sleeveless version.

Q. I have ruined a couple of dresses I made before gaining weight. The fabric has actually pulled apart on each side of the bodice from the armhole seam right down to the waistline. I have matching fabric. Can I patch them up in any way to get a little more wear out of them? — Mrs. J. M.

A. Your dresses can be salvaged. To make a panel patch, cut out the underarm section of the bodice from the sleeve down to the waist. Using this section as a pattern, cut, match and seam in a new piece as in figure A. However, remember when you cut the patch that you must leave double seam allowance on the patch edge to be seamed to the bodice to make up for the seam allowance that is taken out of the bodice. The patch will blend in nicely on the right side of the dress (figure B).

Q. I have various sized table cloths but with no napkins to match. I would like to make linen napkins as coordinates. What are the conventional sizes of napkins? Can I handroll the edges and in some cases make very narrow hems with the machine? — MRS. T. B.

A. The edges can be finished either way. Here are sizes: Cocktail, 5 by 7 inches; luncheon, 12 by 12 to 18 by 18 inches; tea, 11 by 11 to 14 by 14 inches; dinner, 20 by 20, 24 by 24, or 28 by 28 inches.

Dear Abby

Prove It To Dad

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when your father gets out a bar of soap and tries to wash off eye make-up you don't have on? Abby, this happens at least once a week. Sometimes I have to go to church with bloodshot eyes, and when my friends ask me what's wrong it's hard to think up something different every week. I am almost 15 and I don't think my father realizes that I am beginning to look like my mother, who is very beautiful. I promise to take your advice.

GIDGET

DEAR GIDGET: Enlist the help of your beautiful mother to convince your skeptical father that you are real. Tell father to skip the soap—and YOU skip the lie.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: I haven't slept in two nights because of my problem. I took $75 of my husband's and my joint savings account and I don't have any way of putting it back because I don't work. I've spent it all. I would like to know what you would do if you were in my shoes. I have to know real soon.

WORRIED SICK

DEAR WORRIED: I'd tell my husband about it and quit punishing myself for something that has already been done.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: When should a girl stop taking a stuffed animal to bed with her? My daughter is almost 16 and she still sleeps with a ratty stuffed teddy bear she's had since she was 3. All the years she went to summer camp she dragged that shabby-looking teddy bear along. I've been after her to throw it away, but she won't do it. Should I "accidentally" throw it out while cleaning house? I am afraid that her refusal to give up babyish toys might retard her emotional growth.

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR WORRIED: Don't worry. And don't "accidentally" throw out the teddy bear. It apparently provides your daughter with the feeling of security she needs. If she shows other signs of "emotional retardation," talk to your doctor about it. Your nagging could do her more harm than sleeping with the teddy bear.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: My dear father-in-law died six months ago. Had he lived a little longer, my mother-in-law and he would have celebrated their golden wedding anniversary next month. My sister-in-law wants to give a big anniversary party, complete with guests and gifts anyway. She argues that the "family" has looked forward to this golden wedding anniversary for so long it is only "fair" to give Mother the party. My husband I believe such a celebration would be improper. What is your opinion?

JUST WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Your husband and you are right. Since your father-in-law is not living, such a celebration would be out of order. Give your mother-in-law a corsage and invite her to a quiet family dinner.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

The most aggravating part of bridge is that it's so easy to make a mistake. You plug along, hand after hand, trying hard to avoid error, and then, all of a sudden, you goof and the roof comes tumbling down. Most of the mistakes could easily have been avoided, but something went wrong with the think machinery and the engine somehow conked out.

For example, look at this hand where South played in four hearts and West led the queen of clubs. Declarer took the club with the ace and played a low heart. West won with the ace and returned the jack of clubs, covered by the king and ruffed by East. Declarer lat-er lost a diamond and a club and went down one as a result.

Of course, South should have made the hand. He slipped at trick one. It may not have seemed important at the time whether he won the opening lead in dummy with the king or in his own hand with the ace, but later events proved that it would have been wiser to take the first trick in dummy.

If South had done this he would have made the contract. He would lead a heart at trick two and get the club return just the same, but the outcome would have been vastly different. If East ruffed, South would naturally follow low, while if East discarded, South would win win the ace. In either case, he would lose only three tricks — a heart, a diamond and a club.

Considering that West had bid two clubs, South should have made allowance for the possibility that he had overcalled with a six-card suit, and should have protected against that danger by playing the king from dummy.

These plays you run into that appear to make no difference should always be viewed with suspicion. If you ignore them, or treat them with disrespect, they have a way of coming back to haunt you — especially if they affect your bank account!

Plan Early Autumn Weddings

Miss Barbara Jo Kehm, who will become the bride of Bob Lebo on Sunday, Sept. 8, has been honored at a series of prenuptial courtesies recently preceding her approaching wedding.

The bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. Orval Irons, was hostess at her home recently when the guests presented a miscellaneous shower to Miss Kehm.

Also entertaining at a bridal party for Miss Kehm recently was Mrs. Bill Whitmer who was hostess to a group of friends at her home.

Honoring a soon-to-be bride on Wednesday evening was Mrs. J. L. Dvorak who was hostess at her home in courtesy to Miss Sandy Gross, whose marriage to Mrs. Dvorak's nephew, Larry Dvorak, will be an event of Sunday, Sept. 1.

The guests, who included feminine members of Miss Gross' and Mr. Dvorak's families, presented a miscellaneous shower to the honoree. An out-of-town guest at the party was Mr. Dvorak's cousin, Miss Penny Lemon of Yakima, Wash.

The wedding of Miss Gross and Mr. Dvorak will take place at 3:30 o'clock at the United Lutheran Church. The service will be solemnized in the presence of members of the immediate families.

Kindergarten Is A Very New World

Can you remember your first day of school? The butterflies that fluttered as your mother nervously administered a good, hot breakfast; the final look at yourself in the hall mirror—a small, pale stranger in clothes that were unfamiliar from the skin out?

Remembering the trauma of it all can help us make our own youngsters' first day of school a bit more comfortable, says Jean Kinkead, who is a women's consultant for an insurance company.

Speaking as the mother of five children, she offers a few suggestions. "These are only suggestions," Miss Kinkead stresses. "They aren't rules. And your own good judgment about your own youngster is your very best guide."

1. Remember that your own inner attitude will somehow communicate itself to your child, no matter how good an actress you think you are. Cut the apron-strings as cheerfully and courageously as you can in the weeks before school opens. Your child will actually feel your courage.

2. Be sure he's had several good looks at the school he'll be attending, and, if possible, at his own schoolroom. Find out his teacher's name, and bring her into pre-school conversations frequently.

3. Get him to bed as serenely as possible the night before "the big day," making sure that he knows just what he's going to wear in the morning. (Something he's at home in, of course!) Check his clothes for loose buttons, zipper trouble, etc. to avoid morning panic. If he tells you that he's worried, let him know that this is perfectly natural. Tell him frankly, "We have to expect that feeling. Everyone has it about doing new things."

4. If necessary, set two alarm clocks so that you get up with time to spare in the morning. Don't force unwanted food on a fluttery tummy, and don't talk too much. This is a major event, and the whole family feels it. You'll all handle it better if you don't chatter. Let the home-coming lunch be gala and party-ish, but keep breakfast quiet and light.

5. Explain to him once more about the bus, or whatever method of transportation he'll be using. (You'll probably have done this a dozen times before.) Most schools like you to have his name and address pinned on him. If your school does not, write this information on a card, and let him keep it in his pocket for comfort.

6. When you've seen him off with a misty smile, scoot back into the house for a nice cup of coffee. Then, relax and enjoy it.

Barmaid Provides Clue To Robbery

London (UPI) — Detectives tracking down Britain's great train robbery gang Wednesday searched for two new suspects after a suburban barmaid reported the men offered her a tip of $1,120 if she would take a suitcase full of cash to a London railway station.

Police were said to believe the money might be part of the record loot of $7.3 million taken in the commando-like robbery of the Glasgow-to-London mail train near Cheddington Aug. 8.

The barmaid, Toni Weston, 25, told police she had met the two men after closing time in a car outside the Brampton Hut Hotel where they had spent Monday night drinking brandy with beer chasers. The hotel is near Huntingdon, 62 miles north of London and 35 miles from the robbery scene.

Notes In Suitcase

Miss Weston said one of the men showed her a suitcase "crammed full of notes."

"He told me, 'There is 10,000 pounds ($28,000) in there,' she said.

"Then he grabbed a handful of notes and said: 'Here's 400 pounds ($1,120) for you if you'll take the case to Liverpool Street Station. But you'll have to keep quiet.'"

Miss Weston told police the men fled when her employer, Howard Bossick, came out of the bar. She said Bossick chased the men in his car but they escaped.

Scotland yard declined comment on Miss Weston's story but a spokesman at search headquarters in Aylesbury said "inquiries are being made" in the Huntingdon area.

The hunt for the train robbers spread to the farming area of Ongar, about 60 miles east of Cheddington.

About 20 plainclothesmen accompanied by a Flying Squad officer searched a farm in the Ongar area of Essex County. A police spokesman said no arrests had been made so far as a result of the operation.

Nine Arrested

Nine persons have been arrested in the case thus far. Three of them have been charged with participating in the robbery and the six others with receiving stolen money.

Scotland Yard also made a new move in the search for cafe proprietor James Edward White, 43, one of three prime suspects the general public has been asked to watch out for. The yard issued a photograph of White's wife, named Sherree or Cherry, and said she may be traveling with him. The couple also have a baby and a white poodle named Gigi.

Other key suspects whose pictures have been circulated by Scotland Yard are Roy John (The Weasel) James, a 28-year-old automobile racer and Bruce Richard Reynolds, 41, an antique dealer.

80 Pigs Valued At $5,000 Stolen

Omaha (AP) — About 80 pigs valued at more than $5,000 have been stolen from the Enno Mueller farm near Bennington, the sheriff's office reported Wednesday.

Deputy Sheriff Clyde Brown said a truck apparently was used to haul the pigs away while Mueller was working at the Douglas County Fair over the weekend.

Mueller raises the pigs for breeding purposes.

Johnson: Win Is Defeat For Forces Of Federal Control

Jackson, Miss. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Paul Johnson Wednesday called his record-shattering vicotry in the Mississippi Democratic governor's race a defeat for "the dark forces of federal control."

The 47-year-old Hattiesburg lawyer, who carried 69 of the state's 82 counties in Tuesday's second primary voting, won by more than 65,000 votes over former Gov. J. P. Coleman.

Johnson still faces the Nov. 5 general election but his victory statement ignored Republican and possibly independent opposition and assumed he would take office Jan. 21 as the next governor of this Deep South state.

However, most observers predict Republican Rubel Phillips will be the first serious GOP contender since Reconstruction days after the Civil War.

Although both Johnson and Coleman campaigned as anti-Kennedy segregationists, Johnson hammered away at Coleman's support of President Kennedy in the 1960 national elections.

And Johnson repeatedly told the state he "stood up for Mississippi" when he blocked an effort by Negro James Meredith to enter the University of Mississippi last fall. The lieutenant governor faces federal contempt of court prosecution as a result.

Returns from all but two of the state's 1,877 precincts gave Johnson 261,424 votes to 195,094 for Coleman.

"This great vote shows the strong yearning of the people for a return to constitutional, conservative government," Johnson said, "for this campaign issue transcended all others.

"We had to defeat the dark forces of economic maladjustment, federal control and regimentation . . ."

Johnson had lost in 1947, 1951 and 1955 bids for the office his father, the late Paul Johnson Sr., held from 1940-43.

But the issues and circumstances were different this time. He had the backing of Gov. Ross Barnett, who could not succeed himself, and the Kennedy-civil rights issue.

Rescuers' Try To Contact Bova By Microphone Fails

Hazleton, Pa. (AP)—Rescue experts tried unsuccessfully for 2 and one-half hours Wednesday to make contact with Louis Bova, 54, by a supersensitive microphone and loudspeaker, then withdrew the equipment and resumed the drilling of two other shafts.

H. B. Charmbury, state secretary of mines, told a news conference after conferring with Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer that "we are not even thinking of stopping."

Bova has been trapped more than 300 feet underground for 15 days without food. He was trapped in a mine cave-in at 9 a.m. Aug. 13 with Henry Throne, 28, and David Fellin, 58.

Got Food, Water

Throne and Fellin were rescued Tuesday after two weeks entombment, but they had been getting food after six days through a six-inch lifeline to them.

Bova was separated from them by a wall of debris and reportedly was injured. He was last heard from Aug. 19, when Fellin and Throne said they talked to him.

Earlier, Fellin, recovering from his ordeal, told a news conference at the Hazelton State Hospital that "I know he (Bova) is down there and I am sure he is alive."

Fellin said that if Bova is alive he would hear the drilling. "He heard the original drilling when we were all down there," he said.

While voice contact was trying to be made with Bova, the two other drilling operations—one a 6 and one-half inch shaft, the other three inches—were temporarily halted so as to eliminate all noise. Bystanders were not permitted even to talk.

Charmbury said pictures are being taken of the interior chamber where the 12-inch hole was driven. These will be shown to Fellin and Throne and if they can identify them as the section where it is believed Bova was trapped, then the hole will be reamed to a working diameter of 22 inches and a man will be sent down.

World Views Negro Show

By COLIN FROST

London (AP) — From stately manors in the English countryside to coffee bars in Rome, western Europe surveyed the equal rights march in Washington with interest and a cautious reluctance to sermonize on other people's problems. Even the Communists in the Soviet Union and elsewhere were relatively restrained.

Live television coverage via the Telstar satellite took the scene of tens of thousands of American Negroes and whites demonstrating peacefully in Washington Wednesday into the homes of west Europeans at peak evening viewing hours.

The television coverage penetrated the Iron Curtain to Warsaw, Poland, but Moscow television canceled plans to screen the march 5 minutes before the program was due to go on. Instead, it relied on voice description and comment and presented a panel discussion on "the Negro revolution" in America.

Featured

Moscow radio also featured the march in a 3-minute report that called it the biggest political event in U.S. history. Soviet newspapers published thousands of words on the march. Although sympathetic to American Negroes, Russian news media notably refrained from criticizing the American people as a whole and praised the administration for its efforts in the civil rights field.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia devoted its main editorial to the march, asserting: "The patience of 20 million Negroes has given way. All progressive mankind, all the honest-mined people in the United States, wish them success.

"The march on Washington is only the beginning of a long and difficult road. But having once embarked upon it, people fighting for their human dignity will not leave it, will not turn back."

No Reason

The Soviet television network gave no reason for its cancellation of the scheduled pickup from the Eurovision network in the West.

But as the marchers gathered without police hindrance and demonstrated peacefully, Soviet television directors may have decided that such fare might not be received well in a land where mass demonstrations are forbidden except with official sanction.

In Warsaw, however, Poles saw the demonstration on television screens in the first Telstar transmission received in Communist Poland.

Often Jerky

The image was often jerky during two 15-minute telecasts but viewers could clearly make out closeups of the participants.

One Pole was impressed at the sight of the crowd at the foot of the Lincoln Memorial.

"It looks like Lincoln is embracing them all with his arms," he said.

"How prosperous they seem," a viewer commented as the Polish announcer related that the marchers were being asked to "return to their buses and cars."

Great Protest

The Polish announcer declared: "This is a great moral protest . . . it is one of the greatest days in the history of the U.S. capital . . . but at the same time, more and more infuriated racists are protesting the march by creating new atrocities in the south."

All Warsaw newspapers front-paged news of the march.

Kurier Polski described it as "the most powerful protest ever known against racial discrimination" and said that "the Negro problem in the United States is now ripe to be solved."

Warsaw Life (Zycie Warszawy) declared that "never has the awareness of injustice been turned into such imposing action."

Top Story

The march in Washington was a top story in the west European press, and evening newspapers headlined President Kennedy's pledge that the civil rights gains of 1963 will never be reversed and that progress to equal rights for all citizens be accelerated.

There was little editorial comment in early editions of morning newspapers but a hint of sympathy for American Negroes came through in their accounts of the march.

The London Times' Washington correspondents said the march "got under way with a middle-class decorum." He reported "the solemn impression made by tens of thousands of decent Americans exercising their right of assembly to demand freedom for millions of their countrymen."

Peaceful

In Frankfurt, the headlines reported "a peaceful march for racial equality" (in the conservative Frankfurter Allegemeine) and a "march of desperation" (in the liberal Frankfurter Rundschau).

The television presentation was in the main accompanied by only descriptive and explanatory comments. In Britain. the accounts of American network reporters were relayed, and their British counterparts stayed silent. Continental networks, because of the language barrier, had their own correspondents providing largely factual commentary.

Points most often stressed in editorials were that the United States stands on the threshold of immense social change—and that violence on the march would prove a gigantic setback for the Negro cause.

Restrained

British comments on American racial troubles have been notably more restrained over the past five years since West Indian immigration and occasional race riots demonstrated that they have problems of their own.

In some capitals African and Asian student groups went to American embassies to declare support for the marchers. West Germany's organization of pacifists and conscientious objectors began collecting funds to aid the marchers.

In London, the Evening Standard carried a dispatch from its Washington correspondent Lady Jeanne Campbell, daughter of the Duke of Argyll, saying:

"From today on the American Negro intends to become the white man's social equal.

Way Open

"The way is now open for your daughter and my daughter to marry an American Negro—and hold her head high.

"That is the meaning of the march. That is why it is history."

She forecast that the march will have little immediate political impact—but that real trouble will come Sept. 9, deadline for integration in many southern schools.

Singer Late, Sings Anyway

Washington (AP) — Singer Marian Anderson arrived in tears at the Lincoln Memorial Wednesday, just seconds too late to sing the Star Spangled Banner for the official opening of the jobs and freedom civil rights demonstration.

Singer Camilla Williams sang the national anthem in her place as the crowd, estimated by the police at 200,000 stood hushed, with bowed heads.

Miss Anderson had been caught in the traffic jam and the jampacked crowd of demonstrators and was unable to arrive to answer her name when she was called to the microphone to sing.

Later, Miss Anderson appeared on the speakers platform and sang at the request of A. Phillip Randolph, leader of the demonstration. She chose the Negro spiritual "He's Got The Whole World In His Hands." She was applauded both as she arrived on the platform and when she completed the solo.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you. —SLOW TO SERMONIZE—

World Views Negro Show

By COLIN FROST

London (AP) — From stately manors in the English countryside to coffee bars in Rome, western Europe surveyed the equal rights march in Washington with interest and a cautious reluctance to sermonize on other people's problems. Even the Communists in the Soviet Union and elsewhere were relatively restrained.

Live television coverage via the Telstar satellite took the scene of tens of thousands of American Negroes and whites demonstrating peacefully in Washington Wednesday into the homes of west Europeans at peak evening viewing hours.

The television coverage penetrated the Iron Curtain to Warsaw, Poland, but Moscow television canceled plans to screen the march 5 minutes before the program was due to go on. Instead, it relied on voice description and comment and presented a panel discussion on "the Negro revolution" in America.

Featured

Moscow radio also featured the march in a 3-minute report that called it the biggest political event in U.S. history. Soviet newspapers published thousands of words on the march. Although sympathetic to American Negroes, Russian news media notably refrained from criticizing the American people as a whole and praised the administration for its efforts in the civil rights field.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia devoted its main editorial to the march, asserting: "The patience of 20 million Negroes has given way. All progressive mankind, all the honest-minded people in the United States, wish them success.

"The march on Washington is only the beginning of a long and difficult road. But having once embarked upon it, people fighting for their human dignity will not leave it, will not turn back."

No Reason

The Soviet television network gave no reason for its cancellation of the scheduled pickup from the Eurovision network in the West.

But as the marchers gathered without police hindrance and demonstrated peacefully, Soviet television directors may have decided that such fare might not be received well in a land where mass demonstrations are forbidden except with official sanction.

In Warsaw, however, Poles saw the demonstration on television screens in the first Telstar transmission received in Communist Poland.

Often Jerky

The image was often jerky during two 15-minute telecasts but viewers could clearly make out closeups of the participants.

One Pole was impressed at the sight of the crowd at the foot of the Lincoln Memorial.

"It looks like Lincoln is embracing them all with his arms," he said.

"How prosperous they seem," a viewer commented as the Polish announcer related that the marchers were being asked to "return to their buses and cars."

Great Protest

The Polish announcer declared: "This is a great moral protest . . . it is one of the greatest days in the history of the U.S. capital . . . but at the same time, more and more infuriated racists are protesting the march by creating new atrocities in the south."

All Warsaw newspapers front-paged news of the march.

Kurier Polski described it as "the most powerful protest ever known against racial discrimination" and said that "the Negro problem in the United States is now ripe to be solved."

Warsaw Life (Zycie Warszawy) declared that "never has the awareness of injustice been turned into such imposing action."

Top Story

The march in Washington was a top story in the west European press, and evening newspapers headlined President Kennedy's pledge that the civil rights gains of 1963 will never be reversed and that progress to equal rights for all citizens be accelerated.

There was little editorial comment in early editions of morning newspapers but a hint of sympathy for American Negroes came through in their accounts of the march.

The London Times' Washington correspondents said the march "got under way with a middle-class decorum." He reported "the solemn impression made by tens of thousands of decent Americans exercising their right of assembly to demand freedom for millions of their countrymen."

Peaceful

In Frankfurt, the headlines reported "a peaceful march for racial equality" (in the conservative Frankfurter Allegemeine) and a "march of desperation" (in the liberal Frankfurter Rundschau).

The television presentation was in the main accompanied by only descriptive and explanatory comments. In Britain, the accounts of American network reporters were relayed, and their British counterparts stayed silent. Continental networks, because of the language barrier, had their own correspondents providing largely factual commentary.

Points most often stressed in editorials were that the United States stands on the threshold of immense social change—and that violence on the march would prove a gigantic setback for the Negro cause.

Restrained

British comments on American racial troubles have been notably more restrained over the past five years since West Indian immigration and occasional race riots demonstrated that they have problems of their own.

In some capitals African and Asian student groups went to American embassies to declare support for the marchers. West Germany's organization of pacifists and conscientious objectors began collecting funds to aid the marchers.

In London, the Evening Standard carried a dispatch from its Washington correspondent Lady Jeanne Campbell, daughter of the Duke of Argyll, saying:

"From today on the American Negro intends to become the white man's social equal.

Way Open

"The way is now open for your daughter and my daughter to marry an American Negro—and hold her head high.

"That is the meaning of the march. That is why it is history."

She forecast that the march will have little immediate political impact—but that real trouble will come Sept. 9, deadline for integration in many southern schools.

Singer Late, Sings Anyway

Washington (AP) — Singer Marian Anderson arrived in tears at the Lincoln Memorial Wednesday, just seconds too late to sing the Star Spangled Banner for the official opening of the jobs and freedom civil rights demonstration.

Singer Camilla Williams sang the national anthem in her place as the crowd, estimated by the police at 200,000 stood hushed, with bowed heads.

Miss Anderson had been caught in the traffic jam and the jampacked crowd of demonstrators and was unable to arrive to answer her name when she was called to the microphone to sing.

Later, Miss Anderson appeared on the speakers platform and sang at the request of A. Phillip Randolph, leader of the demonstration. She chose the Negro spiritual "He's Got The Whole World In His Hands." She was applauded both as she arrived on the platform and when she completed the solo.

Wesleyan Opens Grid Drills With 13 Lettermen On Hand

. . . HOLT, SLATINSKY TOP OFFENSIVE THREATS

Thirteen lettermen, headed by backs Chuck Holt and Mike Slatinsky, paced the Nebraska Wesleyan University Plainsmen through first-day football drills Wednesday.

Holt, an Arnold senior, led the Plainsmen last fall in offensive rushing with 225 yards in 62 carries.

Slatinsky, a quarterback, led in total offense with 337 yards on 113 plays. The St. Charles, Ill., junior was the leading passer with 351 yards gained on 20 of 58 attempts.

Other backfield lettermen reporting for duty Wednesday to Coach Ray Westover were John Kerrey, Lincoln halfback; Dwight Tietgen, DeWitt defensive back, and Willis Weisbrook, Auburn halfback.

Westover will also rely heavily on Warren Washburn, Ashland senior quarterback. Washburn netted 163 yards on 10 of 27 pass attempts last season.

Dave Nell Newlon, Tabor, Iowa, a sophomore, is expected to fill the gap at fullback created by the graduation of hard-charging Dan McCord.

Line regulars reporting were Dave Packard, Elwood Guard; Ted Bookman, Lanark, Ill., tackle; Mick Pierce, Lincoln tackle; Ron Fox, Lincoln guard; Jim Schwamb, Sidney guard, and Bob Olson, Blair center.

The Plainsmen will hold two-a-day drills until school starts Sept. 11 in preparation for the season opener with Midland College here Sept. 14.

Cincy Slaps Dodgers, 9-5

Los Angeles (AP)—Jim Maloney posted his 19th victory as Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles, 9-5, Wednesday night and trimmed the Dodgers' National League lead to 5½ games over second-place San Francisco.

The Giants and Dodgers open a four-game series here Thursday night.

Maloney, forced to leave after seven innings with a pulled back muscle, ran his strikeout total for the season beyond the 200-mark and joined Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale of the Dodgers in an exclusive trio in the National League.

Maury Wills' error on an easy bounder by Pete Rose with two down in the third paved the way for two Cincinnati runs. Podres walked Tommy Harper and Vada Pinson then hit a curving liner to deep center. Willie Davis saw the ball fall at his feet as he tried to pull around for the catch, and Harper and Rose scored.

Annual Horse Program Set For Pioneers Park

. . . 5 STATE AREA REPRESENTED

If you're any kind of a horse lover and you happen to be in Pioneers Park Sunday, you've got it made.

The horses will be there and they'll be doing all sort of things.

The occasion is the second annual Cornhusker Combined Training Event, an affair good enough to draw horses and riders from five states — Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

There will be two divisions — Jenny Camp and Preliminary. Don't feel bad about not understanding that one. It means nothing more than Class A and B. The name Jenny Camp comes from the name of a former great Olympic horse and this division is for the novice or beginner.

The preliminary division is for the more experienced horse and rider.

Each division will have four winners, and the object is to score well in three categories.

The first one is Dressage, another clever little term which roughly means the same thing as obedience trials. In this the object is to show that the horse is well-trained and works well with the rider, performing various tasks with the least of effort by the rider.

Once this portion is over, and it starts at 8 a.m., the next step is the Cross Country, the endurance phase of the three-pronged test. In this one the horse and rider cover a mile and three-quarter course containing 16 jumps.

The final one, the Stadium Jumping phase, is to demontstrate the abiltiy of the horse to come back from the endurance phase and display stamina and willingness to perform (jump nine obstacles).

The entire bit, which will take most of the day Sunday, will be north of the picnic area in the park and will be free to the public.

PEPSIS LOSE, 8-1, TO LONG BEACH

Keene, N.H. (AP)—The strong arm and big bat of Bob Wiswell sent the Omaha Pepsis down to an 8-1 defeat in the American Legion Junior Baseball Little World Series Wednesday as Long Beach, Calif., won its second game.

Omaha is now 1-1 in the tournament.

Omaha opened the scoring in the last of the fourth but Long Beach tied it in the top of the fifth and went ahead 2-1 in the top of the sixth.

The score stood at 3-1 in the top of the eighth when Wiswell made the Long Beach win a certainty with a two-base hit that cleaned the sacks and made the score 6-1.

Wiswell held Omaha to 5 hits.

In an afternoon game, Memphis, Tenn. trounced Evansville, Ind., 13-0.

Point Leader To Race At Fair

. . . WOOLLEY POTENTIAL BIG CAR RACE CHAMP

A potential new big car champion looms on the International Motor Contest Association scene in the person of Gordon Woolley, who last weekend took over the lead in association season point standings with a second place finish in the Missouri State Fair 50-mile Futurity classic.

Erstwhile front-runner Pete Folse, a three-time IMCA champ, wound up fifth in the Missouri event and dropped into the second slot.

Woolley, 39-year-old Waco, Tex., mechanic who moved into the big cars on the Midwestern circuit via modified stock cars on the Southwest's dirt quarter-miles, recently got the top ride of his career when he was assigned to the Weinberger No. 1 Chevrolet Special, a car built last winter especially for Midwestern tracks.

The Texas driver established a new IMCA world record for one-mile tracks in time trials at Sedalia, Mo., last Sunday and would have won the feature had not ignition trouble caused one cylinder of the big Chevy to cut out two laps from the finish and allowed Al Unser of Albuquerque to slip past to garner a narrow victory.

Both Woolley and Folse have filed entries with Nebraska State Fair Secretary Edwin Schultz for three days of racing here Sunday, Monday and Thursday and an entry from Unser remained a definite possibility.

GORDON WOOLLEY

Other chargers who have filed their entires include Jerry Blundy, Galesburg, Ill., winner of one feature here a year ago; Harold Leep, Wichita, Kan., who won the other two Nebraska features; Jud Larson of Kansas City, Indianapolis "500" veteran making a comeback following a coronary two years ago; Don Brown of San Bernardino, Calif., Dick Gaines of Mitchell, Ind., Jim McCune of Toledo, Ohio; Paul Dorcic of Chicago, Harry Ross of Campbell, Calif., and many others. Thirty-two entries had been recorded by Fair officials at midweek.

In addition to the three days of speedway car racing, late model stock cars are scheduled for a series of sprint races on Wednesday, Sept. 4. Time trials on all four days of racing start at 1:30 p.m.

HAMBO TO SPEEDY SCOT

Florlis Wins Fast First Heat

. . . SPEEDY SCOT RALLIES

Du Quoin, Ill. (AP)—Speedy Scot, the 2-5 unofficial favorite, rallied after a first heat loss to Florlis and captured the Hambletonian for 3-year-old trotters Wednesday by sweeping the second and third heats.

In taking the decisive third mile, the Castleton Farm's powerful colt, driven by Ralph Baldwin to his first Hambletonian triumph in 13 starts, was timed in 1:58 2-5.

Florlis, owned by Arden Homestead Stable and piloted by 60-year-old Harry Downall, was second after a vain attempt to overhaul the heavily favored Speedy Scot.

Speedy Scot won the second heat in 1:58.0 and Florlis was second by three-fourths of a length.

Florlis nipped Speedy Scot by a head in the record smashing first heat with a blazing time of 1:57 3-5-fastest by any 3-year-old trotter either in competition or against the clock only.

The fastest field in Hambletonian history proved itself in the first two heats when 10 of the 14 starters were clocked under two minutes.

The combined winning times of 5:54 established a world record for a divided three-heat aggregate. The old record was 5:58 1-5 set in 1948 at Du Quoin.

Florlis' brilliant first heat which not only shattered the Hambletonian record of 1:58 2-5, but also the world competitive mark for 3-year-old trotters of 1:58 1-5 by Caleb at Lexington, Ky., in 1961, ranked as high as Speedy Scot's triumph in the 38th blue ribbon event for 3-year-old trotters.

About 23,000 were in the stands to watch the sizzling afternoon of record breaking in 90-degree temperature. Milling around inside the fairgrounds were 19,000 more, providing a total record fair attendance.

Speedy Scot, boosting his career record to 20 victories in 26 starts, including six out of seven this year, ran his earnings to $238,710. The Hambletonian first prize was $56,619.

Ford Gains 19th Victory

New York (AP)—Three wild pitches by Boston right-hander Earl Wilson permitted three New York runs and the Yankees went on to defeat the Red Sox, 4-1, Wednesday as Whitey Ford became the first American League pitcher to record 19 victories.

The Yankees had only six hits off Wilson and Wilbur Wood, his successor, but got four of them in the first four innings to help in all their scoring.

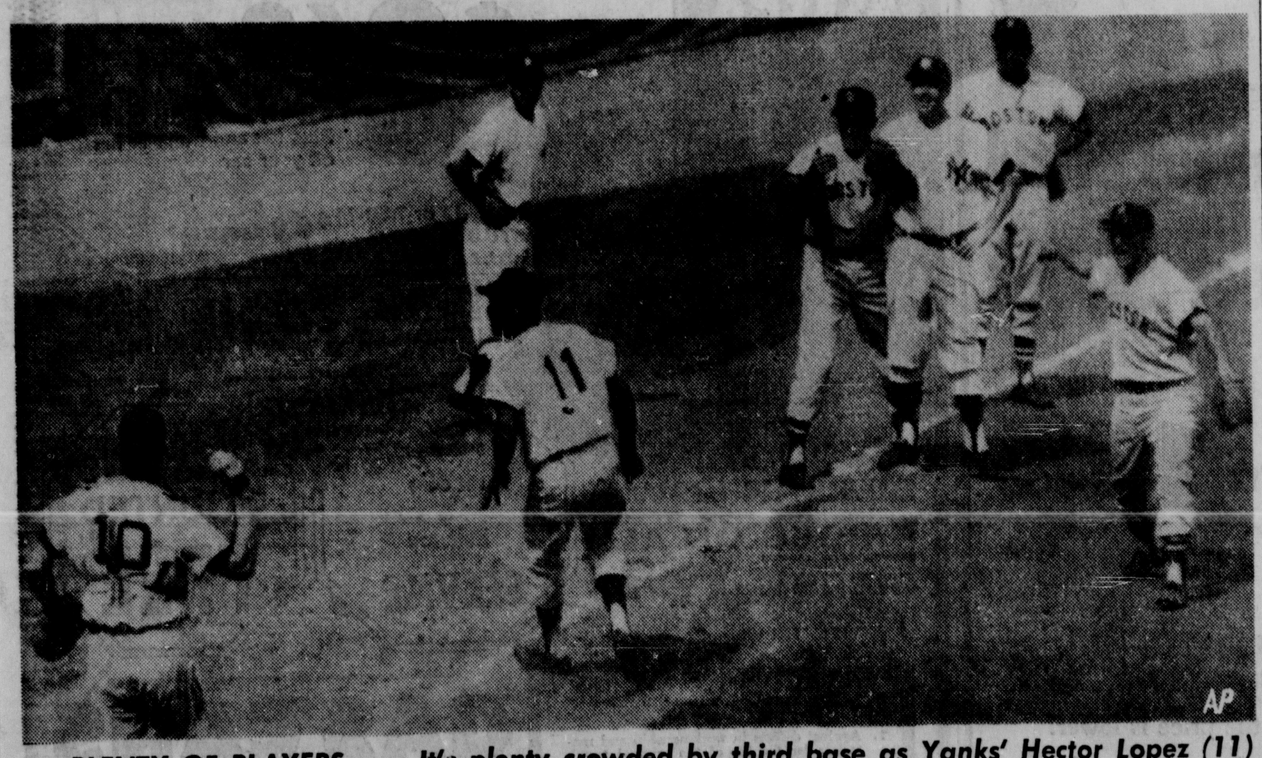
Yell School At NWU Expected To Draw 700

Some 700 high school girls are expected to attend the Third Annual Cheerleaders Clinic Sept. 14 at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Lawrence R. Herkimer, Dallas, Tex., will head the clinic. He is executive secretary of the National Cheerleaders Association and has trained more than 200,000 high school college yell leaders during the past 12 years.



PLENTY OF PLAYERS . . . It's plenty crowded by third base as Yanks' Hector Lopez (11) is caught in a rundown. Clete Boyer is already on third as Bosox catcher Bob Tillman (10) chases Lopez. Ed Bressoud is guarding third, Roman Mejias is backing him up, Frank Malzone, right, just fielded the grounder and Yankee coach Frank Crosetti, top left, looks on.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. Oliver Hits 2 Homers; Braves Win

Houston (AP) — Gene Oliver belted a grand slam and a two-run homer Wednesday night, powering Milwaukee's streaking Braves to a 9-1 romp over the Houston Colts.

Tony Cloninger pitched a brilliant three-hitter for the Braves as they won for the 13th time in their last 16 games and closed out their season series against Houston with a 13-5 record.

Oliver homered in the second inning after a single by Frank Torre, and climaxed Milwaukee's five-run eighth by connecting with the bases filled. Both blows came off Dick Farrell, who had limited the Braves to four hits before the explosion in the eighth.

Cleveland (AP) — Juan Pizarro and Eddie Fisher pitched the Chicago White Sox to 8-3 and 3-1 victories over the Cleveland Indians in a twi-night doubleheader Wednesday. Young Tom McCraw and veteran Nellie Fox each drove in four runs for the Sox.

Pizarro gave up six hits in the first game. Fisher allowed only three in eight innings work in the nightcap, including a home run by pitcher Dick Donovan, who now has a 10-11 record for the season. Fisher was relieved by Jim Brosnan in the ninth when he apparently tired.

Doane Grid Camp Opens

Crete — Doane will open football practice here today with 50-55 players expected to report, including 23 lettermen.

Coach Al Papik figures the offensive line to be the strongest phase of the Doane attack with a lack of depth and adequate backfield strength as the chief weaknesses.

Doane opens with Concordia here Sept. 14. Terry Nodlinski, a senior guard from Grant, and Randy Bernard, sophomore linebacker from West Point, will co-captain the Tigers this season.

The Doane schedule:

Sept. 14—Concordia; Sept. 21—Chadron State; Sept. 28—Nebraska Wesleyan; Oct. 5—at Wayne State; Oct. 12—at Peru State; Oct. 19—Kearney State; Oct. 26—at Hastings; Nov. 2—at Graceland; Nov. 9—at Colorado College.

Tiger-Giardello Bout Sought By Promoters

New York (AP)—A fledgling sports promotion group, Garden State Sports Corp., set its sights Wednesday on staging a world middleweight championship fight between Dick Tiger of Nigeria, the titleholder, and Joey Giardello of Philadelphia, rated No. 1 contender.

First, however, Tiger must dispose of a commitment to fight Laszlo Papp, the durable Hungarian, and Giardello must take care of Charley Jordan whom he meets Sept. 21 in Paterson, N.J.

But hopes ran high in the Giardello camp. A syndicate of 19 South Philadelphia friends has raised $100,000 as a minimum guarantee for Tiger, said Murray Goodman, of Garden State Sports, and a check for $10,000 was presented at a press luncheon by Giardello to Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine, to be held in escrow.

Wesleyan Opens Grid Drills With 13 Lettermen On Hand

. . . HOLT, SLATINSKY TOP OFFENSIVE THREATS

Thirteen lettermen, headed by backs Chuck Holt and Mike Slatinsky, paced the Nebraska Wesleyan University Plainsmen through first-day football drills Wednesday.

Holt, an Arnold senior, led the Plainsmen last fall in offensive rushing with 225 yards in 62 carries.

Slatinsky, a quarterback, led in total offense with 337 yards on 113 plays. The St. Charles, Ill., junior was the leading passer with 351 yards gained on 20 of 58 attempts.

Other backfield lettermen reporting for duty Wednesday to Coach Ray Westover were John Kerrey, Lincoln halfback; Dwight Tietgen, DeWitt defensive back, and Willis Weisbrook, Auburn halfback.

Westover will also rely heavily on Warren Washburn, Ashland senior quarterback. Washburn netted 163 yards on 10 of 27 pass attempts last season.

Dave Nell Newlon, Tabor, Iowa, a sophomore, is expected to fill the gap at fullback created by the graduation of hard-charging Dan McCord.

Line regulars reporting were Dave Packard, Elwood Guard; Ted Bookman, Lanark, Ill., tackle; Mick Pierce, Lincoln tackle; Ron Fox, Lincoln guard; Jim Schwamb, Sidney guard, and Bob Olson, Blair center.

The Plainsmen will hold two-a-day drills until school starts Sept. 11 in preparation for the season opener with Midland College here Sept. 14.

Cincy Slaps Dodgers, 9-5

Los Angeles (AP)—Jim Maloney posted his 19th victory as Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles, 9-5, Wednesday night and trimmed the Dodgers' National League lead to 5½ games over second-place San Francisco.

The Giants and Dodgers open a four-game series here Thursday night.

Maloney, forced to leave after seven innings with a pulled back muscle, ran his strikeout total for the season beyond the 200-mark and joined Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale of the Dodgers in an exclusive trio in the National League.

Maury Wills' error on an easy bounder by Pete Rose with two down in the third paved the way for two Cincinnati runs. Podres walked Tommy Harper and Vada Pinson then hit a curving liner to deep center. Willie Davis saw the ball fall at his feet as he tried to pull around for the catch, and Harper and Rose scored.

Annual Horse Program Set For Pioneers Park

. . . 5 STATE AREA REPRESENTED

If you're any kind of a horse lover and you happen to be in Pioneers Park Sunday, you've got it made.

The horses will be there and they'll be doing all sort of things.

The occasion is the second annual Cornhusker Combined Training Event, an affair good enough to draw horses and riders from five states — Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska.

There will be two divisions — Jenny Camp and Preliminary. Don't feel bad about not understanding that one. It means nothing more than Class A and B. The name Jenny Camp comes from the name of a former great Olympic horse and this division is for the novice or beginner.

The preliminary division is for the more experienced horse and rider.

Each division will have four winners, and the object is to score well in three categories.

The first one is Dressage, another clever little term which roughly means the same thing as obedience trials. In this the object is to show that the horse is well-trained and works well with the rider, performing various tasks with the least of effort by the rider.

Once this portion is over, and it starts at 8 a.m., the next step is the Cross Country, the endurance phase of the three-pronged test. In this one the horse and rider cover a mile and three-quarter course containing 16 jumps.

The final one, the Stadium Jumping phase, is to demonstrate the ability of the horse to come back from the endurance phase and display stamina and willingness to perform (jump nine obstacles).

The entire bit, which will take most of the day Sunday, will be north of the picnic area in the park and will be free to the public.

PEPSIS LOSE, 8-1, TO LONG BEACH

Keene, N.H. (AP)—The strong arm and big bat of Bob Wiswell sent the Omaha Pepsis down to an 8-1 defeat in the American Legion Junior Baseball Little World Series Wednesday as Long Beach, Calif., won its second game.

Omaha is now 1-1 in the tournament.

Omaha opened the scoring in the last of the fourth but Long Beach tied it in the top of the fifth and went ahead 2-1 in the top of the sixth.

The score stood at 3-1 in the top of the eighth when Wiswell made the Long Beach win a certainty with a two-base hit that cleaned the sacks and made the score 6-1.

Wiswell held Omaha to 5 hits.

In an afternoon game, Memphis, Tenn. trounced Evansville, Ind., 13-0.

Point Leader To Race At Fair

. . . WOOLLEY POTENTIAL BIG CAR RACE CHAMP

A potential new big car champion looms on the International Motor Contest Association scene in the person of Gordon Woolley, who last weekend took over the lead in association season point standings with a second place finish in the Missouri State Fair 50-mile Futurity classic.

Erstwhile front-runner Pete Folse, a three-time IMCA champ, wound up fifth in the Missouri event and dropped into the second slot.

Woolley, 39-year-old Waco, Tex., mechanic who moved into the big cars on the Midwestern circuit via modified stock cars on the Southwest's dirt quarter-miles, recently got the top ride of his career when he was assigned to the Weinberger No. 1 Chevrolet Special, a car built last winter especially for Midwestern tracks.

The Texas driver established a new IMCA world record for one-mile tracks in time trials at Sedalia, Mo., last Sunday and would have won the feature had not ignition trouble caused one cylinder of the big Chevy to cut out two laps from the finish and allowed Al Unser of Albuquerque to slip past to garner a narrow victory.

Both Woolley and Folse have filed entries with Nebraska State Fair Secretary Edwin Schultz for three days of racing here Sunday, Monday and Thursday and an entry from Unser remained a definite possibility.

GORDON WOOLLEY

Other chargers who have filed their entires include Jerry Blundy, Galesburg, Ill., winner of one feature here a year ago; Harold Leep, Wichita, Kan., who won the other two Nebraska features; Jud Larson of Kansas City, Indianapolis "500" veteran making a comeback following a coronary two years ago; Don Brown of San Bernardino, Calif., Dick Gaines of Mitchell, Ind., Jim McCune of Toledo, Ohio; Paul Dorcic of Chicago, Harry Ross of Campbell, Calif., and many others. Thirty-two entries had been recorded by Fair officials at midweek.

In addition to the three days of speedway car racing, late model stock cars are scheduled for a series of sprint races on Wednesday, Sept. 4. Time trials on all four days of racing start at 1:30 p.m.

HAMBO TO SPEEDY SCOT

Florlis Wins Fast First Heat

. . . SPEEDY SCOT RALLIES

CLOSE FINISH . . . Speedy Scot (3) nips Florlis (7) at finish line in second heat.

Du Quoin, Ill. (AP)—Speedy Scot, the 2-5 unofficial favorite, rallied after a first heat loss to Florlis and captured the Hambletonian for 3-year-old trotters Wednesday by sweeping the second and third heats.

In taking the decisive third mile, the Castleton Farm's powerful colt, driven by Ralph Baldwin to his first Hambletonian triumph in 13 starts, was timed in 1:58 2-5.

Florlis, owned by Arden Homestead Stable and piloted by 60-year-old Harry Downall, was second after a vain attempt to overhaul the heavily favored Speedy Scot.

Speedy Scot won the second heat in 1:58.0 and Florlis was second by three-fourths of a length.

Florlis nipped Speedy Scot by a head in the record smashing first heat with a blazing time of 1:57 3-5-fastest by any 3-year-old trotter either in competition or against the clock only.

The fastest field in Hambletonian history proved itself in the first two heats when 10 of the 14 starters were clocked under two minutes.

The combined winning times of 5:54 established a world record for a divided three-heat aggregate. The old record was 5:58 1-5 set in 1948 at Du Quoin.

Florlis' brilliant first heat which not only shattered the Hambletonian record of 1:58 2-5, but also the world competitive mark for 3-year-old trotters of 1:58 1-5 by Caleb at Lexington, Ky., in 1961, ranked as high as Speedy Scot's triumph in the 38th blue ribbon event for 3-year-old trotters.

About 23,000 were in the stands to watch the sizzling afternoon of record breaking in 90-degree temperature. Milling around inside the fairgrounds were 19,000 more, providing a total record fair attendance.

Speedy Scot, boosting his career record to 20 victories in 26 starts, including six out of seven this year, ran his earnings to $238,710. The Hambletonian first prize was $56,619.

Ford Gains 19th Victory

New York (AP)—Three wild pitches by Boston right-hander Earl Wilson permitted three New York runs and the Yankees went on to defeat the Red Sox, 4-1, Wednesday as Whitey Ford became the first American League pitcher to record 19 victories.

The Yankees had only six hits off Wilson and Wilbur Wood, his successor, but got four of them in the first four innings to help in all their scoring.

Yell School At NWU Expected To Draw 700

Some 700 high school girls are expected to attend the Third Annual Cheerleaders Clinic Sept. 14 at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Lawrence R. Herkimer, Dallas, Tex., will head the clinic. He is executive secretary of the National Cheerleaders Association and has trained more than 200,000 high school college yell leaders during the past 12 years.

PLENTY OF PLAYERS . . . It's plenty crowded by third base as Yanks' Hector Lopez (11) is caught in a rundown. Clete Boyer is already on third as Bosox catcher Bob Tillman (10) chases Lopez. Ed Bressoud is guarding third, Roman Mejias is backing him up, Frank Malzone, right, just fielded the grounder and Yankee coach Frank Crosetti, top left, looks on.

Homesteader Tourney Set

. . . PLAY STARTS SUNDAY

Beatrice—The 16th annual Homesteader Golf Tournament will be held here Sunday and Monday at the Beatrice Club course.

The tourney will have a new format this year with the field being limited to amateurs. The tourney has been conducted as an open meet in past years.

The change to an amateur-only status means a new champion will be crowned. Last year's champion, Bob Stone of Junction City, Kan., is a professional and thus is ineligible.

Entries close for the tourney at noon Sunday and an 18-hole qualifying round will be played that day. The low 32 qualifying scores plus ties will form the championship flight with the remainder of the flights consisting of 20 golfers plus ties from qualifying round.

The championship flight will play 27 holes Monday with other flights slated for 18 holes. The course will be open to entrants for practice rounds Saturday.

An added attraction to the tournament this year is the two-man team best ball action set for Saturday.

. . . SF TAKES 2ND

San Francisco (AP) — Tom Haller led a four-homer attack that powered the San Francisco Giants to a 5-3 victory over St. Louis Wednesday and into sole possession of second place in the National League.

Haller homered his first two times up, Chuck Hiller connected with one on in the first inning and Orlando Cepeda belted the other homer as the Giants broke a deadlock for second with the Cardinals.

Billy O'Dell went all the way for the Giants, posting his first victory since July 30 with a six-hitter. The left-hitter. The left-hander, who has been hampered by an ankle injury, now is 12-6.

Oliver Hits 2 Homers; Braves Win

Houston (AP) — Gene Oliver belted a grand slam and a two-run homer Wednesday night, powering Milwaukee's streaking Braves to a 9-1 romp over the Houston Colts.

Tony Cloninger pitched a brilliant three-hitter for the Braves as they won for the 13th time in their last 16 games and closed out their season series against Houston with a 13-5 record.

Oliver homered in the second inning after a single by Frank Torre, and climaxed Milwaukee's five-run eighth by connecting with the bases filled. Both blows came off Dick Farrell, who had limited the Braves to four hits before the explosion in the eighth.

Doane Grid Camp Opens

Crete — Doane will open football practice here today with 50-55 players expected to report, including 23 lettermen.

Coach Al Papik figures the offensive line to be the strongest phase of the Doane attack with a lack of depth and adequate backfield strength as the chief weaknesses.

Doane opens with Concordia here Sept. 14. Terry Nodlinski, a senior guard from Grant, and Randy Bernard, sophomore linebacker from West Point, will co-captain the Tigers this season.

The Doane schedule:

Sept. 14—Concordia; Sept. 21—Chadron State; Sept. 28—Nebraska Wesleyan; Oct. 5—at Wayne State; Oct. 12—at Peru State; Oct. 19—Kearney State; Oct. 26—at Hastings; Nov. 2—at Graceland; Nov. 9—at Colorado College.

Cleveland (AP) — Juan Pizarro and Eddie Fisher pitched the Chicago White Sox to 8-3 and 3-1 victories over the Cleveland Indians in a twinight doubleheader Wednesday. Young Tom McCraw and veteran Nellie Fox each drove in four runs for the Sox.

Pizarro gave up six hits in the first game. Fisher allowed only three in eight innings work in the nightcap, including a home run by pitcher Dick Donovan, who now has a 10-11 record for the season. Fisher was relieved by Jim Brosnan in the ninth when he apparently tired.

Tiger-Giardello Bout Sought By Promoters

New York (AP)—A fledgling sports promotion group, Garden State Sports Corp., set its sights Wednesday on staging a world middleweight championship fight between Dick Tiger of Nigeria, the titleholder, and Joey Giardello of Philadelphia, rated No. 1 contender.

First, however, Tiger must dispose of a commitment to fight Laszlo Papp, the durable Hungarian, and Giardello must take care of Charley Jordan whom he meets Sept. 21 in Paterson, N.J.

But hopes ran high in the Giardello camp. A syndicate of 19 South Philadelphia friends has raised $100,000 as a minimum guarantee for Tiger, said Murray Goodman, of Garden State Sports, and a check for $10,000 was presented at a press luncheon by Giardello to Nat Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine, to be held in escrow.

Tigers Win 7th Straight As Angels Downed, 2-1

Detroit (AP)—Frank Lary, unsteady in the early innings, settled down to pitch the Detroit Tigers to their seventh straight victory, 2-1, over Los Angeles Wednesday.

Lary, wild at the outset, surrendered a homer to Jim Fregosi in the fifth and then allowed only one more hit. He recorded his fourth victory with a seven-hitter.

Civilian Space Funds Okayed

Washington (AP) — A bill to authorize a $5,350,820,400 civilian space program for the current fiscal year was passed Wednesday by Congress and sent to President Kennedy.

The House acted first, 248 to 125, and the Senate then completed congressional action on a voice vote.

It was a compromise of bills passed previously by the two branches and included $1,147,400,000 for the Apollo project designed to send a man to the moon and bring him back alive by 1970.

The final version was about $362 million less than the President requested, $160 million less than the Senate had voted earlier and $147 million more than the House originally approved.

It includes $3.9 million to start building a controversial electronics research center originally planned for the Boston area, but none of the money could be committed until space committees of the Senate and House have reviewed detailed plans.

Large allotments in the measure, most of them subject to financing in a later bill, include $42,175,000 for communications satellites, $194.4 million for the geophysics and astronomy program, about $285 million for new facilities at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and $110,196,000 at the Mississippi test location.

Before passing the bill by roll call vote, the House defeated 290 to 176 a motion to return it to a conference committee with instructions to hold the total to the original House figures.

Republican leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, who supported the motion, remarked that "too often, either in their wisdom or lack of it," senators put back into bills amounts cut out by the House.

Baton Rouge Officials Integrate High Schools

Baton Rouge, La. (AP)—Officials quietly enrolled 28 Negro 12th-grade students in previously all-white public high schools Wednesday, two days before doors open for general registration.

Acting under federal court orders to desegregate the 12th grade, the East Baton Rouge Parish (county) educators took the advance step to avoid any racial incidents. First classes open Tuesday.

Here where Huey P. Long built a skyscraper capitol, Baton Rouge became the second metropolitan area in Louisiana to desegregate its public school rooms.

New Orleans bowed to federal court commands in the troubled winter of 1960-61, despite angry opposition and five straight legislative sessions called by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis.

White parents picketed and street crowds stirred unrest in that uneasy period.

School superintendent Lloyd Lindsey said 28 of 38 Negro seniors who applied for transfer to white schools here passed screening tests authorized in the recent ruling by U.S. District Judge Gordon West.

A reserve stairstep plan calls for racial mixing one grade lower each year.

Baton Rouge leaders, three years after the New Orleans struggle, hope for desegregation without strife. Pastors last Sunday appealed to citizens to remain calm and not to congregate around the four white high schools.

The Negro students selected have been drilled in dress and decorum by their parents and Negro leaders to prepare them for the new environment.

U.S. Supports Israel's Charges Against Syria

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The United States Wednesday backed Israel's charges that Syria was responsible for the slaying of two Israeli farmers last week. It urged the U.N. Security Council to vote the strongest condemnation for "this reprehensible act of murder."

The U.S. position was presented to the 11-nation council by Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson. He declared that the United States deeply deplores the slayings, which took place near the Israeli-Syrian border Aug. 19, and an earlier incident which he described as "the Syrian abduction of three Israeli subjects, including two young girls."

Stevenson spoke after Secretary-General U Thant reported that both Syria and Israel now are observing a U.N. cease-fire. Thant said U.N. inspection teams had reported no sign that either country has concentrated military forces in the border area.

Stevenson asserted that evidence assembled by U.N. investigators in connection with the slayings "is admittedly circumstantial" but he added that its implications are clear enough. He said the evidence adds up "to a clear picture which permits objective observers to draw the same conclusions about the origin of the attack."

At the same time, Stevenson pointed out that the U.N. investigation had failed to corroborate a Syrian counter-complaint alleging that 15 Israeli armored vehicles had attacked Syrian positions the day after the slayings.

The council is debating both the Israeli and Syrian complaints. Each country has charged the other with aggression and asked for U.N. condemnation.

No resolution has yet been submitted.

Stevenson said the council must accept its responsibility and act with courage and wisdom in the light of the best evidence available to it.

"For us the course which this body should follow is clear," he said. "In all justice and in the interests of law and order in international affairs, we believe this reprehensible act of murder . . . deserves the strongest condemnation. Only then can it be made clear that outrages of this kind cannot pass without the stern disapproval of the international community."

Stevenson appealed to both Israel and Syria to accept U.N. proposals for strengthening the position of the U.N. truce supervision organization in the border area. One of the problems had been the refusal of Israel to take part in meetings of the U.N. Mixed Armistice Commission on matters concerning the demilitarized zones between the two countries.

"We do not believe that anybody can lightly refuse to extend his full cooperation," Stevenson said.

The only other speaker of the morning session was the representative of Morocco, Dey Ould Sidi Baba, who contended that proofs of Israel's accusations were insufficient.

Rusk Resolves Ban 'Loose Ends' For Committee

Washington (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk Wednesday apparently resolved remaining questions involving possible loose ends in the nuclear test ban treaty for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The group may approve the pact Thursday.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., declined to say flatly that a vote would be taken at a meeting Thursday morning but said he "hopes" one will come. He also refused to predict a recommendation for ratification, although this is virtually certain.

Fulbright said even if the committee approves the pact Thursday, it probably will not be called up by the Senate before the week after next.

Closed-Door Session

Rusk appeared at a closed-door session of the committee to answer questions of some members following two weeks of sometimes conflicting testimony for and against the treaty. After Wednesday's session. Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., one of those who had withheld endorsement, said he was "fully satisfied" and would vote for the pact.

Morse had said earlier he would not vote for ratification without full assurances from the administration that there would be no "back-door violation" by the United States through furnishing nuclear information or materials to France.

The three-power treaty to ban all but underground tests also prohibits a signatory from supplying information or materials to another country for nuclear testing.

Satisfied

Fulbright said Rusk also apparently satisfied committee members that no crippling reservation was needed to spell out the right of the United States to use atomic weapons in wartime.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had said in a letter to the committee that he endorsed the pact but felt a reservation should be attached to the treaty containing this language.

After Rusk's testimony Wednesday, Fulbright said he felt the question had been cleared up satisfactorily and that he did not know of any committee member who planned to propose a formal reservation. This would force renegotiation or at least reconsideration of the agreement with the Soviet Union and Britain.

Won't Prohibit

Fulbright said Rusk reported that the Soviet news agency Tass also had taken the position that the treaty would not prohibit wartime use of nuclear weapons.

"There is no question about our rights in this matter," Fulbright said. Nor, he said, is there any question in Khrushchev's mind. He said Rusk quoted the Soviet leader as saying Russia would feel free to use nuclear weapons in the event the West "unleashed war in a fit of insanity."

Chicago To Work Toward Integration

Chicago (AP)—The board of Education voted Wednesday to work to wipe out any racial inequities in Chicago's public schools.

The action was hailed promptly as a milestone and one that may set a precedent for other northern cities.

The board also voted unanimously to invite five experts —including Dr. John Hannah, head of President Kennedy's Civil Rights Commission—to study Chicago's schools with an eye out for problems in schools where Negres form most or all of the student body.

The board's decision will be followed Thursday by dismissal of a Federal Court suit challenging its policies and alleging that they maintain de facto segregation.

The board approved a resolution that acknowledged formally that there are schools attended entirely or predominantly by Negroes, "without design on the part of the board" and that this had led to problems and controversy.

Then it committed officials to work toward "the elimination of any inequities that may prevail as a result of certain schools being attended entirely or predominantly by Negroes."

Uninvited Guests Enjoy Pool, Eats

Free pool and goodies were the events of the evening at the Leonard E. Doerr residence at 4250 Mohawk Tuesday night.

Some uninvited guests broke into the basement, played a game of pool, enjoyed a tomato, a popsicle, bread and two glasses of Kool-Aide, Doerr told police.

The guests showed their hospitality by poking five holes in the basement ceiling and stealing two pool cues.

FOUNDER DIES

W.E.B. DuBois, one of the founders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, died in Ghana. He was 95. DuBois helped found the NAACP in 1909, but broke with it in 1948 and devoted time to extreme left-wing causes.

Michigan Man Named City's New Forester

Donald Guinan, 27, of Wayland, Mich., has been named Lincoln city forester.

He will succeed K. D. Thelen, city forester since 1961, who has resigned to go to Pennsylvania State University to work on a master's degree in park management.

Guinan will assume his new duties Sept. 1.

The new forester is a graduate of Michigan State with degrees in municipal forestry and park management.

His annual salary will be $6,360. One of his first jobs will be work in the city's Dutch elm disease control program.

Perez Jimenez Says U.S. Jail Starved Him

Caracas (UPI) — Ex-Dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, jailed here for trial on embezzling charges, said through his lawyer Wednesday his Miami jailers almost starved him to death.

Perez Jimenez had announced he would hold a press conference at the San Juan de Los Morros Prison Wednesday, but warden Luis Alberto Garcia, the only person authorized to allow visitors to the prisoner, was off duty to attend his mother-in-law's funeral, and the press conference was indefinitely postponed.

The pudgy former strongman's lawyer, J. D. Colmenares, conveyed some of his client's remarks to the press after a cell visit.

Treated Like Pig

"He said the U. S. government treated him like a pig and that his jailers almost starved him to death," Colmenares said.

The lawyer talked to about 50 reporters and cameramen who had driven the 70 miles to the prison for the press conference.

Colmenares said the ex-dictator had asked him to request representatives of U.S. news agencies to tell the American people he was "grateful" for the exile he lived in the United States.

His antipathy, Colmenares said, is directed exclusively at the government of the United States and officials of the Dade County Jail.

Inmates, under National Guard supervision, Wednesday completed building a 12-foot-high wire mesh fence atop the 10-foot-high concrete-block wall surrounding the prison.

The measure was added security to guard Perez Jimenez.

Two additional sentry towers have also been built.

Perez Jimenez has a three-room "suite" in one wing of the jail, equipped with radio, television, a refrigerator and air conditioning. He receives Caracas daily newspapers in his cell.

Slippery Slide Suicide-By-Tie Try Falls Short

A 53-year-old Lincoln man suffered a sprained ankle in a fall off a slippery slide at Van Dorn Park, police reported Wednesday.

The man told officers he was attempting to commit suicide. He had tied two neckties together and attached one end to the top of the slide, police said. After tying the other end around his neck in a noose, he jumped, but his weight tore the ties apart.

He landed at the bottom of the slide. Police took him to Veterans Hospital for treatment.

Bowman $10,000 Given Wesleyan

Receipt of a $10,000 gift from the estate of the late Nettie J. Bowman of Lincoln was announced Wednesday by Nebraska Wesleyan University.

University President Vance D. Rogers said the money will go into the auditorium-fine arts building fund.

Both Mrs. Bowman and her late husband, Dr. Delbert J. Bowman were active in the Methodist Church in Lincoln.

Market Enjoys Vigorous Rally

New York (AP)—Wall Street Wednesday breathed confidence that Congress would succeed in taking action to prevent a railroad strike and the stock market enjoyed one of its most vigorous rallies of the year.

Trading swelled to 5.12 million shares from 4.02 million Tuesday—the largest since June 12 when 5.27 million shares changed hands.

The popular market averages more than wiped out the sharp losses of Tuesday when the stock market community was in a blue funk about prospects for averting the strike.

Prices were up from the start. Strength in rails spearheaded the early advance. Motors, steels, nonferrous metals, oils, utilities, office equipment came along vigorously.

A late rally by tobaccos and savings-and-loan holding companies put the icing on the cake.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 5.19 to 725.07.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2.3 to 278.7, the latest in its series of historic highs. Industrials rose 2.8 to a new high for the year, rails gained 2.6 and utilities .5. It was the biggest gain in the average since July 2 when it rose 2.4.

An estimated $3.3 billion was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in the AP average.

Of 1,295 issues traded, 766 advanced and 276 declined. There were 8 3new highs for the year and two new lows.

Not until after trading neded did the news come that Congress had passed a resolution aimed at averting the strike, but confidence of such an outcome prevailed throughout the session.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced on volume of 1.33 million shares compared with 1.19 million Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds declined slightly.

Escaping Man Shot By Guards

Berlin (UPI) — Communist border guards shot a man who tried to escape to the West by ramming an East Germany army ambulance through border barriers on the Western German end of the Autobahn, police reported here Wednesday.

Authorities said Communist police fire brought the ambulance, bearing Red Cross markings, to a halt after it crashed through the first of three steel barriers late Tuesday night. The driver leaped out and tried to run the remaining 400 yards to the border. But West Berlin police said he was shot down and may have been killed.

It was considered possible that other fleeing East Germans were in the ambulance but none was observed. Nor could eyewitnesses determine whether the refugee in the ambulance was a soldier or a civilian. They reported to police they caught fleeting glimpses as they left the Communist checkpoint of Marienborn on the West German border for the drive to West Berlin.

In Berlin, Communist police fired two shots at another East German as he attempted to flee over the East-West Berlin border to the U.S. sector. West Berlin police said Eastern guards dragged the man along the ground into a ditch.

A third refugee escaped safely through barbed wire to the American sector at another point, police said.

PROTESTERS, POLICE CLASH ON BUS FARES

Brasilia (AP)—Police clashed with a crowd of demonstrators protesting an increase of bus fares Tuesday night in the first outbreak of mass violence in this hinterland Brazilian capital that opened in 1960. One person was reported killed and 31 others were injured.

An estimated 1,500 students and workers were said to have burned 20 vehicles before police brought the demonstration under control.

The crowd was protesting an increase of 30% in bus fares that ranged from 20 to 100 cruzeiros (2 cents to 10 cents).

Purple Ribbon Hardly Worth Loss Of Exeter Girl's Calf

Geneva — A purple ribbon and a price well over market — but poor Patty.

Neither notoriety nor prosperity could buy a single smile for the little blonde lady who had just sold Domino. Even dad's big red handkerchief wasn't enough for a sobbing pony-tailed 9-year-old.

"Kinda tough for a kid the first time. She's worked so much with both her calves," said Bill Leif of Exeter, half apologetically. "She's probably the youngest 4-H'er here, too, just eligible by five days."

Fat steers meant fat checks and fat smiles, however, for the more seasoned sellers at Fillmore County's traditional fair auction. Cafe man Ernest Mumby of Fairmont and Genevan Steve Yates' Grand Champion Angus together at $5.75 over market price — setting the happy pace for bonuses down the 155-beef line.

"Our beeves were up 40 head this year, and hogs also ran well ahead of last year," beamed county agent Elbert Loewenstein. A $24.75 Omaha market made the fair prices look extra good this year.

Impressive List

Swelling the barns even beyond some 350 4-H animals was an impressive list of 135 Future Farmers of America entries. This latter was a satisfying boost over recent years, noted Geneva FFA advisor George Hornberger.

Fair officials reported good turnouts at both grandstand and Midway for the 3-day fair, which started Sunday. Most exhibits offered best showing, in quality as well as quantity, of several years.

Ranking alongside the home grown Yates steer for Grand Champion honors was the Angus heifer of Shickley's Kurt Koch. Gene Domeier of Geneva showed the reserve champion steer, a Hereford, and a Shorthorn owned by Neil Betty of Shickley was reserve champion heifer.

Alan Songster of Exeter won the FFA tractor driving contest. Jerry Fixemer of Geneva was runner-up.

Market Enjoys Vigorous Rally

New York (AP)—Wall Street Wednesday breathed confidence that Congress would succeed in taking action to prevent a railroad strike and the stock market enjoyed one of its most vigorous rallies of the year.

Trading swelled to 5.12 million shares from 4.02 million Tuesday—the largest since June 12 when 5.27 million shares changed hands.

The popular market averages more than wiped out the sharp losses of Tuesday when the stock market community was in a blue funk about prospects for averting the strike.

Prices were up from the start. Strength in rails spearheaded the early advance. Motors, steels, nonferrous metals, oils, utilities, office equipment came along vigorously.

A late rally by tobaccos and savings-and-loan holding companies put the icing on the cake.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 3.19 to 725.07.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 2.3 to 278.7, the latest in its series of historic highs. Industrials rose 2.8 to a new high for the year, rails gained 2.6 and utilities .5. It was the biggest gain in the average since July 2 when it rose 2.4.

An estimated $3.3 billion was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in the AP average.

Of 1,295 issues traded, 764 advanced and 276 declined. There were 8 new highs for the year and two new lows.

Not until after trading ended did the news come that Congress had passed a resolution aimed at averting the strike, but confidence of such an outcome prevailed throughout the session.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced on volume of 1.33 million shares compared with 1.19 million Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. government bonds declined slightly.

Escaping Man Shot By Guards

Berlin (UPI) — Communist border guards shot a man who tried to escape to the West by ramming an East Germany army ambulance through border barriers on the Western German end of the Autobahn, police reported here Wednesday.

Authorities said Communist police fire brought the ambulance, bearing Red Cross markings, to a halt after it crashed through the first of three steel barriers late Tuesday night. The driver leaped out and tried to run the remaining 400 yards to the border. But West Berlin police said he was shot down and may have been killed.

It was considered possible that other fleeing East Germans were in the ambulance but none was observed. Nor could eyewitnesses determine whether the refugee in the ambulance was a soldier or a civilian. They reported to police they caught fleeting glimpses as they left the Communist checkpoint of Marienborn on the West German border for the drive to West Berlin.

In Berlin, Communist police fired two shots at another East German as he attempted to flee over the East-West Berlin border to the U.S. sector. West Berlin police said Eastern guards dragged the man along the ground into a ditch.

A third refugee escaped safely through barbed wire to the American sector at another point, police said.

PROTESTERS, POLICE CLASH ON BUS FARES

Brasilia (AP)—Police clashed with a crowd of demonstrators protesting an increase of bus fares Tuesday night in the first outbreak of mass violence in this hinterland Brazilian capital that opened in 1960. One person was reported killed and 31 others were injured.

An estimated 1,500 students and workers were said to have burned 20 vehicles before police brought the demonstration under control.

The crowd was protesting an increase of 30% in bus fares that ranged from 20 to 100 cruzeiros (2 cents to 10 cents).

Purple Ribbon Hardly Worth Loss Of Exeter Girl's Calf

Geneva — A purple ribbon and a price well over market — but poor Patty.

Neither notoriety nor prosperity could buy a single smile for the little blonde lady who had just sold Domino. Even dad's big red handkerchief wasn't enough for a sobbing pony-tailed 9-year-old.

"Kinda tough for a kid the first time. She's worked so much with both her calves," said Bill Leif of Exeter, half apologetically. "She's probably the youngest 4-H'er here, too, just eligible by five days."

Fat steers meant fat checks and fat smiles, however, for the more seasoned sellers at Fillmore County's traditional fair auction. Cafe man Ernest Mumby of Fairmont and Genevan Steve Yates' Grand Champion Angus together at $5.75 over market price — setting the happy pace for bonuses down the 155-beef line.

"Our beeves were up 40 head this year, and hogs also ran well ahead of last year," beamed county agent Elbert Loewenstein. A $24.75 Omaha market made the fair prices look extra good this year.

Impressive List

Swelling the barns even beyond some 350 4-H animals was an impressive list of 135 Future Farmers of America entries. This latter was a satisfying boost over recent years, noted Geneva FFA advisor George Hornberger.

Fair officials reported good turnouts at both grandstand and Midway for the 3-day fair, which started Sunday. Most exhibits offered best showing, in quality as well as quantity, of several years.

Ranking alongside the home grown Yates steer for Grand Champion honors was the Angus heifer of Shickley's Kurt Koch. Gene Domeier of Geneva showed the reserve champion steer, a Hereford, and a Shorthorn owned by Neil Betty of Shickley was reserve champion heifer.

Alan Songster of Exeter won the FFA tractor driving contest. Jerry Fixemer of Geneva was runner-up.
